REENACTS KILLING; SLAYS GIRL

O'BRIEN LOSES APPEAL; MUST ENTER PRISON

Tax Decision Blow to Druggan, Lake.

The second victory in the government's campaign against income tax evaders was won before the United States Supreme court yesterday when State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien (Dem., 29th) was denied a review of his conviction.

L. C. O'BRIEN.

The legislator now has command to hold office, is expected to be taken to Leavenworth penitentiary on Friday to serve a term of 18 months. He was also fined $5,000 by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake are scheduled to be sentenced to the penitentiary on Dec. 9 as the result of O'Brien's failure to obtain a review of his case by the Supreme court.

Contingent on O'Brien Appeal.

The former notorious beer baron pleaded guilty to charges of income tax fraud, with the pleas to felony counts contingent on the appeals of O'Brien and Ralph J. Capone. Capone, the older brother of Scarface Al, is already in the penitentiary serving a three year term, the Supreme court having declined to review his case, and O'Brien has made his last resort.

The cases of Druggan and Lake have been continued from time to time by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson pending the final outcome of Ralph Capone's and O'Brien's appeals. Druggan faces a possible maximum prison sentence of 20 years and fines totaling $50,000. He is alleged to owe the government more than $300,000 in taxes, interest and penalties on an income of more than $1,000,000 from 1925 to 1928. Lake faces a maximum sentence of 27 years and fines totaling $30,000. He owes more than $200,000 in taxes, interest and penalties for 1924, 1926 and 1928.

O'Brien Guilty of Evasion.

Legislator O'Brien was found guilty of underscheduling his income in the amount of $430,000 and of attempting a credit payment of some $75,000. His income of nearly $1,000,000 for 1924, 1927 and 1928 was derived in the main from contracts with the sanitary district under the regime of Timothy J. Crowe.

The refusal of the supreme court to review the cases of O'Brien and Frank Capone should discourage further appeals from the convictions of Tom Gunik, Capone gangster, and Roy G. Oliver, member of the Cook county board of assessors, in the opinion of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and his assistants.

Appeals in these cases have been denied in the United States Circuit court of Appeals and decisions are expected at any time. They involve no questions of law that were not involved in the O'Brien and Capone cases, which the Supreme court declined to review, or that further appeals would, in effect, be limited to the sufficiency of the evidence.

Other Faces Prison Term.

Oliver was sentenced to eighteen months in the penitentiary and fined $10,000. Gunik was sentenced to three years and a day in the penitentiary and fined $17,500, both by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Under the six previously mentioned convictions the government has obtained since the income tax campaign was started, the convictions of Al Capone and two of his henchmen, Frank and Sam Gusik.

INDICT OLIVER.

The county grand jury yesterday returned a new indictment, charging Assessor Gene O. Oliver and William H. Nichols, a contractor, before Chief Justice Harry Fisher in the criminal court. The cases were originally indicted in 1930, while Oliver was on trial in the federal court for income tax fraud, for which he was convicted and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. The indictment was based on testimony of Warner A. Wiesenfeld, a store head, who testified in the federal trial and before the county grand jury that he had paid $10,744 for fixing taxes on certain properties by which the money was traced to Oliver accounts.

BIG TAXPAYERS PLEDGE HELP TO MAYOR IN CRISIS

Campaign Board of Leaders Named.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Christmas looked brighter last night to the school teachers, who have been paid only one month's salary since last April. Other city employes, who expected no salary in December, had a more cheerful view of the holidays.

The reason lies in the aid promised yesterday by two dozen large property owners toward providing money for city and school salaries. Their promises were given at a conference in Mayor Cermak's office. To promote the plan and to urge other large taxpayers to augment the fund for salaries Mayor Cermark appointed the following committee to make the drive:

D. F. Kelly of The Fair, chairman.
Sewell Avery, United States Gypsum company.
F. G. Hale, Illinois Bell Telephone company.
John T. Pirie, Carson Pirie Scott & Co.
James Simpson, Marshall Field & Co.
B. J. Mullaney, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.
C. A. Liddle, Pullman company.
H. L. Hollis, Potter Palmer estate.
Fred Sargent, Chicago and North Western railway.
George Haney, International Harvester company.

Plan to Sell Tax Warrants.

The plan for raising the funds is to persuade large property owners to buy the city and school tax anticipation warrants for the tax year of 1930 which are now held by the surplus funds of the city.

There are $28,137,077 of city warrants, $6,516,000 of educational warrants of the school board, $120,000 of warrants of the playground fund, $115,000 of the public library, $690,000 of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, and $270,000 of the firemen's pension fund. This is a total of $35,847,077 and the probable goal at which the committee will aim.

The warrants bear 6 per cent interest and can be used to pay 1930 taxes, which will be due early next year. They can be utilized for the payment of any city tax bill for about 60 per cent of its total.

As these 1930 warrants are sold the cash will be placed in the city treasury. Then it will be taken out again and the 1931 tax warrants will be placed in the treasury. With the cash employes will be paid.

The Mayor's Conference.

Representatives of two dozen corporations attended the meeting in Mayor Cermak's office. The mayor opened the session with a statement indicating the financial situation of the city and the schools. He told of the savings made and climaxed his speech with this sentence:

"I believe the cost of the local governments could be reduced 40 per cent, with proper cooperation among officials, elimination of duplications and the obtaining of necessary enabling legislation."

A little later Mr. Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee, added:

"In view of the reduction in expenses already effected, the assurances of the mayor are entitled to your respect."

All Pledge Their Aid.

On a call of the roll of those present by City Controller M. S. Szymczak, one conferee replied that as had purchased 1930 tax warrants, but would take more, another promised to lay the matter before his corporation, a third promised outright to make a purchase. Another said his corporation would do its share, and so on through the list.

No one turned the mayor down, although a number were without specific authority to make a definite promise of purchase.

The mayor's preliminary statement appeared to appeal to the large taxpayers. When he was inaugurated he found a corporate fund for 1931 of $82,082,079 of which he said $16,874,920 had been spent.

"If the expenditures had continued on this basis for the remainder of the year," said Mayor Cermak yesterday,

EDWARD HINES IS REPORTED TO BE NEAR DEATH

Edward Hines, millionaire lumber merchant and philanthropist, was reported near death early this morning in his home at 1450 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

Mr. Hines, who is 68 years old, has been suffering from heart disease for months. His condition became grave several days ago and slight hopes for his recovery have been held since pneumonia developed. He has been unconscious since Saturday.

At the bedside of Mr. Hines are his daughter, Mrs. Howell Howard, and his sons, Charles and Ralph Hines. The last rites of the Catholic church were administered to Mr. Hines yesterday morning. Two physicians, Dr. Walter W. Hamburger and Dr. Morris Ley, are constantly in attendance.

BRIDE PROTESTS HER HUSBAND'S TRIP TO FUNERAL

To accommodate an acquaintance, Clarence C. Magden, 24 years old, of 105 Fulton avenue, Waukegan planned to drive yesterday to the funeral of Margaret Sorensen. She was an old friend of Magden.

Magden's wife, Grace, 18 years old, a bride of five months, objected. "If you drive to the funeral I'll kill myself," she threatened.

Magden ignored her remark. He picked up his friend and together they drove to the funeral of Miss Sorenson. He returned home several hours later. The house was filled with gas. In the kitchen Magden found his wife dead.

C. & N. W. Asks Unions to Cut Own Pay 15%

A voluntary minimum reduction of 15 per cent in pay was asked yesterday of approximately 40,000 union employes of the Chicago and North Western railway by President Fred W. Sargent. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad, a subsidiary, is also included.

The request was made to twenty general chairmen of as many groups who met in Mr. Sargent's office. Each was given a signed letter which stated:

"We are fully convinced that there must be a prompt reduction of at least 15 per cent in all rates of compensation of all classes of employes."

President Tells Conditions.

Reasons for the plea were cited. They included general conditions, drought, the grasshopper plague, and the condition of the farmer, all of which, bearing on market shipping, reflected, the letter stated, on the railroad. It further declared that the reduction would not be lengthy, and suggested that readjustment in the pay scale would follow improving trends. Mr. Sargent asked the union chairmen to have the request acted upon speedily. The railroad brotherhoods, engineers, conductors, clerks, dispatchers, shopmen and other classes of employes are affected.

Executives Defer Action.

President Sargent's request came at the same time members of the Western Association of Railway Executives were holding a secret meeting at the Union League club. At the close of that meeting members asserted that it was decided not to take any action or make any recommendations with respect to wage cuts until after the meeting of railway union officials which is to open here on Dec. 8. Other than that the rail chiefs declined to discuss what was said at the meeting.

Pay Reduction the Topic.

It was understood that the meeting was called to discuss the recent joint conference in New York of union officials and eastern rail executives. At that meeting the railroad heads proposed a ten per cent wage reduction. The union leaders countered with a proposal for the establishment of a six hour day on an eight hour day wage basis, with rejection for the wage reduction.

REVEAL THEFT OF SIR JAMES BARRIE AUTOBIOGRAPHY

(Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Scotland Yard today was investigating the theft of a priceless copy of Sir James Barrie's secret autobiography, "The Greenwood Hat, Being a Member of James Anon," of which there are only twenty existent. It was stolen from the offices of Peter Davies Barrie, publisher.

The book, which was privately printed and circulated with elaborate precaution among the author's friends, was taken in a burglary in the publisher's offices on Wednesday. It was hoped to keep the loss a secret, but it was discovered in a trade journal advertisement. Booksellers have been warned to keep a sharp lookout for the stolen book.

The book derives its title from an incident when Sir James first came to London. He decided to see Frederick Greenwood, then editor of the St. James Gazette, and purchased a silk hat to make an impression. The office boy relieved him of his hat at the threshold of the editor's room, thus upsetting his plans. All recipients of the book, among whom was Ramsay MacDonald, were asked not to divulge its contents.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT ASSERTS CO-EDS ARE DRINKING MORE NOW

Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, passed through Chicago yesterday and expressed his views on football and student drinking, which he considers problems of the modern university.

"There is undoubtedly more drinking among college girls now than in the days before prohibition," said President Sproul, "but otherwise the colleges have not changed much."

As for football, he said the collegiate sport was overemphasized, but that he was a rabid fan and knew of nothing that so effectively holds a student body together. The educator, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Marian, said he was on a business trip to Johns Hopkins university.

School Pupils Figure in Two Gun Tragedies

Thwarted in a "puppy love" affair, Henry Sio, 13 years old, 4126 Elston avenue, a student in the Roosevelt High school, early yesterday shot and killed his 12 year old sweetheart, Ruth Wicklund, as she was on her way to the Belding elementary school. He then raced to his home and, with a single shot, committed suicide.

Last night another 13 year old Roosevelt High school student, Joseph T. Wilson, 2937 Argyle street, reenacted the tragedy in which a school mate had figured. Facing him were Constance Trohatos, 15 years old, and her sister, Cleo, 17, of 3425 Eastwood avenue, also students at the Roosevelt High.

As young Wilson reinacted the shooting he snapped the trigger of a supposedly empty revolver. Constance slumped into her chair dead, a bullet in her brain.

First Tragedy Described.

The background of yesterday's first tragedy lay in the parental objection to the juvenile courtship by young Sio of the Wicklund girl. Both resided in the same building, and frequently Sio accompanied her to school. Recently their affair was ordered stopped. Yesterday the Wicklund girl left her home as usual. At Berteau and Springfield avenues Sio halted her. He drew a revolver and fired, as she pleaded with him not to shoot. His own death followed shortly afterward.

News of the shooting became the main topic of hundreds of students at the Roosevelt High school, where Sio was well known. It remained as fresh news last night. Among the few, however, who knew nothing of the double death was Constance Trohatos. She had played hookey.

Gather in Boy's Home.

Last night she and Cleo left home for a neighborhood library. They recollected that young Wilson possessed a number of entertaining books, and called at his home. They sat in the living room, discussing literature, when Wilson mentioned the Sio-Wicklund tragedy. Constance expressed surprise, saying she had not heard of it, and laughingly remarking she "was glad she had played hookey, or she might have been shot."

"This is loaded with wooden bullets, so don't be afraid," he reassured, smiling. He broke the weapon and extracted a wooden cartridge. As he displayed the weapon, he described the suicide of Sio and the killing of his sweetheart. He inspected the gun, and sprang suddenly to where Cleo was sitting. He pressed the gun to her head.

Presses Gun to Head.

"See?" he exclaimed, as he pressed the trigger. There was a harmless snap.

"How would you like to be shot?" he asked jokingly as he walked over to Constance. She accepted the threat in fun and laughed. Wilson stepped up to her, placed the revolver against her temple, and pressed the trigger. Again there was a harmless snap. He pressed the trigger a second time. There was a sharp explosion. Constance fell over dead.

Cleo screamed. Wilson almost collapsed, but bolstered himself sufficiently to summon police. Lieut. John O'Brien of the Summerdale station responded. He took the boy and Cleo to the station, and after questioning them said the killing was doubtless an accident.

REVEAL GILDAY GUN AS GIFT OF U. S. DRY AGENTS

Fight to Save Youth Shot by Reformer.

Prohibition agents for whom he had performed many times as a snooper provided the revolver with which Daniel L. Gilday, reform leader and dry agitator, wounded the young Samaritan who would have aided him Sunday evening.

This was discovered yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan during his questioning of the 65 year old untiring church deacon.

Gilday is vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league, is a director of the Better Government association, and has been a member of the board of Pilgrim Congregational church for more than forty years. He has been a deacon of the church since 1912.

Gets Gun "Through Jamie."

At first Gilday asserted the gun had been given to him by Alex G. Jamie when Jamie was agent in charge of the special prohibition unit in Chicago. Later Gilday declared that he had obtained the weapon "through Jamie," and that he didn't want to explain this any further because he didn't want to "get the man in trouble."

Jamie denies he ever gave the gun to Gilday.

The reformer, who is being held without bail, admitted that a tear gas gun found in his pocket had been given him by another prohibition agent, whose name he also declined to give.

Reformer Denies Intoxication.

Although Mr. Coghlan obtained statements from many witnesses who declared Gilday was "staggering drunk" at the time of the shooting at 70th and Green streets and 4 hours afterward, the reformer maintained his claims that he was not intoxicated. He asserted he had no knowledge of how the half pint bottle of whisky came to be found in his inside coat pocket.

Withdrawing his early charges that the police had "planted" the bottle on him, Gilday simply said he did not know how it got there, but he insisted he had not bought it or placed it in his pocket himself.

Boy Fights for Life.

While Prosecutor Coghlan pursued his inquiry, the boy victim of the reformer's gun, Herman Knol, 17 years old, of 6933 South May street, lay fighting death at the Englewood hospital.

Physicians told the prosecutor that Herman had about an even chance to live; that Gilday's bullet had perforated the intestines in three places, and that while every means known to medical and surgical science was being used to save him, wounds such as his most often proved fatal.

The youth's chum, Herman Alkema, 18 years old, of 7210 South Sangamon street, told Mr. Coghlan that he and young Knol, on their way to worship Sunday evening at the Open Door mission, 7014 South Halsted street, had noticed Gilday staggering along the street near 70th and Green streets.

Chum's Story of Shooting.

"Herman said to me, 'Let's help that poor old fellow,'" said Alkema. "So we walked up to him and took hold of him on each side. We tried to find out from him where he lived, saying we would take him home.

"Instead of answering, the man broke away from our grasp and pulled a gun from his pocket. I saw it and ran, but Herman didn't have a chance to run. The man put the gun at his stomach and pulled the trigger. Then he and Herman both fell down. I got some other boys and we took the gun away from him."

Knol's parents were already at the mission which is conducted by the Rev. Peter Ypma, who said both boys were regular attendants at services and were known to him as boys of the finest character.

Witnesses Are Questioned.

One of the witnesses, Edward Fenn Galt, 9750 Longwood drive, told the prosecutor that Gilday had worked for years as a shipping clerk in the Cole Manufacturing company, which was owned by Cole's father. Gilday had claimed he was superintendent and secretary of the company.

"My father hired Gilday against

Youth Shot by Gilday Is Too Good to Die, His Mother Says

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Herman Knol, 17 years old, who is fighting for his life in the Englewood hospital, was told yesterday that the stranger who shot him through the abdomen on Sunday night is a crusader against vice and booze, engaged in uplifting the morals of Chicago.

"He's a good example," the wounded boy said in a faint voice. "I never saw a man so drunk in my life."

Young Knol lay on his back in a critical condition from the wound inflicted by Daniel L. Gilday, vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league. The boy has "a fighting chance to live," according to A. E. Paul, superintendent of the hospital.

Deprived of Chance at Job.

Herman had only one complaint to make. "I was to see a man about a job tonight," he said. "I think I could have gotten it and now I can't."

He verified the description of the shooting given by his companion, Herman Aikens. When Gilday pushed the gun in his stomach, Knol said, he tried to knock it away.

On the walls of Herman's home at 8848 South May street hang two framed diplomas from the Englewood Christian Grammar school. Herman was graduated in 1927. His brother, Johnnie Jr., 19 years old, got the other diploma. The younger children, Stella, 12 years old; Georgia, 10 years old, and Raymond, 6 years old, all go to the school.

On the walls of the dining room hang religious mottoes. On the worn but spotless dress of his mother, Albertdena Knol, 38 years old, was a little pin inscribed with another religious motto.

"John, my husband, the three younger children and I had gone to the mission" [the Open Door Mission, 7014 South Halsted street], said Mrs. Knol. "Hermie and his friend were to come before the sermon started. We had sung just one hymn when one of the deacons came up to John and told him to come away. After another song I could not stay. I went up to another deacon and he told me Hermie was shot.

"When I got to the hospital they were getting ready to operate. 'Boy, what is it?' I asked Hermie. He'd never been in any trouble. 'Mother,' he said, 'a damned old drunken man I tried to help stand up shot me.' 'Oh, Hermie, you mustn't swear,' I told him. 'Now pray, because they're going to operate.' He told me he would, then they took him out to operate.

"I've had eight boys and one girl, and followed four of my boys to the grave," went on the mother. "Oh, Hermie's too good to die."

Rent Due and No Money.

The elder Knols came over from Holland, where Knol was a farmer, more than 20 years ago. The father has followed the cement worker's trade here but has had only occasional work for two years. Herman, who has worked in mailing rooms and as office boy, has been out of work since January. The Knols' rent is due today, and there is no money to pay it.

"Thanksgiving day I had 30 cents, and bought some nice fish," said Mrs. Knol. "We said a prayer of thankfulness, and I said, 'Most of all, we have health.' If Hermie gets well I won't worry about anything else."

Gilday's wife pleaded with father to rescue Gilday from his drinking habits," said Cole. "He was a nuisance around the factory and even there he was a professional drinker. He went about the factory with a pistol carried in a holster slung around his neck.

Gilday Discharged by Cole.

"I discharged Gilday in 1923 because he was incapable and because I received reports he had been drinking."

Cole said the prosecutor that after he discharged Gilday the latter instituted against him in litigation over an estate. Before being interviewed by the prosecutor Cole told Capt. Michael Lee of the Englewood police that Gilday was the type of fellow who carried a bible in one pocket and a pint in the other."

Gilday's first assertion that the half pint bottle of whisky found in his pocket must have been "planted" on him was discredited, Prosecutor Coghlan said, by the testimony of Frank Gunneman, 6548 South Green street, who was at the scene of the shooting, and who took Gilday's gun away from him.

"Gilday was in the gutter alongside the boy he had shot," Gunneman said. "I went toward him and he pointed the gun at me as though he was going to shoot me, too. I grabbed the gun from him. His coat fell back at the time and I saw the bottle of liquor in his pocket. This was before the police arrived."

Gunneman and Daniel Kloosterman of 6349 South Morgan street, another witness at the scene, both said Gilday was so intoxicated that he was unable to get up and had to be carried into an automobile to be taken to the hospital with his victim. At the hospital Gilday refused to make a statement to the police that Gilday was intoxicated.

Gilday Silent on Shooting.

Gilday had asserted after his arrest that the two boys, Knol and Aikens, had tried to take his money. Yesterday he refused to discuss the shooting at all, saying that this would be part of his defense.

The reformer's defense, he said, would be in charge of E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Better Government association. Davis issued a statement eulogizing Gilday as a model citizen, asserting that he had never seen Gilday under the influence of liquor, and that he did not believe Gilday used it in any form at any time.

Davis, in the beginning of his signed statement, said Gilday had been in poor health recently; that he had been informed by Gilday's family that Gilday had heart trouble and might drop dead at any minute.

Heart Attack, Davis Says.

"Several times recently he has fallen unconscious," Davis said. "The probabilities are that he had a heart attack and walked along the street in a dazed condition."

Mr. Davis' statement was so carefully worded that he did not even conclude that Gilday had done the shooting.

"The hospital reports the boy who, it is claimed by the police, was shot by Daniel L. Gilday as improving and apparently on the way to recovery," Davis put it.

Prosecutor Coghlan declared it was ridiculous to assume that a man suffering from a heart attack would draw a revolver and shoot a boy who offered to help him to his house.

Gilday gave some indication during an interview with newspaper men that he would adopt a defense to the effect that he was in a daze, as Davis suggested. Asked where he received the bruise on his nose, which the night before he had claimed was inflicted by the Knol boy, Gilday asserted he could not remember how he got the bruise.

"I have a bump on my head that I cannot remember, either," Gilday said.

The reformer said he suffered from low blood pressure, and that he was short of breath. He produced two bottles of pills which he said he took for his ailment, and added that he also took a third medicine, an "appetizer."

"I feel terrible," he told the interviewers, and when asked the cause of his ill feeling, he said he would have felt as bad if he had shot a gangster, even such as Frank McErlane, whom he professed to be investigating at the present time.

Gilday admitted having "taken a drink occasionally" in his younger days. He said that for the last 20 years at least he has never touched liquor except to "taste it" in connection with his duties as an informer for the prohibition department.

He said he never testified in court in any of his cases, contenting himself with giving information against speakeasies and saloons. When asked how many times he had given information to the government he said: "Plenty."

He Is Law and Order League.

Gilday had posed as vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league, but yesterday he admitted that he alone was the league; that it was a one man organization which had held no meetings in several years. He insisted that he had collected no subscriptions for the league, although Prosecutor Coghlan had received reports that Gilday obtained many donations for the league.

Supt. Davis also referred to Gilday as "superintendent and secretary, Englewood Law and Order league since 1924," although, according to information given to Prosecutor Coghlan, there have been no members of the league except Gilday for ten or fifteen years.

Explaining how he got two official stars found in his possession at the time of the shooting, Gilday said one was given him by Morgan P. Collins when the latter was chief of police, and the other had been given him by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson. Mr. Roche admitted that he had given the star to Gilday, but that it carried no right whatever for the holder to carry a gun.

"It's getting pretty tough when you can't trust a church deacon," Roche said. Roche said Gilday's service to him was no more than that of an informant.

Gilday declined to give an explanation of a pawn ticket found in his pocket. It showed a diamond ring had been pawned for $10 by a man giving the name of "Donald Gray." The police pawn shop detail, after an investigation, informed Prosecutor Coghlan that the ring had been pawned by an intoxicated man. Gilday would not discuss the nature of the transaction.

During the day Gilday was taken to the police bureau of identification where he was fingerprinted and photographed, and a search was made for a previous record of arrests.

Prosecutor Coghlan said he would not place charges against Gilday until he had definite assurances from Knol's physicians as to the chances for the boy's recovery. He declared Gilday would be charged with assault with intent to commit murder, if the youth recovered, and otherwise would be charged with murder.

U. S. DRY AGENT KILLS UNARMED ALABAMA MAN

Witness Says Slayer Was Intoxicated.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Federal Prohibition Agent F. A. McCartney, alleged to have been intoxicated, shot and killed A. Ferrell Day, 23 years old railroad employé, in a rooming house here tonight.

An intoxicated woman witness of the shooting, Thelma Anderson, told the police that Day was unarmed, that he was trying to get away when the shooting occurred and that he was shot from behind by the agent.

Policemen Hear Shots.

Two motorcycle policemen were passing the house when they heard three shots fired in rapid succession. They ran in to find the prohibition agent, with his pistol still in his hand, trying to get out the front door.

When the policemen searched McCartney they found three pints of liquor in his pockets. He admitted that he had just shot a man, but when he was asked to give his name he declined.

"I am a federal agent," he said with dignity. "Call Victor Buthod."

Shot Trying to Flee.

The body of Day was found in a lavatory. Examination by the coroner confirmed the story of Thelma Anderson that he had been shot as he was trying to get away. One of the agent's bullets had struck him on the inside of the right wrist. The other, which caused his death, entered his left side near the back and penetrated the heart.

The only weapon found was that of the agent. Day had broken a window of the lavatory, apparently in an effort to escape.

McCartney indicated to the police that he would plead self-defense as justification for the killing.

Pay When He Bottles Corn; Farmer Asks Loan

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The following information concerning the credit of an unnamed Vigo county farmer has been sent to the United States department of agriculture at Washington by County Agent Horace Abbott:

"The subject of your inquiry has a good market for his product and should be able to make payment on his corn seed loan as soon as he has the product bottled and barreled."

WOODCOCK INQUIRY TO DECIDE FATE OF WESTERN DRY CHIEF

Denver, Colo., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—A closed inquisition was conducted today into the federal government's prohibition enforcement in this district by Amos W. W. Woodcock, national director of prohibition, who said after his arrival from Washington that he is here "to stay until I can decide whether to fire or keep" John F. Vivian, administrator for this area.

Woodcock has been extremely careful while here not to commit himself on the Vivian case. "Your question is purely hypothetical," he said, when asked if he would consider it grounds for suspension if it is shown that Vivian attempted to borrow money from Henry Dierks, suspended dry agent charged with murder, before he was appointed an agent.

Woodcock, however, considers Dierks out of the department for good, not merely suspended. The suspension came after Dierks had fatally injured Milford G. Smith of Englewood in a scuffle over three ounces of wine.

After conferring with Taylor and Shirley less than a hour, Woodcock summoned Vivian, who appeared worried when he entered Woodcock's suite. His usual jovial smile was missing.

Predictions here are that Woodcock's inquisition will lead to Vivian's suspension.

RUSSIA ON WORLD HUNT FOR MORE TECHNICAL MEN

MOSCOW, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Russia will need several thousand more foreign engineers and technicians in 1932, soviet officials said today. Bogdanov, manager of the locomotive factory trust, said that his trust will need 2,700 more technicians and that only 1,500 students are available from the graduate school. The remainder, he said, will have to be secured abroad.

Declined While That of Brother Advanced.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Harry Payne Whitney, capitalist and sportsman, who died Oct. 26, 1930, left an estate valued in the first accounting of $71,771,303. This was disclosed today when the account of the executors, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the widow; Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son, and Frank L. Crocker, completed the intermediate accounting which will be on file tomorrow in the surrogate's court.

The estate is less than one-half the value of the property left by Mr. Whitney's brother, Payne, when he died May 25, 1927, and less than a third of the amount of the Payne Whitney property fixed in an accounting two years later, after many of Payne's securities had been sold at the peak of the market. The original valuation of $185,879,748 of Payne's estate was increased by $52,731,210 in that period.

An analysis of the Payne Whitney accounting showed that many of the holdings were retained and lost subsequently much of their appreciation in value. The fact that when Harry Payne Whitney died security values were lower accounts in part for the smaller comparative value of his estate. The Payne Whitney estate was the largest ever appraised in America.

How Estate Was Divided.

The chief items in the Harry Payne Whitney estate were securities and other personal property, $66,343,137; New York real estate, $320,249, and real estate elsewhere, $243,772. He owned municipal, state and federal land bank bonds worth $14,969,237, all of which are exempt from state and federal taxes, while his largest holding of municipal issues was $4,529,500 in New York city corporation stock and bonds.

Mr. Whitney's thoroughbred horses, constituting one of the largest breeding farms and racing establishments in this country, were valued at $912,700. They were appraised at various race tracks and at the Whitney breeding farm in Fayette County, Ky., where he had horses worth $599,200.

The accounting states that payments of bequests have been paid as follows:

Mrs. Flora Whitney Miller, daughter, $83,000 in cash and $600,000 in bonds.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son, $315,000 cash and $1,000,00 in bonds.

C. MacCulloch Miller, son-in-law, $100,000 cash and $400,000 in securities.

Barbie McKee Henry, son-in-law, $40,000 cash and $400,000 in securities.

Mr. Whitney's will provided specific bequests of more than $6,000,000 for his three children, his two son-in-laws and a few employés, while his wife got his Westbury property outright with all his personal effects, and the life use of the Fifth avenue residence. The residuary estate was divided into four parts, one of which goes outright to his son when the latter is 35 years old, and a second in trust for life. The other parts are held for the lifetime of the two daughters, and go ultimately to their children.

149 IN CONGRESS ON RECORD FOR VOTE TO REPEAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—A preliminary report on the polls of congress now being conducted by the women's organization for national prohibition reform disclosed today that 55.3 per cent of those answering favored resubmission of the 18th amendment to state conventions for rejection or ratification. In making the report public today Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the organization, said it did not represent the total number for resubmission as the canvass was but half completed.

Letters inquiring as to their stand on resubmission of the prohibition amendment were sent to each of the 531 members of the 72d congress. So far 331 replies have been received, 149 favoring resubmission, 49 opposing resubmission, and 33 noncommittal.

The Poll Question.

The question which was asked each member was:

"Will you vote to consider—and will you vote in favor of—a proposal under Article V. of the constitution of the United States for the repeal of the 18th amendment thereto to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection?"

The division of senators was as follows:

Some Are Noncommittal.

Representative Hull [Rep.], Keller [Dem.], and Rainey [Dem.] of Illinois declined to commit themselves regarding resubmission, although it was pointed out in the report that they are all "considered wet."

GRANDMA BANDIT CONVICTED; FACES TERM IN PRISON

Woman, 67, Guilty of Aiding Holdups.

Mrs. Anna Baranski, 67 years old, known as the "Grandmother Bandit," was found guilty of robbery by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Philip Sullivan late yesterday afternoon. The verdict carries a sentence of from one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

MRS. ANNA BARANSKI.

Court attaches said that Mrs. Baranski was the oldest woman defendant ever tried for crime in Cook county.

Testimony showed that the woman was an accomplice of her son, John Baranski, in the stickup of the drug store of Sol Kapp, 5011 Irving Park boulevard, on July 23.

Demand Marked Bill.

She was alleged to have gone into the store and presented a marked $20 bill. A little later the son and a confederate entered, forced the owner to give them the contents of the cash register and then demanded more money, including the marked bill, which had been hidden.

John Baranski was killed while fleeing from another robbery a few weeks later. On that occasion Mrs. Baranski was sitting in an automobile from which he attempted to escape after it had been wrecked. She was a witness of his death by policemen's bullets.

Attorney Thaddeus Toudor, for the defense, begged the pity of the jury for Mrs. Baranski on the ground of her age and the precarious condition of her health. She is suffering from cancer.

Released from Jail.

When the guilty verdict was rendered Attorney Toudor requested a new trial, and arguments on this motion were set for Dec. 14. Judge Rudolph Desort, who accepted the verdict in the absence of Judge Sullivan, denied a plea that the grandmother bandit be allowed freedom on bail, but Judge Sullivan later consented and Mrs. Baranski was released from jail.

Mr. Toudor said that if his client is denied a retrial he will request that she be placed on probation.

"She has only a short time to live," he asserted.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Edward Sorki, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory; Tony Novosartov, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Les Churchman, murder, sentenced to 40 years in the penitentiary; Jerry Matejka, murder, sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter Stanton.

Ezra Moody, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Thomas Backner, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Clyde Backner, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

CLUB EMPLOYES ARE SEIZED ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Harry Dalkin, 8033 South Shore drive, and Frank Helmick, 8020 Coles avenue, bus boys employed at the South Shore Country club, 71st street and South Shore drive, were arrested last night by the Woodlawn police on the complaint of Charles Krangel, 8216 Dorchester avenue, a waiter employed by the club.

Krangel told the police that the boys, who are both 19 years old, held him up with a revolver as he was about to leave the grounds early on Thanksgiving day. At the time of the robbery he recognized both, but hesitated to tell the police. Krangel's loss was $217, he said.

BANDITS LOCK MOTHER, BABY IN CLOSET; FLEE

Mrs. Raymond Letourneau and her 3 year old son, Raymond Jr., were locked in a closet yesterday afternoon by two Negro burglars whom they surprised as they were looting the Letourneau home at 6739 Ogleaby avenue. They remained in the cramped quarters until Mr. Letourneau returned two hours later and released them.

The Negroes escaped with $100, three fur coats and a diamond ring. The total value of their plunder was $2,500.

Another victim of a similar robbery was Mrs. Eleanor Hoffman, 3842 West 14th street. She admitted two men who pretended they had a package to deliver and they overpowered her and thrust her into a closet. They departed with $25 and two rings valued at $1,200.

Mrs. Hazel Schultz, 2120 Gladys avenue, was bound and gagged in her home by a man who had come to her door in the guise of a beggar. He escaped with $158, a watch and a diamond ring.

STARS TO SHINE AT GOLDEN CARDS PLAY THURSDAY

Will Aid at Parties in Big Hotels.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Thursday night of this week is Golden Cards night in Chicago. But from the plans and programs under way in the big hotels, in and out of the loop, it looks also as though it were going to be theatrical night, and fashion promenade night, and a few other things beside.

MISS RUTH STREETER.

For the extent and diversity of the merriment planned to follow the auction and contract matches indicated strongly yesterday that though the first part of the evening might be sacred to Charles True Adams and the proponents of grand slams, the nonbridge playing world is determined to have a hand in the tournament aftermath. What that will constitute was plainly evident in the schedules of music and dancing, of refreshments and vaudeville turns, of willowy models attired in the next thing for Palm Beach and Michigan avenue, and in a general good time.

Revue at Chicago Beach.

Another fashion revue was announced yesterday by Marshall Field and company, to be staged at the Chicago Beach hotel. Half a dozen models will display midwinter and winter resort costumes for the guests, in addition to the musical program already announced. This will include solos by Agatha Lewis, prize winning soprano of the 1930 Chicagoland Music festival; dances by the Ethel and Gertrude Morgan School of Dancing artists, and duets by Ruth Streeter, soprano, and Henry Phillips, tenor.

Stars of the radio, the Civic Opera, the theater, and of the dance studios of the city are proffering their services to help put with the functions in prospect at the big hotels.

Charles Hackett, one of the country's most popular operatic tenors, and Serafina di Leo, newest and youngest dramatic soprano on the roster of the Chicago Civic Opera, yesterday gave their assurances to Miss Virginia de la Court, in charge of the activities at the Blackstone, that they would be present and take part in the program there. They are to be presented by Herbert Rawlinson, matinee idol and star of the stage, screen and radio.

Other celebrities who will come from their stage work to make their bows in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone include Miss Zita Johann and Glenn Anders, stars of "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," at the Blackstone theater, and Charles Laughton, star of "Payment Deferred," who is making his initial offstage appearance before an American crowd at that time. He recently came to this country from England, and will bring with him Mrs Laughton.

Another starlet that will twinkle for the throng at the Blackstone is Gale Hinton, a rising young "blues" singer.

At the Belden-Stratford hotel, which has been selected as the rendezvous of the Renaissance club for its games, Arnold Shircliffe, catering manager, yesterday announced preparations to accommodate as many players as wish to avail themselves of the ball room facilities. A buffet supper will be served free to those either taking part in the games, or who pay the individual $2 fee, he reported. A musical program is in prospect.

Events at Knickerbocker.

Allan Hurst, manager of the Knickerbocker, is preparing to serve refreshments also to those who take part in the tournament or who wish to enjoy the supplementary program. Edward J. Tobin is directing the arrangements for the bridge games, and Miss Earlene Edwards is providing the features of the evening.

Down at the Shoreland hotel on the south side, numerous attractions are being slated by Miss Jessie Bradshaw and Mrs. Harriet Michael to make the event memorable as the gala evening of the year. The latest addition to what they term their "glittering galaxy" of talent for the occasion is Olga Cook, who scored a notable success here as the star of the "Student Prince."

SUES LADY HEATH FOR DIVORCE AND NAMES HUSBAND

LONDON, Dec. 1.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—The London Daily Mail this morning quotes Sir James Heath as saying he had filed a petition here for a divorce from Lady Heath, naming her new husband, Reginald Williams, as co-respondent.

Lady Mary Heath, noted British flyer, and George Anthony Reginald Williams, also an English aviator, were married at Lexington, Ky., Nov. 13.

RUSSIAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM ARC DE TRIOMPHE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Nicolai Dunajer, a White Russian youth, leaped to his death from the top of the Arc de Triomphe, famous victory arch built by Napoleon Bonaparte straddling one end of the Champs Elysees, today. He plunged 164 feet to the pavement. The body barely missed hitting sightseers standing near the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Dunajer's death plunge continues the suicide tradition among members of the poverty stricken exile Russian colony in Paris. One of the most conspicuous was that of Anna Obrinski, 20 year old fiancee of a Russian prince, who plunged from the highest balcony of the Eiffel tower last August. Her cousin, a girl with whom she had been chatting over a cup of tea, attempted to follow her over the railing.

Dunajer ended his life after losing his job as delivery boy. The high rate of Russian suicides is blamed by some members of the colony on the belief that the French refuse to give them work. The exiles complain that, although they fought loyally for the allied cause in the war, they have never been treated on the same plane with soldiers of the other allies.

PRESS OF TOKIO SAYS U. S. BARES REAL ATTITUDE

Declares Stimson Affair Shows Lack of Faith.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 1.—[Tuesday.]—The Japanese press in editorial comment today on the situation created by the statements in an Associated Press Paris agency dispatch on the Manchurian trouble, wrongly attributed to Secretary of State Stimson, without exception today takes the attitude that it is gratifying that the misunderstanding has been cleared up.

There is one thing, however, which the press feels that this issue has brought forth. This is, the newspapers agree that the true attitude of the United States towards Japan has been revealed.

Asahi Nichi, Asahi Hochi and all other papers agree that while heretofore Japan believed that the United States placed confidence in her, it is now apparent that such is just the opposite. It has been proved, the papers declare, that America suspects Japan and is not relying upon Japan's word, which they feel is greatly to be regretted.

New Action Near Tsitsihar.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Dec. 1.—[Tuesday.]—About 5,000 Chinese troops under one of Gen. Ma Chansban's generals yesterday occupied the Chinese village of Kanchin, 15 miles northeast of Tsitsihar, according to reports received here. No attack occurred, it was added, but the Japanese evacuation of Tsitsihar, which was progressing, has been temporarily stopped.

Japan Sends Reinforcements.

[Copyright: By Associated Press.]

MUKDEN, Nov. 30.—Gen. Ma Chansan, diminutive Chinese commander whose army was turned into a fleeing rabble two weeks ago in the Angangchi-Taoerhar battle, has reorganized his scattered forces and is advancing on Taoerhar, Japanese headquarters here said today.

Information of Gen. Ma's movements, gathered by the Japanese intelligence service, was considered so menacing that reinforcements were dispatched to Tsitsihar.

The garrison at the walled city, reduced to a few battalions after the occupation had been effected, has been ordered to be in readiness to move at a moment's notice.

The strength of the reinforcements leaving here today was not announced, but the unit was described as "the main body of a brigade." Gen. Ma's army was said to be advancing from the direction of Hailun.

Charges New Chinese Threat.

Meanwhile, the Japanese army of 20,000 which started last week from Mukden for Chinchow, north of the great wall, but was recalled midway, has almost completed its withdrawal from the Chinchow area, headquarters announced today.

An official Japanese spokesman said the Chinese are massing troops between Chinchow and Tahushan as the Japanese withdrew.

A Japanese official communique said that airplane observers reported seven trains, believed to contain Chinese troops, as having proceeded to Tahushih from Chinchow in two hours yesterday. Other Japanese planes, the communique said, observed 1,200 infantry, 3,000 cavalry and 30 pieces of artillery at various points near Tahushen.

New Troops Reach Tientsin.

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 1 [Tuesday.]—(AP)—A Japanese regiment arrived here today and was lined up on the English bund awaiting orders to enter the Japanese area in Tientsin. The nature of their equipment, which included machine guns and winter overshoes and gloves, indicated that the regiment did not expect to be stationed in the Japanese concession.

Peace Rumors Denied.

PEIPING, China, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Both Chinese and Japanese authorities here denied today that any agreement had been concluded to stop hostilities in Manchuria.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed Manchurian governor, issued a statement saying there had been misrepresentation of his conference with M. Yano, Japanese charge d'affaires. "M. Yano informally asked my opinion regarding a proposed neutral zone along the Peiping-Mukden railroad," Marshal Chang said. "It is entirely contrary to fact to say there was any negotiation or agreement signed or that any understanding arrived at."

China Abandons Demand for Specific Date of Evacuation

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 30.—China tonight announced herself ready to abandon her key position in the Manchurian dispute—insistence on setting a fixed date for the withdrawal of Japanese troops.

In a statement issued tonight the Chinese delegation to the league of nations council declared that if the neutral observers confirm the reported withdrawal of Japanese forces from the Chinchow region to the east bank of the Liao Ho river, then China will "take the draft resolution of the council as it stands without specifying a time limit for complete evacuation."

League Passes the Buck.

This resolution obliges the Japanese to make only an academic pledge to evacuate Manchuria and passes the responsibility for settling the whole question on to the proposed investigating committee, which cannot possibly report back to the council before next spring.

Meantime, there is nothing to prevent the Japanese from hanging on to Manchuria—for that matter, the league is unable to give the Chinese any definite assurance that they will ever get Manchuria back.

Strange as it may seem, this does not mean that everything is settled. Although the Chinese insistence on specifying a date for evacuation has been the main stumbling block for the last three weeks, the council is in no mood to cry "hurrah" tonight. For by one of those curious coincidences that has characterized these negotiations all along, the Japanese picked today to throw a new monkey wrench into the machinery.

Japan Asks "Hunting License."

M. Ito, legal expert of the Tokio delegation, told the drafting committee that the resolution would have to contain a clause giving the Japanese a hunting license to go after bandits and to reoccupy the evacuated territory if necessary.

Recalling that the Japanese have never done anything but hunt bandits, according to their own accounts, the drafting committee and the council of twelve after them decided this would be going too far. They agreed that the league could not be put in the position of giving legal authority to Japanese punitive expeditions.

Ito made the same demand yesterday, but after several hours of argument the council thought they had brought him around. Today he popped in, sad and apologetic, and announced that he had received new instructions from Tokio insisting on reserving the right to cope with bandits.

Council Still Deadlocked.

And that is not all. Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate, tonight called on Aristide Briand, French foreign minister and council chairman, and unofficially but flatly backed up the note published yesterday pointing out Tokio's objections to neutral observers assuming any sort of authority for arranging a truce.

The question of a neutral zone in the Chinchow area is still to be threshed out. Despite the Chinese surrender, the deadlock is just as pronounced as ever. As a matter of fact, a close inspection shows that the Chinese really are not giving up cold. Their declaration carefully specified that "naturally, any new Japanese advance toward Chinchow or any similar aggressive operation would create a new situation, requiring reconsideration of the whole arrangement."

And they offer only to accept the resolution as it stands. Thus, if the council makes any amendment to the resolution to please Japan, China will automatically be released from acceptance.

SEA DIVERS NEAR GOAL IN HUNT FOR $5,270,000 GOLD

Treasure Room in Sunken Ship Is Opened.

BREST, France, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A grim battle against the sea, which has already engulfed a ship and taken 12 lives since the fight began, is going on 28 miles off this port, where the Italian salvage ship Artiglio II. is trying to recover the treasure of the sunken liner Egypt.

Five tons of gold bars and 45 tons of silver, worth about $5,270,000, is the prize. The metal lies in the strongroom of the Egypt, 336 feet down, 25 miles southwest of Ushant and 50 miles off Point du Raz. It is a spot swept by vicious tides where divers can work only at slack water and only in fair weather.

Ship Sunk in 1920.

The Egypt was sunk in a crash with the French steamer Seine on May 20, 1920, with the loss of 100 lives. Swirling tides and errors of navigation made her almost impossible to find and she was not located until Aug. 31, 1930.

Special diving equipment, designed for the job, was put into use and divers from the Artiglio went down and identified her. They were working almost blind, locked in steel armored suits and fighting tides and cross tides that swept them off their feet without warning.

Undersea Blast Kills 12.

For three months the men worked when tide and the weather would let them. In that time they opened the wreck, lifted the captain's safe to the surface and blasted their way into the decking. Then came the tragedy.

The Artiglio had been driven away by bad weather and was trying her hand at salvaging the American munitions ship Florence, sunk by a bomb off Saint Nazaire in 1918.

Divers went down to the Florence, laid a depth bomb and returned to the surface. When the charge was fired tons of wartime shells in the hull of the Florence exploded. The tiny salvage ship which had been a British minesweeper during the war, was almost blown to bits and she sank in a few minutes. Of her crew of 19 only 7 men were saved.

In Sight of Treasure.

Work was begun again on the Egypt in May, 1931, by a second ship with a new crew. All summer and fall they have been working away. The weather has been against them. Storms have kept them tied up in Brest for days at a time. Deceptive calms have turned to wind as the men went over the side.

They have not yet recovered a single bar of gold or silver, but they have cut through the decks and opened the treasure chamber. The end is in sight and if they get working weather they may finish the job this year. If not they expect to do it next spring.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

WIFE MOTHERS "OTHER WOMAN" AND HER CHILD

Grotesque Triangle Is Bared in New York.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—A love triangle with a grotesque twist, worthy of Freud, was revealed today as Mrs. May Gledhill, a pretty Canadian, lay fighting for her life in Bellevue hospital against an illness which authorities believe may have been caused by poison.

The sick woman is a native of Montreal, where she won recognition as an expert swimmer and was chosen to pose for a Canadian railway advertisement as "the ski girl." She is reported to be distantly related to Sir Robert Peel, British peer, whose wife is Beatrice Lillie, the actress.

In the modest Floral Park home from which Miss Gledhill was taken to the hospital, lives Mrs. Inez Connor, 41, whose husband, William Connor, 51, once a wealthy consulting engineer, is serving a sentence in Vermont state prison for forgery. And with Mrs. Connor is a pretty 3 year old boy, whom both she and Miss Gledhill call "my baby."

Miss Gledhill's Son.

The boy is the son of Connor and the Canadian girl. When Connor was sent to prison, a little over a year ago, Mrs. Connor took Miss Gledhill and her baby into her home. Together the two women had been mothering the illegitimate baby and awaiting the return of Connor from prison, until yesterday, when Miss Gledhill, who had feared deportation to Canada, mysteriously collapsed after a visit from two men who called themselves federal immigration officers. She was taken to Nassau hospital, where she refused to tell whether she had taken poison.

Mrs. Connor, in her home tonight, said she didn't believe "dear May" had taken poison. She said she thought she had been simply overcome by dread—that she had long feared that she might be sent back to Canada and separated from her child.

The wife revealed that since going to prison Connor has written constantly to both her and his young mistress; letters filled with tender passages.

Loves Both, He Writes.

"He informs me he is still in love with me, but he also tells May that she holds all his affections. We read each other's letters when they arrive," Mrs. Connor said. "I used to think they were both equally responsible in this affair, but after reading some of the letters he has sent to the girl I think he's more than 75 per cent to blame.

"However, I believe that May in a way is responsible for his downfall. He dissipated a once prosperous business and was driven to forgery while laboring under his infatuation for her."

The romance between the young woman and the engineer began in 1925, in front of the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Montreal, Mrs. Connor said. She was able to fix the date because she and her husband had just returned from a reception to the prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George.

"We were parked in our car outside the hotel," she continued, "when my husband spied Miss Gledhill. She was weeping bitterly. We accosted her and then drove her home—and that started it all.

"Soon they were conducting an affair under my very eyes," she said. "I can't blame May; she was young and innocent. It was my husband, his gifts, and attentions that turned her head. I started divorce proceedings once, but he pursuades me to drop them."

Mrs. Connor said she and her son, William Jr., were living in Greenwich, Conn., when Connor was arrested in Floral Park for the Vermont authorities. When she arrived at the jail the girl was there, too.

"'I want you to take care of May and the baby,' my husband said to me," Mrs. Connor continued. "I moved to Floral Park and rented this home. I love May as a mother would love a daughter."

Throughout the interview, the little boy remained by Mrs. Connor's side. She referred to him as "my baby."

IRISH MILITARY COURT CONVICTS YANK AS 'REBEL'

Will Deport Him After Six Months' Hard Labor.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The first man sentenced by the new military tribunal created by the public safety act, which heard its first cases today, was a naturalized American citizen.

John Mulgrew of Mulranny, County Mayo, who went to America in 1923, became a naturalized citizen, and returned a year ago, was sentenced to six months' hard labor for being a member of Saor Eire, outlawed communist organization.

Deportation After Sentence.

The court decreed that when he has served his time Mulgrew must be deported. Evidence was produced that he was a member of the executive council of Saor Eire.

The new tribunal of three men, meeting in the Collins barracks, disposed of its cases rapidly. Little attention was paid to it in Dublin. A few persons gathered outside the barracks gate when the prisoners arrived, but they were soon dispersed.

Two young farmer boys, Daniel McKiernan and Peter Mitchell, from Drumdiffer, County Leitrim, who were charged with belonging to the Irish Republican army and with possessing arms, promised to behave themselves in the future and sentence was deferred.

Aimed to Curb Unrest.

John Sheehan of Beaufort, County Kerry, a farm worker charged with being a member of the Irish Republican army, was remanded in custody of the court.

The public safety bill was passed after a series of disturbances in the vicinity of the Ulster Free State border. It permits trial of offenses against the government before the military tribunal.

BOVINE SUPERIORITY TEST

DEVISED BY HENRICI TO INSURE BEEF OF HIGHEST QUALITY

ONE of the reasons that roast beef seems to taste so much more appetizing at Henrici's than elsewhere, is the very high standard of quality insisted on by Henrici stewards.

As with other meats, only the choicest prime grades will do. With this as a basis, it is little wonder that Henrici's famous chefs sometimes find it hard to escape the charge of kitchen magic.

Rare, medium, or well done, deliciously seasoned and swimming in juice, a thick, broad slice of Henrici's roast beef, flanked by tender, flavor-fresh vegetables—ah-h-h!

BIG TAXPAYERS OPEN DRIVE FOR CITY PAY FUNDS

Pledge Their Assistance to Mayor in Crisis.

the total appropriation would have been exhausted and a deficit of $6,700,000 created.

"The situation required immediate and drastic economies, and a stiff program of retrenchment. As a result, it is estimated that the year will end with an approximate surplus of $1,000,000, or a net saving of $7,700,000 on the appropriations."

The economies effected in the various departments were estimated by the mayor as follows:

Police	$1,500,000
Fire	500,000
Gas and electricity	400,000
Health	200,000
Repair of streets	1,000,000
Comptroller's office	200,000
Interest on tax warrants	1,000,000
Miscellaneous departments	1,500,000

"Even this saving," Mayor Cermak continued, "has apparently not had the effect of reestablishing the confidence of the taxpayer, as evidenced by the fact that there are still 20 per cent of 1928 taxes unpaid, and approximately 30 per cent of the 1929 taxes unpaid.

"Added to this is the prospective reduction in valuations for 1931 and 1932, estimated at 14 per cent.

"In order to meet this condition, the appropriations for the year 1932 recommended by the controller are $9,264,415 less than for the same purposes for the year 1931.

"No one, I believe, can question our sincerity in retrenchment of expenses to the absolute minimum, and we believe that the city will be able to pay cash, but something must be done immediately to restore credit, so that we may secure cash for the payment of salaries and supplies.

Points to Salary Needs.

"School teachers have received only one month's pay since last April. Employes of the public library and the auditorium have been paid up to Nov. 15. All other employes are paid up to date, but there is no more money in sight—for even policemen and firemen—during the winter months.

"Other obligations for pay rolls and vouchers for all funds, except schools, aggregating approximately $30,000,000 will be due by the end of the year.

"To meet this we have total cash on hand, and estimated receipts to the end of the year, of $18,700,000.

"In addition to these liabilities, we are faced with a possible default in the payment of bonds due Jan. 1, 1932, aggregating $9,000,000, and interest of $5,500,000. This would be nothing less than a catastrophe. It would mean that our bonds would not be acceptable as good quotes for a period ranging from six months to 18 years, as an investment for trust funds, savings banks, insurance companies and the like. It would result in forcing us to pay a much higher rate of interest on our bonds to make them salable at all.

"We have shown the dire necessity, and something of our efforts to correct the condition, but there remains at this time only one solution for immediate help.

"We hope and trust that your desire to be of help to the city, as well as from a purely selfish standpoint of a good investment, will prompt the purchase of these securities."

Woodhull Joins in Plea.

Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee of the sanitary district, added a plea for helping the city and schools.

"The credit of all of the local governments has been impaired," he said. "While the sanitary district has no 1928 or 1929 tax warrants outstanding, it has been unable to get bids on its bonds recently. That is a very serious matter, because the district has been ordered by the federal government to make improvements which will cost in the neighborhood of $120,000,000. If the city and school credit is improved, the district will get an indirect benefit."

Some of the statements of leaders, as their names were called for an expression of attitude, are as follows:

Sewell Avery, for Montgomery Ward & Co.—"That company will do its share. The U. S. Gypsum company has already purchased."

Harvey A. Fleming, Chicago Surface Lines—"We have purchased liberally already. I feel certain that if we can aid more we will."

H. L. Hollis, Potter Palmer estate—"While I am not authorized to make a commitment, I feel certain the Palmer estate will purchase some of the tax warrants."

K. J. Doyle, Commonwealth Edison company—"We have been attempting to aid the board of education by accepting its scrip, and we are always willing to do our part for the community."

James Simpson, Marshall Field & Co.—"We have already purchased more 1930 warrants that we can utilize in paying taxes, but we will go further."

John T. Pirie, Carson Pirie Scott & Co.—"We always try to do our share and will this time."

B. J. Mullaney, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company—"While I am not authorized to pledge definitely, our attitude is indicated by the fact that we have accepted about $1,000,000 of the school board scrip, and we can be expected to do our part."

F. O. Hale, Illinois Bell Telephone company—"We have already purchased 1930 warrants to about half of our taxes, but we will be glad to take more."

G. A. Kelly, Crane company—"While I can't make a specific promise today, the Crane company always comes forward, and I believe it will this time."

A. J. Stilwell, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company—"We already hold a large block of the tax warrants, but I think we will help along still more."

P. K. Wrigley, Wrigley company—"We will do our share."

H. D. Pettibone, Chicago Title and Trust company—"You may count on our cooperation."

Karl Eitel, Bismarck hotel—"We will help all we can."

Albert H. Veeder, Swift & Co.—"I will recommend a purchase."

C. R. McKay, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank—"I will be glad to recommend your advice to the governors."

Chicago and Other Cities Against Measure.

Downstate proponents of an income tax for Illinois will fight hard for its passage in the senate this week, it was predicted last night. The bill, prepared by the governor's tax conference, is on second reading in the upper chamber and a motion to advance it to third reading, the passage stage, is expected today or tomorrow.

Senators Simon Lantz [Rep., Cowlerville] and Henry M. Dunlap [Rep., Savoy] have indicated that they will push the measure with all the power they possess.

Lantz was the sponsor of an income tax bill in the regular session earlier in the year. He forced it through the senate by a vote of 30 to 17—the Cook county bloc being bitter dissenters—but it died in the house. The Chicagoans in the senate appear just as opposed to the current bill as they were to the old one and they say they have some of their colleagues from the larger cities outside Chicago with them now.

Senators Ponder Sales Tax.

Most of the gossip concerning finance measures emanated from a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman yesterday, where Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield], the chairman, and a senate subcommittee met to consider whether it should recommend that the senate pass a general sales tax. A hearing was held Saturday in the city hall, where prominent merchants and tax experts advised against such a levy.

The committee left for Springfield last night, still being "open minded," Searcy said, as to the advisability of the tax.

One of the subcommittee members, Senator Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora] said he plans to ask the senate today to invite Mayor Cermak and Gov. Emmerson to consult each other and attempt to evolve a joint program of legislation for the special session. Neither chamber of the assembly has gone far to date toward passing any measure.

Cook County Gets Help.

Some downstate senators are expected to be with Cook county against the income tax proposal. Victor P. Michel [Rep., Peoria] has already expressed disgust with the entire progress of the special session and has introduced a resolution calling for a sine die adjournment. Kessinger would not be a likely voter for the IRX, his friends believe, and Searcy said yesterday that he would not vote for it "unless I am assured it will help Cook county, and no one has told me yet that it will."

The program of the house calls for a somewhat quieter week. Mayor Cermak was scheduled to appear before the house today to answer questions as to what he favors in the way of financial relief legislation, but he will not be able to make the trip because of the city council meeting today. He will probably go to Springfield next week.

CITY EFFICIENCY EXPERT RAPPED; AWAIT PAY CUTS

Aldermen Delay Jacobs' Request for $30,000.

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, smilingly withstood some rapid fire questioning and sarcastic comment from members of the city council finance committee yesterday when he appeared to support one of his recommendations for reductions in the number of city employes.

Earlier in the meeting, when Jacobs was absent, the aldermen had freely indicated their attitude toward the efficiency engineer during their consideration of Jacobs' request for $30,000 to continue his survey of city departments. The request is in addition to $50,000 voted to him during the summer.

"Jacobs practically guaranteed to do the job for $50,000," said Ald. John Toman [23d]. "His survey is a joke, and anyway I'm sick and tired of feeding experts. This committee has an efficiency staff that should be able to do the same job."

Wants New Billing System.

The specific recommendation of Jacobs was to supplant 94 employes in the water department by installing a new system of billing machines. A counter proposal, which the aldermen understood would not mean the ouster of any employes, but which Jacobs said would abolish 57 jobs, was submitted by Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works.

After an hour's questioning, during which Jacobs was accused of "beating around the bush" and giving technical involved explanations, the aldermen referred consideration of the recommendation and the $30,000 request to a special committee session called for tomorrow morning.

In the verbal lashing of Jacobs was seen an expression of the uneasiness among city hall employes who are anxiously waiting to know what positions Jacobs will recommend to be abolished and the attitude which some of the aldermen will take toward Jacobs' recommendations for appropriations in the 1932 budget.

Before Council Today.

Jacobs' recommendation for appropriations of $9,647,496 less than those of the current year will affect more than 3,000 employes, either by abolishing their positions entirely or by cutting their salaries through demotions in civil service ratings. The details of his appropriations will be submitted to the council today.

The details show that Jacobs has eliminated a number of cabinet or other executive positions. Among them are the commissioner of public welfare, city physician, secretary and deputy fire commissioner, secretary to the police department, superintendent of compensation, deputy city treasurer, chief deputy sealer, assistant superintendent of licenses, and paymaster.

In the police department he recommends that whoever is appointed chief inspector be given $3,500 in addition to his regular salary and six inspectors be paid $3,000 extra compensation. He has eliminated 22 sergeants, 6 lieutenants of detectives, and 6 policewomen. The fire department loses 13 division marshals and 3 battalion chiefs.

Council Committees Lose.

The council committees lose their stenographic and secretarial help, and are advised to seek legal advice from the corporation counsel instead of hiring high priced attorneys. The smoke department loses 10 men and 49 bridge tenders are ousted. These instances are indicative of the cuts Jacobs has made.

Commissioner of Police Allman also appeared before the committee. Upon his recommendation the aldermen approved an appropriation of $30,000, which will pay for the services of Bruce Smith, New York police expert, in reorganizing the police department. Before his appearance some of the aldermen had suggested eliminating Smith, as well as Jacobs, from the city pay rolls.

JONES FOR TAX INCREASE, BUT 'NOT TOO MUCH'

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—While expressing the opinion that taxes will have to be raised, Chairman Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] of the senate committee on appropriations today advised against "making taxes so high as to adversely affect industry." His observations on the tax situation were made at the White House, following a conference with President Hoover.

WESLEY L. JONES. [Pictograph.]

Senator Jones said he favored increased taxes on luxuries. He expressed the belief that income taxes could be revised upward without injury to taxpayers. The tax legislation, he said, should be so framed that "those who are best able to pay should be required to pay." In order to meet the treasury deficit that will pile up despite tax action by congress, Senator Jones urged short term loans by the treasury.

Senator Jones said he had thought all along that taxes were being reduced too fast. He expressed the view that government expenditures would not be reduced to any great extent.

Asked about the proposal to enact a sales tax law, Senator Jones said he did not favor a general sales tax.

ROBBERS KILL SHOPKEEPER IN THEFT OF $90

Adolph Caravetta, 38 years old, was shot nine times and killed last night when he attempted to resist four armed bandits in his fruit and vegetable store at 735 North Damen avenue.

The murderers escaped in a large automobile operated by a fifth man. It is believed the same men committed several other robberies in the district earlier.

Caravetta, his brother, Angelo, a delivery boy, Edward Galli, and a patron, Louis Mendicino, 1953 Superior street, were in the place when the robbers entered. One of the robbers took $90 from the cash drawer and then ordered the four victims into a rear room. Caravetta delayed, rummaging in a corner for a shotgun. The bandits decided to depart, and as they backed away the grocer advanced. One of the men fired but missed. A second halted and, taking deliberate aim, fired nine bullets into Caravetta's body with an automatic pistol.

TREASURY BANS COOK BONDS FOR POSTAL SAVINGS

Technical Default Brings Action by U. S.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The U. S. department of the treasury notified the county board yesterday that its bonds are not acceptable as investments for the postal savings funds because the county on June 1, last, technically defaulted on $1,451,000 of bonds and $417,400 of interest—a total of $1,868,400.

Immediately the county controller wrote in reply that there was no actual default. He explained that the Chicago banks paid bonds and interest coupons presented and that the county later, by the issuance of refunding bonds, repaid the banks.

Hopes to Lift Ban.

M. J. O'Connor, assistant deputy controller, hopes to lift the federal ban by the explanation. He looked upon the ruling as seriously injurious. If insurance companies, savings banks and trusts of several states follow the treasury department, the interest rate on county bonds will have to be increased to make them marketable, which, in turn, will increase taxes.

This default was unusually offensive to local investment houses because the county used cash on hand to pay salaries of employes instead of paying the bonds. They complained bitterly.

On Nov. 1 the west park board defaulted on $660,000 of bonds and $68,760 of interest, which has not been paid.

18 Million Due in 2 Months.

In the next two months the principal local governments have obligated themselves to pay $18,716,326 in bonds and interest, distributed by settlement dates as follows:

Due.	By.	Amount.
Dec. 7, 1931—Sanitary district		$ 1,200,000
	Forest preserves	152,000
	County	392,380
Total due today		$ 1,744,380
Dec. 15, 1931—Forest preserves		$31,500
Feb. 1, 1932—City		$1,770,428
	Sanitary district	1,123,965
	Schools	708,375
	Forest preserves	633,000
	South parks	339,400
	West parks	986,619
	Lincoln park	94,795
Total due Jan. 1		$14,934,536
Feb. 15, 1932—Forest preserves		297,000
Feb. 1, 1932—County		1,186,250
	South parks	345,500
	Schools	92,000
	Forest preserves	85,000
Total due Feb. 1		$ 1,868,410
Grand total due in 2 months		18,716,326

Of the grand total due in the next 60 days, the city's share is $11,779,435, the sanitary district's part is $5,323,965, the county's $1,578,620, the forest preserves' $1,299,700, the board of education $800,375, the south park commissioners $584,960, the west park board $286,033, and the Lincoln park commission $94,725.

Transfer Avoids Default.

The cash is not now in hand to meet these obligations and it is not known whether sufficient money can be obtained as the bonds mature. To meet the county and forest preserve bonds due today the county treasurer late yesterday transferred money from other accounts.

The cash transfer was made after a day spent in seeking money for the forest preserves from other sources. One hope had been a bond issue of $500,000, but officials were unable to obtain a bid.

In another effort to get cash to meet the bonds due Jan. 1, Controller M. S. Szymczak announced yesterday that payments to contractors for work done have been discontinued. That will save some money, which may be used to pay bonds. In addition, the controller asked a legal opinion on whether he may use approximately $4,850,000 in the city's aggregate of funds. About $1,850,000 of this amount is due contractors; $1,600,000 is awaiting the retirement of water certificates, and $750,000 is vehicle tax cash.

City Controller Szymczak has been hunting for a buyer of $13,600,000 worth of bonds for nearly a month, and has no definite promise of a purchaser so far.

Nearly all of the local governments have the power to issue refunding bonds. That is what the city is attempting to do, but has found no purchasers to date. But the controller and mayor are still hopeful that the city will avoid a default.

3 POSSIBLE ECONOMY PROGRAMS PUT UP TO COUNTY'S EMPLOYES

Three plans whereby the county government may meet the expected $3,000,000—or 15 per cent—reduction in the corporate fund for 1932 were presented to county employes yesterday in an initial "economy program" meeting with the executive officials and county commissioner.

The plans are: A uniform salary cut for all employes; a reduction of 15 to 20 per cent in the personnel of all county offices, or a combination of salary cuts and a stagger system of layoffs for all county workers. A committee of six commissioners was appointed to confer with department heads and employes to determine which method will be used.

After Michael O'Connor, assistant deputy controller, had explained the limits of the county's financial resources several of the officials expressed themselves willing to cooperate. Some of the statements were:

County Clerk Sweitzer—"A salary reduction is the best solution, I believe. The employes would welcome that action far more than they would a reduction in their numbers."

State's Attorney Swanson — "As long as the program affects all offices alike I am for it 100 per cent."

County Recorder Smith—"I've already made drastic reductions in my office but I'll gladly agree to any plan the commissioners choose."

Assessor John Conroy, secretary of the board of assessors — "The best thing I can promise is to stay within the 1932 budget. I do promise that for my office."

Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the county finance committee — "The county is going to economize regardless of whom it hurts."

Chance Saves Geneva Man from Death by Auto Gas

The arrival of a meter inspector saved the life yesterday of Walter J. Hogans, 38 years old, a Geneva business man. Hogans was found unconscious by the inspector in his garage in the rear of his home at 530 Franklin boulevard in the Kane county town. The motor of his car was running and the garage was filled with fumes. Hogans' rescuer carried him into the house. Hogans is treasurer of the Geneva Organ company.

FIND 3 BILLIONS IN TRUST TAXED AT 1% OF VALUE

Banks Stipulate Amount in Jarecki's Court.

Evidence that trust estates worth more than $3,000,000,000, administered by loop banks, were assessed at less than 1 per cent of their total value for personal property taxation was given to County Judge Jarecki yesterday. It was presented in the taxpayers' suit brought to invalidate the 1928 and 1929 assessments on the ground that favoritism shown personal property by assessing officers placed an inequitable burden on real estate.

The amount of the trust estates administered by the banks was grouped in a lump sum by a stipulation agreed to by bank attorneys. The figures were the same reported by the banks to the state auditor in their annual report required by law.

Totals for Two Years.

On Dec. 27, 1927, twelve institutions controlled personalty in trust estates valued at $2,565,840,216, of which $71,471,944 was cash, according to the stipulation. The twelve institutions were the People's Trust and Savings bank, Northern Trust company, First Trust and Savings bank, Union Trust company, Harris Trust and Savings bank, Chicago Title and Trust company, Central Trust Company of Illinois, National Bank of the Republic, Bank of America, Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank, Illinois Merchants Trust company, Continental National Bank and Trust company.

On Dec. 31, 1928, the stipulation stated, the same banks and the Straus National bank and Chicago Trust company were handling trust personalty valued at $3,125,889,340, including $89,199,123 cash.

Attorneys Morris Schaffer and Roy D. Keehn, representing the plaintiffs in the tax suit, then introduced the records of the board of assessors, showing the personal property assessments placed on these estates. In the 1928 assessment they were $1,401,428, approximately seven-tenths of one per cent of the total valuation. In contrast to that, real estate was assessed in the 1928 reassessment at 27 per cent of the real value as determined by the assessor.

Colin J. Belcher, an assessors' clerk in charge of trust estates, testified that the estate schedules filed with the assessors by the banks were neither signed nor sworn to. He testified that he did not know how the assessors arrived at their tax valuation figures.

A Hunt for Information.

Belcher was asked who would know about the board's assessment methods. He suggested that Paul Weidel, former chief clerk of the board, who died two years ago, would probably have known. Then he named Charles Kesler, another veteran employe of the board, who retired in 1929 and is now living in California. Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington, representing the assessors, said that Adam Wolf, veteran member of the board who died Sunday, would have known.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell then suggested that Judge Jarecki subpoena two former members of the board of assessors, in office when the 1928 and 1929 assessments were made. They are Charles Krutckoff and Charles Ringer, the latter now a member of the state tax commission. Subpoenas were issued for them. Mr. Krutckoff to appear today and Mr. Ringer tomorrow.

UNPAID TEACHERS PLAN SOME HELP TO GREETER GAW

Poverty stricken school teachers, having had but one payday since last April, greeted with enthusiasm last night a proposal that they form a committee to give aid to the duties of George Gaw, the city greeter. The plan was put forth by Miss Jane Chase at a massmeeting of north side teachers at the Lake View high school.

The teachers are to form squads, available for duty day or night. When Greeter Gaw steps from his handsome white limousine and advances to greet the distinguished visitor from out of town, his custom is to say: "Welcome to Chicago, city of opportunity."

The squad of teachers, ragged and wan, will sidle up behind the greeter, advance also upon the distinguished visitor, and in moocher fashion will greet the visitor thus:

"Could you spare us a dime for coffee and doughnuts, mister? We are Chicago school teachers."

City Sealer Grein Opens War on Watered Oysters

City Sealer Joe Grein declared war yesterday on grocers and butchers who are selling a 50-50 mixture of oysters and water at the price of oysters straight. "They can sell by the quart or pound," said Mr. Grein, "but they should give full value. They'll find out I know how much water should be in a bucket of oysters." Suits were filed against eleven dealers accused of delivering wrong measures on oysters and holiday pastry and poultry.

REPORT BAIN KIN NAMED AGAIN IN JURY BANK QUIZ

Fisher Is Charged with Deceiving Auditor.

A second true bill against W. Merle Fisher, vice president and director of the defunct West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, one of the Bain chain of 32 banks which closed last June 9, was reported yesterday by the grand jury. Fisher, a son-in-law of John Bain, head of the banks, was named in a true bill last week.

W. MERLE FISHER.

The new charge against Fisher is "making a false statement intended to deceive the state auditor's office." This charge carries a one to ten year sentence in the penitentiary as a penalty. The true bill last week charged Fisher with permitting large loans to be made to directors and officials without the permission of the entire board of directors. John Bain and John M. Baily, his oldest son, have also been named in similar true bills.

Auditor Makes Call on Bank.

In December, 1930, six months before the banks failed, the state auditor made a call upon the West Englewood bank for a statement of its financial condition. The state auditor makes four such calls a year under the law, making them at any time he chooses.

In the statement signed by Fisher the bank was stated to have no personal overdrafts. At that time the records show that more than $150,000 had been drawn personally by Bain and other officers and personal loans to others totaled more than $1,000,000.

It was pointed out by Henry Ayers, assistant to State's Attorney Swanson, that this false statement led to the bank remaining open another six months, during which time many depositors made deposits which disappeared in the crash.

Directors Sign Statement.

Two directors also signed the statement, it is said. They were Hugo S. Hertel and W. C. Knocke. These two men signed immunity waivers last week and told the grand jurors, it was reported, that the statement was handed to them by Fisher, who said it was correct, and they signed the statement without examining it.

"Will there be any more indictments along this line?" Mr. Ayers was asked.

"That is all today," said Mr. Ayers. "There will be more witnesses tomorrow."

Banks Asks Bain Receiver.

The Straus National Bank and Trust company yesterday filed a creditor's bill in the Circuit court against John Bain, personally, asking for a receiver for him and seeking an injunction restraining him from disposing of any property he may have.

Among those named as persons who may possibly be holding property for Bain are his wife, his sons, his son-in-law, former Senator Charles S. Deneen, eleven banks and more than a score of former employes of the banks.

With members of the Bain family and all the principal witnesses in the Bain bank inquiry also present, Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg today will read a statement concerning Bain's manipulations previous to the failure of the twelve banks.

Judge Feinberg was busy in chambers yesterday preparing the statement. It was said that this statement will deal in no uncertain terms with the methods pursued by Bain in his handling of the banks. The attitude of the Bains and their employés as witnesses during the hearing also will be scored, it was reported. And the statement will finish with a recommendation that action be taken against a number of the witnesses, it was declared.

The judge intimated that "some excitement" was due in court during the reading of the statement. As at the previous hearings, a large force of deputy sheriffs and policemen will be present to keep in order the large crowd of depositors which always jams the courtroom.

Will Continue Hearing.

The judge will continue the hearing for two weeks after reading his statement unless "unforeseen circumstances" intervene, he said. He expressed a hope that when the hearing is resumed, Dec. 15, he will be entitled to question John Bain, who now is in the German Evangelical Deaconess hospital. If "Bain is not well enough to come into court, the judge will hold a courtroom session at the banker's bedside, he declared.

Before reading his statement, Judge Feinberg will put on the witness stand a new witness in the Massillon, O., phase of the Bain investigation. The name of the Ohio city has appeared frequently in the case and also intimation behind all the questioning has been that one of the Bains took a trip to Massillon late in June, presumably for the purpose of hiding funds.

Plan Christmas Dividend.

A Christmas dividend of 10 per cent for depositors in the closed West Central State bank was made probable yesterday, it was announced by Attorney Jacob L. Fox for the receivers. Depositors in this bank have already received a 35 per cent dividend and Mr. Fox said it appeared probable that 50 per cent of the deposits would eventually be returned.

Abe Krecum, who served three days of a thirty day jail sentence for falsifying about his assets, turned over $1,500 in cash yesterday morning and was given 29 days to raise the balance of $1,500 he owed on a note to the bank. He had already paid $2,500 in cash.

Howard W. Elmore, sanitary district trustee, has raised the $36,000 owed the West Englewood bank on two real estate trusts, his attorney, Francis Hinckley, told Judge Feinberg.

H. S. BOY KILLS GIRL RE-ENACTING DOUBLE TRAGEDY

in which the supposedly "empty" gun was loaded. The basement of the Wilson home was searched, and another revolver, a rifle and a knife were found. Wilson said he had a flair for military things, and that he formerly attended the Morgan Park military academy. At the time of the shooting, he wore a military uniform. He was held last night for the inquest.

While the shooting of Constance was unmotivated, the killing of the Wicklund girl had a direct inspiration, police said, and that of thwarted love. When police found young Sio in his den, in the basement of the building, he was unconscious. The revolver lay beside him, and not far away was a postcard on which he had written: "I'm sorry." In one hand he clutched a tan glove, once owned by his sweetheart. On his wrist was her bracelet.

Scattered in the den were books, magazines and odds and ends of a boy's workshop. Sio, detectives were told, aspired to be a scientist or an inventor. In a small chest investigators found letters written by the Wicklund girl, chiding against his jealousy and protesting her love for him. A diary also was found, containing mute scrawlings of his jealousy, and filled with entries the sense of which was: "The time has come for a showdown."

Mrs. Karin Wicklund, mother of Ruth, told police she had asked Sio's father, Matthew, a barber, to stop his son's wooing of her daughter. The father said he had so notified Henry.

A coroner's jury late yesterday returned a verdict that young Sio had murdered the Wicklund girl and then committed suicide. The motive officially designated was "jealousy and puppy love."

TRAIN KILLS CICERO MAN.

Roman Kochnik, 40 years old, 1230 South 51st avenue, Cicero, was killed instantly yesterday when he was struck by a Chicago and Great Northern railroad train at Laramie and Taylor streets.

JUDGE HOLDS 4 FOR ATTEMPT TO 'FIX' COURT CASE

Four men who, it is alleged, tried to fix a case were held for conspiracy to obstruct justice by Judge J. William Brooks in the Boys' court yesterday.

They are Samuel Koppel, 1322 South Harding avenue, a Democratic precinct captain; Morris Kaufman, delicatessen owner at 2113 Division street, and Harold Lefkovitz and his son, Charles, 19 years old, both of 4330 Van Buren street. A south side political hanger on is sought.

The case to have been fixed was that of young Lefkovitz, charged with robbing Kaufman. When the case was first called, Kaufman failed to appear and was fined $50 for contempt. He testified later and on Nov. 25, Lefkovitz was held to the grand jury. That night an anonymous caller telephoned Judge Brooks complaining that $100 had been paid to fix the case. Judge Brooks learned that the money, raised through a raffle, had been paid to the south side political hanger on. Kaufman received $50 as his share. The deal was negotiated through the Lefkovitzes and Koppel, it is charged.

BLAMES POISONS IN BLOOD FOR BLADDER ILLS

Amazing Kidney Laxative Clears Out Dangerous Acids New Way!

Doctors say that when body poisons accumulate in the system any one of 20 serious common chronic ailments is likely to follow. These poisons are actually in the blood. Millions try to drive them out with cathartics and laxatives—without success.

The only right way to get the dangerous acid body wastes out of the system is through the kidneys. These organs purify the blood. But when the kidneys grow lazy and do not filter out the wastes the first beginnings of disease are laid. The victim feels sluggish—lazy—headachy—always tired and weak.

Now an amazing new discovery is showing thousands the way to wake up lazy kidneys and eliminate the poisonous accumulations from the blood in a short time. Sufferers from kidney troubles say that this wonderful "Kidney Laxative," known as Sleepy Water, not only gently activates these organs but soothes them.

Doctors everywhere prescribe this pleasant-tasting mineral water to purify the blood and drive out dangerous poisons quickly. Healthy people by the thousands drink Sleepy Water to keep their health. Sick people—sufferers from 20 serious diseases—have drunk Sleepy Water to regain health.

Find out today about Sleepy Water and the amazing 30-minute test which will demonstrate to you in your own home how Sleepy Water acts to drive body poisons from the system. Address Chermanik Mineral Serices Co., Dept. W-10, 2130 Jackson Blvd., Tel. Kedzie 1223, Chicago. North Shore Branch, Tel. Greenleaf 6038.

CAMELS are KEPT Fresh!

You probably know that heat is used in the treatment of all cigarette tobaccos.

But you know too that excessive heat can destroy freshness and fragrance.

That's why there could be no truly fresh cigarette except for scientifically developed methods of applying heat.

Reynolds is proud of having discovered and perfected methods for getting the benefits of heat treatments and still avoiding ever parching or toasting.

With every assurance we tell you, Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

If you wish to know why the swing to Camels is nation-wide and steadily growing—switch to them for just one day—then leave them, if you can.

Get Names of Families to Be Cheered.

Requests for names of needy families most deserving of Christmas baskets poured into THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, yesterday, in response to the call for Good Fellows, issued on Sunday.

As in former years, Good Fellows enrolled with that spirit of Christmas giving that has characterized TRIBUNE Good Fellows in all their charity. They wanted again to carry their baskets heaped with Christmas goodies and toys to a household that Santa Claus might have passed by.

Among the first Good Fellows to enroll were business concerns which asked for the names of several families. There were individuals who snipped out the Good Fellow coupon and slipped it into an envelope addressed to the Good Fellow headquarters as quickly as they saw the Good Fellow call. There was a Girls' club, and a sorority who wanted to play Good Fellow.

Sorority to Aid Family.

"Last year you sent us the name of a needy family and we have supplied them with the items needed. We would appreciate your sending us the name of another needy family this year," wrote the secretary of the sorority. "We want to do our bit in helping some one in their distress and to make it a real Christmas for them."

And from the girls' club of six members: "We would like to take care of a poor family for Christmas. Please send us the full particulars about being a CHICAGO TRIBUNE Good Fellow."

It doesn't take a contribution to be a Good Fellow. THE TRIBUNE doesn't want your money. It merely wants you to enroll as a Good Fellow, to guarantee that you will take a basket to the needy family whose name you are given, to fill that basket with a nice Christmas dinner, a few toys, and a little clothing if you wish.

Happiness Is Your Reward.

Your return for your trouble will be the pleasure this Christmas gift brings your "adopted" family. It will be a privilege, Good Fellow, to go into a home in the rôle of Santa Claus. Try it and see. When Christmas lights flash on your own tree on Christmas morning, the sight will be more beautiful, knowing out there somewhere in Chicago another family is enjoying the holiday only because of your forethought.

For twenty-one years TRIBUNE Good Fellows have carried cheer into homes on Christmas. They will do it again this year. And surely, as in all the past years, they will do the job well, so that no home will be forgotten, no child disappointed on Christmas morning.

You may become a Good Fellow simply by calling Superior 0100, and ask for THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow department. Or you may make a personal call to the Good Fellow headquarters at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office.

EIGHT LOSE PLEA TO QUASH CASE IN $500,000 GAS PLOT

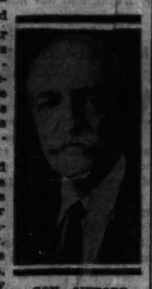
The trial of thirteen men on the charge that they conspired to defraud the state out of $500,000 in gasoline taxes was set for Feb. 1 by Judge John Prystalski in the criminal court yesterday. A motion to quash the indictment against eight of the men was overruled by Judge Prystalski.

The motion to quash was made on behalf of Louis Weiss, Jacob Franks, Max Glasser, Daniel Levin, Elmer Berg, and three brothers, Ben, Maurice, and William Pohn.

Three of the defendants did not join in the motion. They are Robert, Smythe, and Maurice O'Meara, brothers. The other two men, Poole Harrison and John F. Connor, who have pleaded guilty and are expected to take the stand as prosecution witnesses, will be sentenced when the entire case has been tried.

PINCHOT OFFERS 25% OF INCOME TO HELP JOBLESS

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Gifford Pinchot met the latest attack on him by United States Senator James J. Davis today by announcing a decision to donate one-fourth of his gross income this year to unemployment relief.



GOV. GIFFORD PINCHOT. [A. P. Photo.]

The senator had proposed that the Pinchots and the Davises give their entire annual incomes to charity. This proposal, the governor declares, was "obviously not in good faith and requires no further attention."

The governor's statement follows:

"Senator Davis' reply to my proposal is fantastic and obviously not in good faith, and requires no further attention. Therefore, I proceed to do as I proposed without him.

"For 1930, the last year reported to the United States treasury department, my net income, upon which the federal income tax is figured, was $37,-139.48. My gross income was $52,-650.46. My contributions to relief this year will amount to one-quarter of my gross income for 1930.

"If my gross income in 1931 is larger than in 1930 I will contribute one-quarter of the larger sum."

The controversy between the two officials began when Gov. Pinchot asked Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon to lend Pennsylvania $1,000,000 from his personal funds for use in unemployment relief, the loan to be repaid with interest at 4 per cent when and if the state's proposed prosperity bond issue is approved.

RELIEF FUND IS INCREASED TO $7,658,873

Contributions totaling $112,500, reported yesterday, increased the amount thus far subscribed to the Joint Emergency Relief fund to $7,658,873.

The largest pledge, $45,324, was that of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. Of this, $12,500 was a corporate gift, $32,000 was given by employés of the retail store and $824 by employés of the wholesale house.

Other large gifts were those of employés of Warner Bros. theaters, $3,501; Sinclair Refining company, $7,600; employés of Sinclair Refining company, $7,600; employes of Armour Institute of Technology, $3,900; Liggett drug stores and employés, $3,500; Sherwin-Williams company, $3,000; employés of Central Cold Storage company, $2,700, and employés of Erwin Wasey & Co., $2,624.

A start on the mailing of invitations to the charity ball to be held in the Auditorium on Dec. 18 was made yesterday. The affair is in charge of the woman's division of the fund, of which Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy is chairman. J. Russell Forgan, chairman of the benefits division, said no other benefits would be sponsored which would interfere with the success of the charity ball.

Serritella Retains New Attorney; Case Delayed

The case against State Senator Daniel Seritella, city sealer during the former administration, and his one-time deputy, Harry Hochstein, on charges of conspiracy in connection with short weight frauds, was continued to Dec. 18 by Judge Philip Sullivan in the criminal court yesterday. Attorney Michael Ahern appeared as a new counsel in the case. He announced that he expected to file a mition to quash the indictment and wanted more time in which to study the case.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GOV. RITCHIE'S AMERICANISM.

Whether there is enough left of Jeffersonian Democracy in the Democratic party to respond impressively to the leadership of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland is one of the interesting questions which students of American party history and political evolution must be asking themselves in these days of political confusion. James O'Donnell Bennett's interview with Gov. Ritchie published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE emphasizes this question and the very outstanding place the Maryland governor has been making for himself as a compeller of public thought at this time. What Albert Ritchie's political future is to be no one conscious of the vagaries of party action will venture to prophesy, but the force and scope, the courageous candor and grasp of fundamental principles of Gov. Ritchie's discussion of vital issues in our domestic affairs are making a notable place for him in the history of our troubled time.

We know of nothing more serviceable to the preservation of the American heritage and the restoration of general prosperity, so far as public utterance can aid them, than Gov. Ritchie's analysis of present conditions, his warnings against the persistent centralization of government, with its invasions of private enterprise, its growth of bureaucracy and rapidly increasing burden of taxation. Appeals against this tendency are heard with increasing frequency from leaders of public thought and action of both party affiliations, but none is more impressive than Gov. Ritchie's. The issue he keeps before us is the most important in our public life.

The difficulties precipitated by the drastic arrest of our prosperity, the widespread tribulations of our people, the exposure of grave defects in our economic, financial and political methods have brought, as in past periods of depression, a fresh crop of unsound nostrums and intensified the demand for their adoption. They have given increased force to the very developments which are largely responsible for our present situation. The coming congress is to be the scene of a critical struggle against this force and on behalf of the preservation of the sources of economic strength and general welfare which have made American progress and must be relied upon to restore it. Indeed the imminence of this conflict is one of the principal brakes upon our recovery at this time. The usefulness, therefore, of such vigorous championship of American principles as Gov. Ritchie represents is beyond question. It is reassuring and it will grow.

In past times of stress, as in this, there has always been powerful political backing for plausible but unsound schemes of relief and for the surrender of tried principles. But in the main a majority of the American people have proved loyal and sound leadership has triumphed. We are confident this will be demonstrated in our present situation, and our confidence is fortified by the service of such leaders as Gov. Ritchie. They raise a banner to which, in the words of Washington, the wise and prudent may repair. And to rally the wisdom and prudence of the American people has seldom been more the outstanding need of this republic than it is at this time.

CRITICISM AND PROGRESS IN THE ARMY.

Inspector General Hugh Drum is one of the ablest officers of the regular army, and it is to be hoped, if not very confidently expected, that his critical report will produce some substantial practical results. At any rate, sharp discontent with regular army methods and conditions, expressed frankly and forcefully by one of the most experienced and able of its officers, is an encouraging sign. There has been too little self-criticism among our professional soldiers, whose inclination to insist uncritically upon regular army methods and theories was all too apparent in the late war. This Bourbonism did not impress the citizen soldiers of the A. E. F. favorably and greatly diminished the prestige of the regular service.

It was not a fault peculiar to our army, as any one who has read the memoirs of fighting men of England is aware. But since the war, we think, it has persisted longer and to a greater extent in the American than in the British service. This is rather an astonishing fact to Americans who assume there is less restraint upon expression in their country than in England and that, therefore, there should be more open criticism and a more active disposition to experiment and improve than in any British service. But, whether there has been more formal official censorship in our service or not, there has been more open and drastic criticism of errors and inefficiencies abroad than with us. Yet the improvement and progress of the military establishment of the United States depends and must always depend primarily, though not from exclusively, upon the mental activity of the regular officer, his willingness to criticise regular army ideas and methods, his professional curiosity and zeal for progress. After a war there is less of the will to keep moving than to dig in. The older and higher officers are disposed to dogmatize on their experiences and their authority, and prestige checks free criticism from younger men. There are progressive men in the higher ranks like Gen. Drum—the present chief of staff, Gen. MacArthur, is one of them, and we could name others—and they cannot serve the nation better than by candor in professional criticism and the encouragement of professional enterprise in their juniors. Censorship upon service criticism is overdone in peace time, whether explicit or as a matter of professional attitude. It should be replaced by official encouragement of criticism and experiment as it exists in private successful enterprise.

MR. STIMSON AND JAPAN.

The peace efforts of the American state department seem to have been designed to make an enemy for the United States. Mr. Stimson appears throughout the Manchurian question to have regarded officiousness as a proper diplomatic substitute for good offices and meddlesomeness as an indication of good will. In consequence the ever ready sensitiveness of the Japanese to affronts, real or fancied, from the United States has been disturbed again and there is a substantial addition to the enmity which statesmanship would work to remove from Japanese-American relations.

The state department has taken its proposals and its ideas from Pharisaic groups of busybodies to whom everybody's business but their own is a matter of concern. They can do more mischief in the name of altruism than choleric imperialists could do with conscious deviltry.

It was foolish and immature for the Japanese foreign office to explode as it did over a garbled transmission of remarks attributed to Mr. Stimson. It was reasonable to suppose that even he would not say what the dispatches reaching Japan had him say of Japanese purposes and sincerity. Unless the Japanese government wanted an opportunity to make the Japanese people mad there was little excuse for exploding without verifying the utterances which were regarded as offensive.

What little excuse can be granted is afforded by Mr. Stimson himself. As an active agent of the pacifist busybodies his every act in the Manchurian squabble has given Japan reason to believe that the United States was determined to throw itself bodily in front of Japanese movements. No other nation has drawn on itself the indignation of Japan. The United States even elbowed its way into its pet aversion, the league of nations, apparently to get a better stance for a crack at Japan. That was the Japanese view of the situation. To this view the American state department has indicated that it will throw away all policies formerly upheld merely to checkmate Japan in what it regards as much its sphere of interest as Americans think is their own in, for instance, Caribbean territory.

The American secretary seems personally to have informed Japan where its troops could not be used, and even if he was only careless in the way he said things he did leave himself exposed to the conjecture that he thought Japanese actions were not consistent with Japanese promises.

Whatever happens in Manchuria, whatever happens to China, however the league of nations pulls itself out of the hole or whatever Japan gets as a settlement for itself, the United States will remain in Japanese memory, which is long, as a country which displayed its hostility. Mr. Stimson and his pacifist friends have attended to that. Washington seems to have forgotten the illustrations given by President Wilson and Mr. Bryan of how pacifism can make wars in the name of peace.

The United States offends Japan by discriminations and opposition. It remains a neighbor of Japan in the far east. It throws down its defensive walls. It extends its territory and restricts its navy. Under pacifist influence it offers irritations and provocations and under the same influence it destroys its ability to take care of itself if trouble comes its way in consequence.

Some day when the United States needs good will it will find only animosity. When the trouble comes the busybodies will take to the treetops.

SOMETHING TO SHAKE AT BEGGARS.

[New York Sun.]

A Washington attorney put himself into an awkward situation when he brought out the fact that the man who was suing his clients on an assault charge swings a stick on his strolls through the parks of the capital. "And, gentlemen of the jury," added the attorney, "you can't trust a man who carries a cane." It turned out that the judge and one of the jurors are inveterate cane carriers and the attorney had to do some ingenious hedging. The owner of a New York stick and umbrella store reports that canes are more popular in the metropolis than they used to be; straight, shiny ones with silver tops for evening use are the best sellers.

The pilgrims of the middle ages carried stout staffs instead of sticks. These staffs were useful not only in supporting weary limbs but also served to break the heads of belligerent wayfarers. Each had in its upper part a hollow tube for small treasures and coins. In such a tube, it is said, the first head of saffron was smuggled into England from Greece when to take the living plant out of the country was forbidden on pain of death; the silkworm was conveyed into Europe in a similar way.

The ferula or staff of fennel wood was one of the earliest supports used by elderly persons because it was long, tough, and light. The designation of "cane" so generally used in this country originated in the Orient, where hollow palms and bamboos were naturally used for walking sticks. Pope's Sir Plume prided himself on the nice conduct of his clouded cane, while Gay celebrated in verse the strong cane and the amber tipped cane. Henry VIII. had one cane "garnyshed with sylver and gilte, with Astronomie upon it," and another "garnyshed with golde, having a perfume in the toppe." Ancient Egyptian walking sticks made of cherry wood, with carved knobs, have been discovered. Comedy canes having heads carved in the grinning likeness of Punch, Merry Andrew, and Toby Filipot still can be found in the shops. U. D. Mathews of Madison, Neb., collector of canes, has more than 150 on display in his home.

A globe trotter was standing at the bar of a tavern in a tropic land when a young and handsome Fijian walked in. "Didn't I leave my walking stick here?" he said. "Jove, I'd hate to lose it. It's not the intrinsic value of the thing, but the principle of forgetting it in a pub!" This stickler for the conventions was Ratu Pope Senilole, grandson of the cannibal king, Cakobau, who strangled his father's five wives.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. RAS

WE KEEP ON WORRYING about what people are going to give us for Christmas. Please don't give us a book; like the chorus girl to whom the other girls were going to give a handsome Christmas present and almost decided on a book, we've got a book; and we have so many slippers that T. Atkins, the Almost Human Hound, has a lot of trouble trying to kill all of them. We get hip flasks and all kinds of likker every Christmas, and cocktail shakers, and cocktail glasses, and decanters that play everything from "There'll Come a Time Some Day" to "Beefsteak When You're Hungry, Whisky When You're Dry," and we haven't got room left for another one of those things. And nix on corkscrews. Corkscrews seem to be one of the heaviest sellers these bright pre-Christmas days. And no California wine bricks or Mabel's kegs, if you please. We've got plenty, and the darn stuff won't jell, if you know what we mean. We used to think we wanted some old silver julep cups—ah, old Kentucky julep cups, frosted and fragrant!—but when we discovered they go at forty bucks each in the antique shops, we decided we could do without them. This Christmas we don't think we want any presents at all. But next year after the election, and we're a free country again, why, go to it. But fix up the pretty presents so they won't leak.

OVERTONES.

These are the overtones of ecstasy:
The soft caress, the cool, smooth hand
That touches, soothingly;
These are things we understand
When tired moments crowd along
The corridors of sleep, and bright
The stars, in endless throng,
Fleck the high-hung tapestry of night.

These are the souvenirs of love:
The half remembered, vagrant scent
Of flower petals telling of Words softly spoken, deeply meant;
The little verse we tried to rhyme
To fit a rhythm wild and free—
A song to carry when it's time
For overtones and ecstasy.

COLORADO PETE.

THE ABSOLUTE ZENITH in alibis was attained yesterday by Reformer Davis in refuting the charge that Reformer and Prohibition Champion Gilday, who shot a boy who tried to help him, was intoxicated at the time. "If liquor was in his stomach tonight," Reformer Davis is quoted as saying, "then it was put there forcibly and against his will." Which shows how difficult it is to argue with a dry.

MEXICAN DIVORCES seem to be quite popular this fall, although Reno divorces are still in vogue and the old reliable Paris kind continue to hold their own. Arkansas is showing a new line in divorces that are attracting the bargain hunters and drawing the crowds away from Nevada. Various European countries which have suffered much from the depression and the loss of tourists are beginning to take an interest in the divorce industry and are offering the trade what they insist is as fine an article in the divorce line as can be secured anywhere. There is at present no duty on foreign divorces, but it is said an effort to remedy this in favor of the protection of home industry will be made at the coming session of congress.

LINDY declined an invitation from John D. to go to church with him last Sunday. All right, Lindy loses a nice bright new dime. Still, with John D. sitting right by him he would probably have felt that he ought to put it into the contribution basket. Maybe Lindy was right after all.

"DO PUBLISH AGAIN 'Keep Thou My Heart,'" writes J. E. S., "and tell us something more of the man who wrote it. Has he written others as exquisite? And where are they to be found? Gosh, it looks as though we would have to print that poem again very soon.

REPRESENTATIVE SNELL of New York has been nominated for speaker of the house at a Republican caucus. That's probably because of Mr. Snell's pious remark, "We are not going to give up because the Lord has taken some of our members." The Republicans like the country to be reminded now and then that the party is under the special care and guidance of the Divine Providence.

THEYRE TALKING of establishing a neutral zone out in Manchuria to stop what the newspapers love to call the Sino-Japanese war. The neutral zone may keep the Sinos where they belong, but we have our doubts about the Japs. Whenever they see a Sino peeking at 'em in that zone they're liable to break loose and run all over the place again.

NORTHWESTERN is now generously awarded a third interest in the Big Ten football championship. But hold! That seems hardly fair. Something else surely should be wished on to Northwestern before they are permitted to hold that third of the Big Ten championship.

NEW GLANDS FOR BALD PEOPLE.

A RECENT report by Dr. B. N. Bengtson offers more hope for the bald than any other recent proposal. The report covers two years' experience in treating certain kinds of baldness with pituitary extract and thyroid extract. He reports cases in which hair grew on bald heads in a surprising way.

One man started in with a billiard ball dome. Before long he had a fine fuzz. Then followed a very good crop of white hair. Finally his patience was rewarded by a very good growth of black hair of good quality. One case continued bald for five months, then followed five months of fuzz, after which there developed good, normal black hair which continued to improve in quality and appearance for one year. Some of the cases had been bald for years—one for about sixteen years.

The medicine used is the front half of the pituitary gland and, in some cases, some thyroid gland. When this preparation was given by the mouth alone there was almost no effect. Given by hypodermic, it had considerable effect, but the best results followed combined treatment by mouth and by hypodermic.

Dr. Bengtson began with cases of spot baldness, or alopecia areata. Later he tried the treatment in other forms of baldness, with good results, as far as he has gone. It is not yet possible to say in what kind of baldness it is most useful, and, on the other hand, in what types it will prove of service.

Primarily he tried to select cases where the baldness seemed to be due to trouble with some ductless gland. He finally came to the conclusion that it was too uncertain which cases were of that type, and the only plan was to try cases of different sorts and see what results followed.

Incidentally, he has found that the treatment directed at baldness has cured some cases of headache, including some that were said to be of the migraine type. He makes no claims for the method and warns his readers that it is on trial and results cannot be promised.

Triflers need not expect anything from it. There is no magic about it. One bottle will not cause the hair to grow several feet in length. No one will see any benefit until the treatment has been continued for several weeks, and persistence for months is necessary for worth-while improvement.

Some will be interested in the report of gray hair that turned black.

SORE ON BOY'S LEG.

Mrs. M. L. writes: My son, who is 15 years old, has a sore on his leg which continues to form scabs and then fall off. About three months ago, after having had this sore for about two months, I had a doctor look at it but he said it was nothing. However, since that time it has grown larger. There is no pain and no running and it does not cause any trouble. In your opinion, what do you think it is and what could I put on to cure it?

REPLY.

Boys are very likely to have sores on the legs. These sores are hard to heal because they develop hard, irritating scabs. Apply a wet dressing, and keep it on until the scab dissolves and comes away. Then expose the ulcer to direct sunlight for a short while. If a heavy scab reforms, remove it in the same way.

PROBABLY POISON IVY.

T. E. L. writes: My brother and I went swimming in a creek one Sunday. After we came out of the water we had an itch, and we still have it. It starts at night when we go to bed. It breaks out on our hands like small water blisters. What is the name of this and the cure for it?

REPLY.

My guess is that you were poisoned by poison ivy, though it may have been something else. Try washing it with gasoline.

METABOLISM TEST.

McD. writes: I have had a basal metabolism test made and it was plus 8, and pulse 108. Is that dangerous? I am very nervous and get weak spells.

REPLY.

A plus 8 metabolism is not of any importance. That is within the range of normal variation.

I do not know why your pulse is so fast.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERK.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—[Friend of the People.]—1. I would like information concerning a position as railway mail clerk. I am 18 years old and went as far as second year high school. Am I old enough? 2. Does one need a coaching school course in order to take the examination? 3. When and where is the next examination to be held? M. L.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. The date of the next railway postal clerk examination has not been determined.

WAGE CLAIMS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I worked for a small radio concern last winter. I was laid off and they owe me three weeks' wages, which I have never been able to collect. Is there any law compelling them to pay me? W. D.

The Illinois statute authorizes recovery of attorney fees on wage claims. It is sometimes possible to get an attorney to undertake collection in reliance on such fee, but ordinarily some payment in advance is required. The Legal Aid Bureau of the United Charities assists those who are unable to pay an attorney.

PETITION FOR PROBATE.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A leaves B all his property, consisting of $1,200 in cash. Same is in hands of C, who was appointed executor. C does not probate. A's will is simple, citing no time for settlement. C has had money two years and makes no offer to settle with B. What would an attorney do in this case? Is there any penalty for not probating? How soon after notice by attorney could the executor be compelled to pay? Would it be necessary to sue the executor?

E. J.

The beneficiary may be in a position to file a petition for probate in his own name. We advise him to employ an attorney.

NO STATE PENSION.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I understand that in some states they have what is called a "widow's pension." Am wondering if the state of Illinois has such a pension and, if so, how can one go about getting it?

E. S.

Illinois has no pension for widows as such. There is a pension for mothers of dependent children which is administered by the Juvenile court, Ogden avenue and Roosevelt road.

LONDON.—The ultimate stand of Greece and Rumania toward the entente powers is a question which again looms large. Greece, so far as can be ascertained, has not yet complied with the demands of the entente powers' last note, which, it is understood, embraced the concrete proposition that their forces should be absolutely untrammeled in Greek territory. In London the fear seems to prevail that Greece will not acquiesce to the full in these demands. Rumania, according to unofficial reports, has declined to accede to a proposal from Russia that Russian warships be permitted to use the Danube to move against Bulgaria and has demanded that Russia respect her neutrality.

LONDON.—Monastir was formally surrendered to the Bulgarians on Monday, according to an Athens dispatch to the Daily Telegraph. On Sunday Col. Vassitch, the Serbian commander, informed the Greek council of his intention to surrender the city without fighting in order to avoid useless bloodshed.

LONDON.—The fighting on the Isonzo front is turning out to be the most sustained and fiercest battle of the whole war. For weeks the Italians have been attacking the Austrian bridgeheads and mountain positions, and are slowly but surely drawing their nets around Tolmein, Goritz and Doberdo.

WASHINGTON.—Passports may be denied Henry Ford's expeditionary force, of pacifists, according to information here tonight. The state department, it appears, is inclined to view with alarm Mr. Ford's plan to attempt to call a strike of the fighting men in the trenches in Europe. The automobile manufacturer, who has chartered space to carry the peace contingent, has proposed a scheme to send out a wireless call to the men in the trenches to lay down their arms and march home.

CHICAGO.—William P. Rend, millionaire president of the W. P. Rend Coal company, died at his residence, 421 Barry avenue. He was born in County Leitrim, Ireland, in 1840, and came to the United States when 7 years old.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 1, 1901.

SAN FRANCISCO.—During the heaviest fog which has occurred here for years the ferryboats San Rafael and Sausalito, plying between this city and Sausalito, collided off Alcatraz island, the former vessel sinking in fifteen minutes. It is believed that over fifty persons perished, mostly women and children. Whistles were exchanged between the two vessels, but the captain of the Sausalito evidently misunderstood the San Rafael's signals, for a few minutes after its first whistle had been heard the Sausalito emerged from the fog and crashed into the port side of the San Rafael.

MUSKEGON, Mich.—Banker Terwilliger's act in abandoning his financial institution at Montague, his family, and friends is now said to have been on account of Miss Winnie Schneider, who lives on a fruit farm in Oceana county, the farm being the property of the missing banker before he divested himself of it by assignment. Mrs. Schneider, the mother of the girl, says she knows nothing of her daughter's friendship with the banker.

McKEESPORT, Pa.—Mrs. Jane Williams died in this city. Her daughter, Mrs. Anne Madden, who was stolen from her in 1873, was restored to her on her deathbed. The daughter was kidnaped from her Chicago home when five years old. Relatives took the child to England, where she grew to womanhood ignorant of the facts.

DECEMBER 1, 1881.

CHICAGO.—William Connors, a tug captain, was brought before Commissioner Hoyne on a charge of delaying the mails by preventing the closing of a railroad bridge. Connors pulled his vessel into the draw and kept it there for half an hour, thus delaying a mail train on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad. The case is a novel one and presents a rather interesting point of law.

CHICAGO.—The Irish National convention assembled in McCormick hall with about 1,300 delegates, representing nearly every state and territory in the Union, present. John F. Finerty called the convention to order in a speech in which he declared that it was the duty of Irish-Americans to support their countrymen in the old land in their struggle against British domination and misrule. William J. Hynes was elected temporary chairman and Messrs. Romain and Horgan and Mayor Powderly of Scranton, Pa., were elected secretaries.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Guiteau told the story of the murder of President Garfield on the witness stand and was cross-examined in part by Judge John K. Porter of New York. Throughout the day alienists watched him with the closest attention. He declared that he has never had any doubt that he was the agent of the Deity in killing the President for the good of the country and the people. He declared he believed Gen. Arthur "is a friend of mine, for I am the man that made him." He said that for twenty years he has had an idea that he should be President of the United States, "and I shall make it yet."

CRANE COLLEGE.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—I wish to call attention to several misstatements of fact which appeared in a letter published in the Voice of the People of Sunday, Nov. 22:

1. Mr. Buddenbaum declares that the buildings at Oakley and Jackson boulevards were erected for the exclusive use of the Crane Technical High school. In a letter of July 22 I pointed out to Mr. Buddenbaum that the physics laboratories, for example, were constructed expressly for college work.

2. The statement is also made that "without authority Crane Junior college was started in a small way." The board of education authorized this college after centralising in it the several small junior colleges it was conducting in a few of the larger high schools.

3. Mr. Buddenbaum asserts that space and facilities belonging to the Crane High school have been taken by the college—"to approximately 75 per cent of the total space of the buildings." I can assure Mr. Buddenbaum that the buildings are now under the supervision of a joint administration and that the space and facilities are shared fifty-fifty. I secured that information after a trip to Crane.

4. In his closing paragraph Mr. Buddenbaum declared he was not in favor of maintaining higher education at the expense of our elementary and high schools. I suggest that the present financial difficulties of the board of education are due rather to the complications which have arisen in the last four years in the matter of tax assessing and collecting than to the appropriation devoted annually to the maintenance of the junior college.

Mr. Buddenbaum takes issue as president of the Crane Alumni association, which is, of course, the Crane Technical High School Alumni association. In a survey, which I conducted last spring, I failed to find support of Mr. Buddenbaum's protest among the alumni of the last five years as well as among the alumni of many of the preceding classes. I suggest that Mr. Buddenbaum expressed a personal rather than a collective opinion.

LOUIS Z. ROSENFELD,
President, Crane Tech '27.

THE COST OF ECONOMY.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—I wonder if the people of Chicago read the article in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last Friday and noted the extravagance of our mayor. The article was "City and County Efficiency Expert May Cost $110,000." Since Mayor Cermak took office we have heard and read of nothing but his cry of how poor the city is. He has done nothing but try to see how he can reduce the poorer salaried man to a lower scale. He even went so far as to tax every city fireman and city policeman two days' pay every month for six months. The public hasn't been aware of this. This amount was supposed to replenish the city treasury. Why must these men replenish the city treasury? It was the politicians that robbed it, not the low salaried firemen and policemen. This is an outrage on these men and their families. Yet he has the nerve to appoint J. L. Jacobs efficiency expert at a salary of $60 per day. So far, Mr. Jacobs has been paid $42,477 and demands $30,000 more. The vouchers show Mr. Jacobs' men are being paid from $50 down to $10 a day. How many of our men are receiving such salaries? E. A. CARLSTROM.

A BOUQUET FOR HARVEY.

River Forest, Ill., Nov. 22.—May I express my appreciation of Harvey Woodruff's account of the Notre Dame-Southern California game in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE? It was written without bias and was happily devoid of any expression of personal prejudice for either side, as a good story should be. Woodruff's stuff is not only good sports writing, better still it is an expression of good sportsmanship of which we cannot have too much. A. E. W.

SCRIPTURAL COMPARISON.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Senator Hiram Johnson's attitude toward the Republican nomination for the presidency reminds one of Isaiah vi., 8.

"Also I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send and who will go for us? Then, said I, Here am I; send me." H. B. Y.

IT'S NOT PERFECT.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Two editorials in parallel columns in your issue of today throw into high relief the extreme farce and absurdity of the administration of the law in our midst. Sprague, the killer of Policeman Gallagher while in the simple and proper discharge of a policeman's duty, goes scot free for this revolting crime, while Janitor Lidikewicz is sent to jail for sixty days for the "crime" of making a harmless beverage—beer—and then not for sale.

In the other of your three editorials on systems of government, we read "We think that here in the United States we have arrived at the best organization of society known to man." I wonder whether Widow Gallagher is of that opinion, or Janitor Lidikewicz.

If our judges trying criminal cases would take a hand in the selection of juries instead of leaving that to lawyers who have no interest in the public welfare, but only in reputation as criminal defendants and the money reward that brings, then we might sometimes find juries of intelligence who would put justice and the public welfare before all else.

JAMES W. WALKER, M. D.

SCHOOL BOARD BOLONY.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I have just finished reading a school board pamphlet which boosts the proposed $125,000,000 bond issue. Either they think the school children vote or they think the voters have the mentalities of school children.

They argue that $18,000,000 will be saved the taxpayers in the next twenty years by the issue of $80,000,000 building bonds. And how? By abolishing that proportion of real estate taxes which is set aside for new buildings for the next twenty years. But are they going to spread the $80,000,000 fund over twenty years? No! It is to be spent now to make work for men who, they say between sobs, are asking for work, not charity.

Then will there be no more schools built for 18 years after this is gone? Certainly there will. After the money is thrown away for posture rooms [and what in the name of common sense are posture rooms?] natatoriums, assembly halls, moving picture rooms, locker rooms, cafeterias, etc., etc., etc., the school building tax millage will be quietly restored. The taxpayer is not asking for charity any more than the workingman; neither can he make nourishing sandwiches from the bolony the school board is trying to feed him. C. R. D.

RADIO COURTESY.

Wheaton, Ill., Nov. 23.—Be it known that yours truly, a peace-loving citizen, is in favor of declaring war on all radio advertisers who allow it to be said that the programs which they sponsor, come as a courtesy to the listener.

There is no more courtesy involved on the part of an advertiser who uses the radio than there is should he use a newspaper, magazine, or billboard. They are all intended to serve the same purpose, and though it is true that a commercially sponsored radio program provides entertainment the fact remains that the advertiser in presenting such entertainment has, as his direct objective, the expectation that the effort will be rewarded in the way of increased sales, rather than any thought of extending a courtesy to the listener.

In other words, advertising is a requisite without which successful business cannot expect to function, and it by resorting to the radio this requisite becomes an act of courtesy, then I am afraid I don't know the literal meaning of the word as defined by Mr. Webster. ROY S. WEST.

WALL STREET'S LEADERSHIP.

Highland Park, Ill., Nov. 22.—The United States never went into a depression that it was not led out of by the New York exchange. Look it up for yourself. This time the unpatriotic citizens of Wall street are taking advantage of the depression to bear the market. There is no hope that Hoover and the Republican party will do anything. If the next congress does not pass a law making it a felony for any one to sell stock short unless the seller actually owns 50 per cent of the stock, and puts up 40 per cent in cash, then this depression will continue for another three years. ALL MORGAN CO. IN HOFSTADTER QUIZ OF WALKER

Evidence of Transfers Is Sought by Committee.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The leading firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. is under subpoena to the Hofstadter legislative committee to produce stock records of a specified list of companies for which they acted as transfer agents, so that the committee may learn whether Mr. or James J. Walker or his personal business agent, Russell T. Sherwood, owned any of the stock.

The subpoena went out last week and is returnable this week. The list of companies was not made public, but it was said that Counsel Samuel Seabury is acting on information and not merely taking a shot in the dark.

The bulk of Sherwood's assets has been going on for weeks, in preparation for the day of reckoning after which date Sherwood must appear before the Supreme court and show cause why he should not be held for refusing to honor a subpoena of the Hofstadter committee, or must show failure of his property up to that time.

Bank runs hit two dozen savings banks here yesterday, today and tomorrow, showing that Robert J. McCormick, first deputy city treasurer, deposited about $250,000 in the banks each day.

WALKER TO PRESENT HIS MOONEY APPEAL TO GOVERNOR TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Eyes bloodshot and his voice hoarse from a severe cold, Mayor James J. Walker of New York today made his first reply to the charges of impudence and intrusion leveled at him for appearing in Tom Mooney's behalf. He spoke to 500 members of the Downtown association at a luncheon. He will present his arguments for the release of Mooney to Gov. James Rolph tomorrow. He conferred today with a foreman of the jury which convicted Mooney.

Dr. John Gallwey, who was called in to treat the mayor, advised him not to attend the luncheon. The mayor replied that he could not well refuse, and since the luncheon did not require his going out of his hotel, he circumvented the physician's instructions.

"Why, I am even called impudent because I have come to California," the mayor said, referring to editorials in the local newspapers. "Now, that can't be true, because in no state of the Union except New York have I visited more. I've crossed the continent ten times, all but once on business, and that once was for health. I wish I could have had the publicity I had on the other occasions that I have had on this. It would have helped my business. I am here on a definite, serious, sublime purpose, and, after all, difference of opinion keeps the world going round."

POLICE HUNTING CLEWS IN SLAYING OF A GANGSTER

Police last night were seeking clews in the murder of John Alessi, 28 years old, a minor gangster and reputed extortionist. Alessi's body was found early yesterday on the pavement in front of 2000 South Ogden avenue.

Identification of the dead man was made by Carmen Gnolfo, a son of Mrs. Catina Gnolfo, 1119 South Racine avenue. Mrs. Gnolfo is the widow of Philip Gnolfo, a member of the Genna gang, who was slain May 31, 1930.

ECONOMY CLIPS ARMY'S WINGS, SAYS AIR CHIEF

U. S. Down to 4th Place, Davison Reports.

F. TRUBEE DAVISON.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Administration failure to provide the funds needed for air corps expansion has relegated the United States to a fourth place position among the world's military air powers, F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation, reported to Secretary of War Hurley today. He revealed that Great Britain, France, and Italy all are superior in total military air strength to the combined army and navy air forces in this country. Considering land planes alone, the United States is fifth, he said.

The assistant secretary, both in his report and in an address tonight, decried the constant trimming of air corps expenditures, but asserted the war department was doing everything it could to maintain and improve the air defenses of the country, "with the tools at its disposal." In conclusion he cautioned against permitting the economies effected in times of depression from being made permanent, "lest we once more find ourselves, as has always been the case, unprepared should a crisis come."

Short of Planes and Personnel.

Mr. Davison said that the air corps is 183 airplanes behind the congressional program laid down to guide American military aviation in 1926. He added also that its commissioned personnel is short 150 regular army officers and 137 reserve officers on extended active duty. Although the air corps reserve has been built up to a pilot strength of 1,000 men, Mr. Davison said "lack of funds has enabled us to give each one of these only about ten hours' flying for the entire year."

"This is woefully inadequate," he declared. "It is most discouraging to those who have the patriotism and desire to serve in time of need and it is certainly detrimental to the best interests of our air defense."

Mr. Davison announced that during the past year initial procurements were made of pursuit types of planes having a high speed of 214 miles an hour as compared with the 175 mile speed of present types.

A new bombardment plane with a speed of 188 miles an hour, a sixty mile increase over bombing planes in current use, has been developed, he said. New attack planes fifty-five miles an hour faster than current types are being purchased for one squadron, Mr. Davison said. Their speed is 196 miles.

MARINE RAPS NAVY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Administration economies which have cut the marine corps by approximately 2,000 during the last year were referred to as "stringent" today by Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller in his annual report to Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams. No mention was made by the major general of the latest White House marine reductions, which, it is understood, will sever another 600 marines from the rolls of that organization.

Resent Navy Discrimination.

Maj. Gen. Fuller expressed resentment which, he said, marine officers feel as the result of "discrimination" in favor of navy officers of relative rank.

"The officers of the marine corps," he said, "feel very deeply the discrimination against them in their relative rank with corresponding length of service in the navy, and a prompt adjustment of this condition is most urgently needed."

This discrimination, the marine commandant said at his office this afternoon, is the result of different systems of promotion in the marine corps and the navy.

PRONOUNCED DEAD, WHEN REVIVED SHE ASKS TO DIE AGAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cora Wheeler, who was pronounced dead last Wednesday but came back to life today, pleaded with her nurses and family to be permitted to slip back into peaceful final sleep.

Mrs. Wheeler, who is 65 years old, was pronounced dead of pneumonia by two nurses last Wednesday. Dr. Ray B. Wheeler made an examination with stathoscope and could discover no breathing. William M. Wheeler, her husband, sent telegrams to relatives in Wayne, Neb., announcing her death.

In the meantime the physician moved Mrs. Wheeler's body and faint traces of respiration began to be evidenced. She came back to life gradually, but was unconscious until today when she pleaded, "Let me go; do not call me back." Dr. Walker said her eventual recovery is doubtful.

The Wheelers came here eight years ago from Lincoln, Neb. She was active in affairs of the Order of the Eastern Star and Daughters of the American Revolution in that state.

SUPREME COURT TO SET DRY LAW SEIZURE LIMITS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today agreed to settle a disputed point as to the seizure of property in prohibition cases when it granted the government's petition for a review of a court of appeals judgment in which Daniel M. Lefkowits and Pauline Paris, defendants in a New York prohibition case, were granted the return of books and papers seized in a raid by dry agents.

The two have contended that federal agents searched the premises on which the arrest occurred and carried away books, papers, and records.

In his brief in support of the petition for a Supreme court review, Solicitor General Thacher signified the government's anxiety to have the government's rights as to search and seizure defined.

"It is of the utmost importance," Mr. Thacher said, "that this court determine whether the search conducted in the case at bar was lawful, in order that the law may be clarified and set that arresting officers may be properly instructed as to what is a reasonable search incident to a lawful arrest."

2 PLEAD GUILTY TO MURDER; GET LONG SENTENCES

Two men were sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary when they pleaded guilty to murder before Judge Walter Stanton in the Criminal court yesterday. The defendants admitted that they shot and fatally wounded Fred Selacek in an attempted holdup of his candy store at 3134 West 25th street on Sept. 4.

The men sentenced were Jerry Matiska, 27 years old, sentenced to 35 years, and Leo Churchman, 26 years old, who got 40 years in prison.

Churchman drew five more years than his accomplice because, when police arrested him in a flat at 434 South Oakley avenue, he tried to shoot them. The defense attorneys asked that the information leading to the capture of the gunmen be introduced into evidence. Assistant State's Attorney John L. Murphy opposed this plea on the grounds that the police must be protected. Judge Stanton overruled the defense.

At this point Churchman blurted out, "They'd never got us if it hadn't been for them dirty rats."

CONGRESS SEAT ELECTION TODAY IN NEW JERSEY

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The campaign in the special congressional election to be held tomorrow in the Fifth congressional district of New Jersey ended tonight with both Republican and Democratic candidates predicting victory. Donald H. McLean, G. O. P. standard bearer, and Percy H. Stewart, the Democrat, were outspoken regarding the outcome of the vote.

"While the volume of the vote to be cast is unknown," Mr. McLean said, "I am confident that the Republicans in the Fifth district will come to my assistance and thus send a representative to Washington who is pledged to support the President."

Mr. Stewart limited himself to the declaration: "We anticipate a glorious victory."

Mr. McLean concluded his campaign tonight at a rally in his native Hillside, while Mr. Stewart delivered a final broadside attack in his home city of Plainfield. Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee, also addressed the Plainfield gathering.

Approximately 4,000 men will be given work on the projects ultimately, officials said.

Will you Buck these odds when you place your Advertising bets?

In times like these . . . when you've got to win . . . will you put your money on sentiment . . . toss a coin . . . or follow the most detailed dope sheet ever issued on the weekly field?

Set last July and August, as Dr. George Gallup and his researchers trudged to 15,600 doors asking people what stories, what ads they had read in the 4 big weeklies. Set—in many of the cases—while official observers from the A.N.A. looked on!

Forty-five Ads

In those Gallup-tested weeklies appeared, among others, 45 ads which happened to run in duplicate in LIBERTY and one or more of the other weeklies.

But note!

Of 33 that ran in LIBERTY and, in duplicate, Weekly A, 30 stopped more persons-per-dollar in LIBERTY than in Weekly A.

Of 30 that ran in LIBERTY and Weekly B, 24 stopped more persons-per-dollar in LIBERTY than in Weekly B.

Of 13 that ran in LIBERTY and Weekly C, 12 stopped more persons-per-dollar in LIBERTY than in Weekly C.

While of 5 that ran in all four weeklies—four stopped more persons-per-dollar in LIBERTY than in any other weekly.

Why LIBERTY Makes Good Ads Better

Eight years ago, LIBERTY was born as a new magazine to serve a new public. A post-war public. A public with its own ideas.

Into LIBERTY went (1) dramatic, newsy, concise stories and articles by new authors, young authors, authors and artists attuned to the spirit of the times.

Into LIBERTY went (2) a new make-up, ending run-overs, barring interruptions in reading, putting every ad next to live reading matter.

Into LIBERTY went (3) new convenience in reading—compact, easy-to-handle size.

Into LIBERTY—deliberately—went only those things that would lead (and have led) to 99% single-copy sales—copy-by-copy demand repeated 52 times a year. With the result that the circulation you buy in any issue is circulation 99% guaranteed-to-be-read.

And Now—the Pudding Has Been Proved

A reasonable prospectus, upon which hundreds of advertisers have spent money year after year, LIBERTY'S publishing formula has now passed the Gallup Reader Interest test with a logical score.

Advertisers who have supported LIBERTY year after year are gratified to have their judgment verified. Others, who have watched LIBERTY in the past, are now rearranging their advertising expenditures.

If you, yourself, have not yet seen the Gallup report, you will want to study a copy without further delay. A note from you will bring one via the good offices of a LIBERTY representative. Address LIBERTY, 420 Lexington Ave., New York.

HOW THE ODDS WORKED FOR ABSORBINE, JR.

These ads, identical in copy, headline and art, ran during the Gallup Reader Interest Census last July and August, in LIBERTY and two other weekly magazines.

But—

On the basis of dollars invested in each . . .

The ad in LIBERTY stopped 21% more men and 60% more women than the same ad in Weekly B. And—

SNELL CHOSEN FOR SPEAKER AT G. O. P. CAUCUS

Hoover Opponent Beats John Q. Tilson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—In a vote which was widely interpreted as a repudiation of his devotion to the Hoover administration, Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut today was eliminated as the Republican candidate for speaker of the house. The choice went to Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, a frank opponent of many presidential policies.

Despite his avowed wetness, Representative Tilson has been accused by many of his party in the house of being too obedient to White House dictation.

It was an all day battle behind the closed doors of the hall of the house. The fight was closer and more strenuously contested than that of any Republican house caucus since the famous three cornered Gillett-Fess-Mann struggle in 1919.

And it bespoke the contentions within the Republican party in the house that, decisive as the defeat of Mr. Tilson was, the result of seven hours debate was to leave Republican affairs still in a tug of war.

Harmony Plan Upset.

Mr. Snell had been elected candidate for speaker and Mr. Tilson had been chosen floor leader at the Republican caucus which preceded the close of last session. In face of a probable Democratic organization of the house it was understood that Mr. Tilson had consented that the candidate named for the speakership today should automatically become minority floor leader in case the Democrats named the speaker.

In defeat, Mr. Tilson balked. He contended that Mr. Snell had been nominated candidate for speaker and that his own title to be floor leader still held good. The seven ballots which had been necessary to elect Mr. Snell proved to be but a preliminary to a free-for-all over this moot point as to the party leadership.

In the end a resolution favoring Mr. Tilson, introduced by Representative Chindblom of Illinois, another favoring Mr. Snell, and a third counseling delay were all withdrawn, and the decision was postponed until after congress convenes and it is seen whether or not the Democrats come into power.

Thirteen Candidates Appear.

In contrast to the perfunctory single ballot necessary for a choice under the regime of the late Speaker Longworth and durng the days of Republican ascendancy, the first vote at today's party conference brought out 13 candidates. Tilson, with 89 votes, and Snell, with 86, were easily in the lead, favorite sons sharing the remainder of the 185 ballots cast.

Snell Emerges Winner.

From then until the final ballot votes for favorite sons fell away and were transferred to the Snell and Tilson column. Following the seventh ballot, in which Representative Snell received 96 votes, or only one less than a majority of the 193 votes cast, and Tilson 64, the Connecticut representative announced that he would withdraw and moved that Snell's election be declared unanimous.

Representative Snell, chairman of the powerful house rules committee, has often been in conflict with the President. Notable was his and Speaker Longworth's bolt last spring, when they permitted the bonus bill to come to a vote on the floor instead of keeping it in committee, as the administration wished. Mr. Snell comes from a dry New York district and is rated a moderate dry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis' long awaited choice between running for his old seat as senator from Kansas and for his present office as second on the Republican presidential ticket was made today.

Mr. Curtis' decision against the senatorial race and in favor of a vice presidential campaign was made known in the following announcement:

"There has been presented for my decision the question whether I shall be a candidate for United States senator from Kansas in 1932, and if not, whether I shall accept another nomination for vice president in the event of its being tendered to me.

"Many reasons have been assigned by my friends to support either course I pursue.

Picks Vice Presidency.

"After careful consideration I have decided not to be a candidate for the United States senate from Kansas in 1932; and further, that if the next Republican national convention nominates me for Vice President I shall accept."

His decision was immediately hailed with political paens by Republican leaders, who interpreted it as a profession of faith in President Hoover's 1932 chances by one noted for his political acumen.

Among such smiling pronouncements was one by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, whose own tenure in the office of president pro tempore of the senate is being nibbled at by restive talk among the senate radicals. Said the author of the famous "sons of the wild jackass" phrase:

"The Vice President's announcement will serve to give much encouragement to his party—and he doubtless has reached this conclusion after a careful study of political conditions throughout the country. His decision is proof that there is little reason for Republican apprehension in 1932 and I look for 'the old ticket' to come through once more with a handsome margin."

Another Interpretation.

Beneath the gay talk of the Moses type, however, there was discussion of a more skeptical nature—which had Mr. Curtis turning down the Kansas senatorship for very much the same reason that the fox passed up the grapes. For it is common knowledge that recent reports from the heart of the wheat belt have been to the effect that Kansas is due to feel in 1932 just about what she felt in 1930, when she rejected the Republican, Henry J. Allen, who had been appointed on Mr. Curtis' resignation, and elected the Democratic George McGill to finish Curtis' term.

According to this view, Mr. Curtis' decision was not a profession of faith but a choice between two none too peaceful prospects.

While it is conceded that Mr. Curtis probably will be President Hoover's running mate, it is known that there is a considerable Republican group who hoped that the Vice President would prefer to be senator from Kansas again.

This group would like to see the vice presidential candidate a younger man—Mr. Curtis will be 72 in January. Many would like to see the candidate a wet. Mr. Curtis is dry. Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico or Secretary of War Patrick Hurley would suit this group better than the Kansan. Also, it is argued, either one of the two would be better able to bear the burden of stumping the country, a job which President Hoover probably will not wish to perform.

COUNT IN LONDON TO BUY ESTATE FOR BOURBONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Count Grammont, believed to be acting on instructions from four Bourbon princes, has arrived in London to buy an estate near the city with 6,000 acres of shooting grounds and a castle with not less than 20 bedrooms.

This move follows plans to call a family conference of the Bourbons in January and indicates the family intends to establish itself in England.

The princes belong to the French and Sicilian branches. They are anxious to establish a repository for family heirlooms now stored throughout Europe. The jewels, they believe, are none too safe in other lands, as former King Alfonso of Spain has discovered. It is understood the princes also plan to make their new property an asylum for certain exiles.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING.

John Geuris, 59 years old, hanged himself yesterday in the woodshed behind his home at 1415 Portland avenue, Chicago Heights. His widow told police that he had been out of work for a year.

DISARMING WON'T STOP WAR, SAYS SMEDLEY BUTLER

Predicts Next World Fight Will Be in Far East.

"The center of the next world war will be in the far east," declared Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States marines, retired, in a debate before 2,000 persons in Orchestra hall last night.

Gen. Butler took the negative side of the question whether disarmament will ends wars, and made his prophecy concerning the next world conflict while discussing the situation in Manchuria.

"Japan is not so ready to listen to the so-called conscience of the world as she has been pictured," said Gen. Butler. "She will take what she wants in Manchuria and leave the rest to the league of nations. Japan is not a foolish nation. The trouble is not all over, as late dispatches filtering through Tokio have indicated, and the United States cannot keep itself out by disarming.

The Way to Keep Out of War.

"The best way to keep out of wars is to use words of one syllable, to sign treaties with one hand and wave a club with the other. I don't believe in internationalism. I don't believe in feeding Europe. I believe in staying at home and feeding ourselves. The league of nations is an international depository for lame ducks.

"Treaties have never assured peace, and I believe that secret diplomacy, with the lack of one syllable words that would let us all in on what it's all about, contributes to wars. We'll never submit an argument with France to a Russian to settle and we'll never submit our difficulties with Mexico to a Japanese.

"We have been told that eighty cents out of every dollar collected by the United States is spent for past wars and preparation for others to come. We shouldn't have to spend that much if we hadn't been foolish and had been prepared for the last one. If all nations would lay down their arms it might stop wars, but I doubt it.

When Disarming Is Foolish.

"Certainly, with everybody else preparing, it would be foolish for us to disarm. Whether Americans are armed or not they'll hit when the time comes. They are brought up that way. Mothers will have to stop bringing their boys up that way if they don't want wars.

"War is hell, and I'm opposed to it, but it is simply a question of how long the next one can be postponed."

"The Rev. Preston Bradley of the People's church took the affirmative stand of the question. He argued that there never was a war that didn't create bigger problems than itself, that wars are made by old men and fought by the young, and that the genius of mankind, which has abolished all barrier of communication, will not tolerate "alley rat warfare, killing each other."

ENDS LIFE AT PARK ENTRANCE.

Ernest W. Reynolds, 65 years old, 1180 West 63rd street, an insurance agent, shot and killed himself in Jackson Park near the East 63rd street entrance yesterday. A scrawled note in his pockets read, "I can't seem to get well."

NEW YORK ADOPTS BIGGEST BUDGET; IS OVER 631 MILLIONS

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Efforts of civic organizations and public spirited citizens to reduce the 1932 budget failed today and it was officially adopted—the largest budget in the city's history, providing for expenditures of $631,368,297—by the board of aldermen.

This is the final action on the budget. The vote, 61 to 3, was on the majority report of the finance committee of the board recommending adoption. A dissenting member of the committee submitted a minority report urging a cut of more than $10,000,000 in the budget and insisted on submitting his report to a vote.

The finance committee reported favorably on the budget after holding three public hearings at which representatives of civic organizations and public spirited citizens demanded that the amount be reduced. Two executive sessions also were held.

SIAMESE ENVOY HERE ON HIS WAY TO WASHINGTON

Phya Subarn Sompati, newly appointed minister of Siam to the United States, arrived in Chicago yesterday, en route to Washington to take up his new duties. For the last four years Mr. Sompati has represented Siam at Tokio and his transfer here was due to the recent visit to this country of King Prajadhipok who considers his American legation most important, according to the minister. Mr. Sompati was educated in London. He landed at Los Angeles ten days ago and spent several days visiting the moving picture studios and the Grand canyon. He is stopping at the Blackstone hotel and will leave for Washington today.

CANADIAN WHEAT CHAMPION KEEPS HIS WORLD CROWN

Wins with Durum First Time in History.

BY PAUL POTTER.

American farmers vied with rugged Canadians from the wind-blown prairies of the north Peace river country, 1,100 miles north of Chicago, in the coronation of grain and hay kings at the International Live Stock exposition at the stockyards yesterday.

Wheat growers from "the states" were unable to upset the wheat crown from last year's winner, Herman Trella, world war veteran from Wembley, Alberta. Trella proved his resourcefulness in crop production by winning the highest honor in the grain world with durum wheat, the first time this variety has ever gained such recognition in the annals of the exposition. He also won yesterday's reserve championship award on oats, one of seven grain championships he has won in this show.

Keeps Trophy Permanently.

Trella, born and reared in Idaho, still uses a crutch as the result of war wounds. He was awarded a tour of the world last year by a Canadian railroad for his winnings in Chicago. He settled in the Peace river valley immediately after the war, being in Chicago this week as the guest of the Calgary Chamber of Commerce. He retains the trophy for wheat permanently.

His shining gold sample of wheat which was the admiration of yesterday's stock show throngs weighed 66.4 pounds per bushel, while the reserve champion sample of white spring wheat weighed 67.9. This wheat was grown and shown by C. Edson Smith, Cervalis, Mont.

To Colorado went the laurels for sending the finest oats. They were produced by Dr. J. F. Meisner of La Jara, Col. His 8 spelt strain of oats called Colorado No. 37 by grain growers won over Trella's Victory variety for the first time, although the Meisner oats have been runnersup in several previous competitions.

Nebraska Hay Wins.

From Nebraska came the best hay of the year, representative of the crop which occupies more American land than any other farm product. It was the alfalfa hay shown by M. V. Gillett, Lexington, Neb. Gillett, the new world "hay king" was closely followed in the judging by George A. Bauerman of Crown Point, Ind., whose red clover brought reserve honors back to Chicagoland.

Corn growers, attending the show in larger number than ever before were awaiting today's crowning of the corn king. Indiana and Illinois have always retained the glory but many yesterday expressed the opinion that some Iowa samples had to be reckoned with before today's championships could be determined.

In the livestock arena, where attendance records which were broken the first two days of the exhibition were again being matched yesterday, state agricultural colleges were winning most of the honors, with their "educated animals."

Purdue university's shepherds and herdmen yesterday demonstrated that this Indiana school could win in the arena as well as on the gridiron, by taking the lion's share of the college awards for Hampshire and medium wool sheep, as well as Poland, China and Berkshire hogs.

James G. Stone Visitor.

Among the visitors yesterday were James C. Stone, federal farm board chairman, who spoke briefly before the annual meeting of Master Farmers at Stock Yards inn. He did not discuss any recent developments concerning the board. He commended the type of profitably producing farmers represented at the exposition. Earl Elijah, master farmer of Clarence, Ia., was honored at the meeting.

Other visitors included Rennick W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, whose portrait was unveiled in the Saddle and Sirloin club last evening, and Grecter Gaw, who spent the day at the exposition representing Mayor Cermak. E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, was another guest.

Russia took cognizance of successful agriculture here by sending a party of soviet representatives to the exposition yesterday. The party included M. Kanfsky, director of Amtorg Trading corporation, and E. G. Lesenef, vice president in charge of agricultural work. S. M. Basnke, New York cattleman, conducted the party.

Byrd Attends Horse Show.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was among those at the horse show last night. The horse exhibition is being held nightly. Last night was the first opportunity for intersectional competition by horse owners, and out of town exhibitors obtained a lead with three first place winners in the first three major events.

BANKRUPTCY RECEIVER NAMED.

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday appointed Sam Howard receiver in involuntary bankruptcy proceeding for the Tal Mountain company, manufacturers of asbestos articles at 176 West Adams street. The liabilities are about $250,000 and assets about $75,000, according to attorneys.

Twelve hundred youthful champion-ship stock raisers and farmers of the nation yesterday inspected the world's finest live stock on exhibit at the Chicago stock yards. They spent the day as guests of the International Live Stock show.

The Chicago Union Stock Yards became the world's largest barnyard for the day as the nation's future farmers and farmers' wives, who are now members of 4-H clubs from coast to coast, looked over the blue ribbon cattle and swine. Among the exhibits were representative ones of their own.

Start Health Examinations.

Fifteen boys and fifteen girls, the pick of more than 350,000 members of 4-H clubs, yesterday morning were subjected to the preliminary inspection of five doctors, dentists, and nurses at Elizabeth McCormick Memorial institute. From their number will be selected the healthiest boy and the healthiest girl after final inspections today.

The boy and girl delegates were the guests of Sears, Roebuck & Co. at a barbecue luncheon in the Sale pavilion, 43d street and Dexter Park avenue.

Guest of Packers.

The highest individual score was made by Donald Southerland of Waverly, Neb. Second highest was Ted Brown, also of Waverly, Neb., third, was Merrit Giffin, Ringsted, Ia., and fourth, William Westgate, Coopersville, Mich. The boys judged corn, oats, potatoes, alfalfa, sweet potatoes, spring wheat and winter wheat.

Last night the delegates were guests at dinner at the Wilson & Co. packing plant. Thomas E. Wilson, president, awarded three scholarships previously announced, to Carl Oldham, Hancock county, Ind., Walter Jaeger, Sherwood, Ore., and Harold P. Hamilton, Pine Plains, N. Y.

Mr. Wilson then announced three additional scholarships of $300 each, for special achievement with live stock, which he awarded to Walter Todd, Rennselaer, Ind., Walter Schuman, Larwill, Ind., and Gordon Neal, Mount Vernon, Ia.

2 LINCOLN PARK POLICE VETERANS RETIRING TODAY

Rounding out an aggregate of 73 years of service, Lieuts. Charles Thoren and Charles E. Shaw made their last official rounds of Lincoln Park last night. Their resignations from the police force become effective today.

Lieut. Thoren, who is 63 years old and lives at 1635 Highland avenue, quits with a record of 42 years and a month of service. Even recalling the days when he worked for $66.66 a month, 12 hours a day and seven days a week, he said, "Chicago has been good to me and I am going to stay here."

Lieut. Shaw, who served for 20 years as chief of the park police, quit with 31 years of service. He is 67 years old and lives at 921 George street. "Yes, I've seen a few changes," he said, "from horses to bicycles to automobiles."

Britain Slaps on New 50% Tariff to Stop Dumping

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The British government issued its second order tonight under the anti-dumping act. Effective next Friday, a 50 per cent duty will be levied on imports under the headings of glass bottles and jars, batteries, carbons, woolen yarns, household linen, jute tissues, carpets and rugs, candle tapers, sporting guns, rifles and carbines, air guns, pistols, spoons, and forks.

GOVERNOR OPENS POULTRY EXHIBIT AT NOON TODAY

New Classes for Pets Are Proving Popular.

Feathered elite of the principal poultry sections of the United States were placed in their cages yesterday in the Coliseum as the final preparation for the annual Coliseum poultry exposition, which is to be opened officially at noon today by Gov. Emmerson. The court of honor from which he and several other speakers will dedicate the six day show will be in the center of more than 9,000 entries.

Forty-three judges will select the blue and purple ribbon winners. The birds on exhibition range from tiny day old chicks to the 45 pound Narragansett gobbler entered by Mrs. Albert Schmidt of Barnard, Kas.

Show Grades of Eggs.

The opening program, which will be broadcast, will include speeches by Rennick W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture; Harvey Sconce, agricultural director of the Century of Progress exposition; H. A. Nourse, president of the American Poultry association; M. A. Jull, director of the federal department of poultry husbandry, Washington, D. C., and Reese V. Hicks, managing director of the International Back Chick association.

Educational exhibits will be displayed at both ends of the main hall. In the north wing there will be poultry products shown as a buying guide for housewives. Dressed poultry will be refrigerated to below freezing. In an adjoining refrigerated section there will be 160 displays of eggs of various grades. Each of the 160 displays will consist of three eggs broken in a dish and with them a dozen whole to show color, size and quality.

Chinese Goose Is Clown.

A Chinese goose which stalks around dressed in pantaloons is one of the "clowns" of the exposition. He was brought here from Washington, Ia., by Gerald Duncan and follows his owner not only around all the booths and aisles of the show hall but on trips out into the street.

Manager Harvey C. Wood announced that scores of entries were received at the show yesterday in the special pet and mascot division, in which prizes are to be awarded today.

FILIPINO MAKES PLEA FOR FREEDOM; POINTS TO ECONOMIC WEAPON

The Philippine islands have been missed by the world depression because most of the natives follow an agricultural life and have simple needs, according to Dr. Hilario Camino Moncado, president of the Filipino Federation of America. He arrived in Chicago yesterday on his way to Washington to present before congress arguments for independence of the islands.

"When congress passes legislation granting independence," said Dr. Moncado, "tariff income for the United States will be increased, political expenses decreased, unemployment decreased, competition in agricultural products decreased and the farming and financial interests of the United States will be benefited."

"Sugar can be produced more cheaply in the Philippines than in the United States," he said, "owing to the cheap labor. The Philippines could increase their output of sugar and cotton and put them on the market, which would lower the price.

"The time for eloquence and soft words has gone, and the way to independence is to strike at the American economic structure."

JUDGE DISMISSES CONTEST ON WILL OF WM. M. HOYT

Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of the Lake county Circuit court yesterday dismissed a suit seeking to set aside the will of William M. Hoyt, pioneer wholesale grocer. Miss Josephine Landon Kellogg and Mrs. Jeanette Aiken Black of Winthrop Harbor, sisters, were the plaintiffs. They claimed they were lawful heirs of a large part of Mr. Hoyt's property.

Specifically, the suit sought to compel the Union Trust company of Chicago to give up the Hoyt estate, on the ground that Mr. Hoyt obtained property through fraud from Ellen Josephine Landon, an aunt of Miss Kellogg and Mrs. Black. Miss Landon was a sister of Mr. Hoyt's wife and lived with the Hoyts for fifty years.

The transfer of the property from Miss Landon to Mr. Hoyt occurred in 1877. Judge Shurtleff held that the documents existant were the best evidence left since the death of all the parties concerned in the transactions and so dismissed the suit. Among the heirs of Mr. Hoyt are Mrs. T. Philip Swift, Mrs. Dexter Cummings and Mrs. A. Landon Hoyt, all of Lake Forest.

RETIRED BROKER LEAPS TO DEATH FROM WINDOW

George F. Houlihan, 50 years old, a retired broker, leaped to his death last night from his room on the eighth floor of the Eastgate hotel, St. Clair and Ontario streets. His body fell into St. Clair street.

Residents of the hotel with whom he was conversing shortly before his death said he complained of being lonesome. Hotel attaches asserted he had been drinking heavily for a week and that he had remarked he was hard hit in the stock market recently. The police found a quantity of wine in his room and indications that Houlihan had been drinking gin.

In the room also was a bank book showing he had about $[illegible] in the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank. Houlihan also had a $1,000 bond on deposit in the hotel safe. He came here from Susquehanna, Pa., four years ago and had been living continuously at the Eastgate since.

Drop Charge of Confidence Game Against Mrs. Price

A cheap of confidence game against Mrs. Laura B. Price, wife of Edwin Price, wealthy woodenware manufacturer, was nol prossed before Judge Philip Sullivan in the Crimical court yesterday. Mrs. Price has served a six months sentence in the county jail for a fake $18,000 jewel robbery to collect insurance, which was staged on Feb. 25, 1929. This sentence was on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, and Mrs. Price's attorneys pleaded that she had "paid her debt to society."

CATARRH Can Now Be Decisively Conquered

Headcolds Killed

Sore Throats Soothed

Hoarseness Instantly Relieved

Opens Up Stuffed Nostrils in 3 Minutes

Is That Good News?

Ask Any Walgreen Store About Opex

Catarrh is a disease that causes no end of annoyance and humiliation and is a condition that all clean people detest.

In these days, when the air we breath is so laden with irritants such as smoke, soot, dust and poisonous gases from motor vehicles, nose and throat hygiene is especially important.

A few years ago, Catarrh was considered incurable, because no one was clever enough to get together a formula that would spread over the membranes of the nasal tract a cleansing substance that would keep them free from vile mucus.

But Opex changed all that and now all you have to do is to spray on Opex and faithfully treat the cause of Catarrh.

Just note the picture showing how Opex acts on the unclean, irritated membrane. See the steam-like smoke going in at one nostril and out the other.

When you use Opex you see the cleansing vapor as fine as smoke coming thru the nostrils—and it will come thru no matter how stuffed up they are.

That's the way to get after Catarrh and to lessen those annoying, ringing, buzzing noises in the ears when caused by Catarrh.

The price of a bottle of Opex that will last 7 weeks is 83c—it's easily worth one hundred dollars to any man or woman who wants clean nostrils free from disgusting mucus.

Opex is the swift modern hygienic treatment for stubborn catarrh because it reaches, cleanses and soothes the irritated membrane and clears it of mucus.

And remember this: the toughest old head colds are knocked out in a few hours with Opex—it's the magic treatment of science, for with this new discovery you can reach the entire respiratory tract—right down to the bottom of the lungs.

Bear this in mind also for it will be joyful news to millions. After you spray Opex for two or three weeks there won't be any lump of mucus in your throat to hawk up every morning—what a blessing.

Opex is sold by any Walgreen store with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance. And here's cheering news—if you spray with Opex night and morning it's a pretty safe bet you won't have a cough or cold or sore throat all winter long—that's how thoroughly Opex does its work of prevention.

Note the Picture—

If you haven't an atomizer get an Opex nebulizer (see picture) full size, nickel plated and will last for years, 98 cents.

When you inhale deeply as you spray the nostrils, you can reach the whole respiratory tract with Opex—right down to the bottom of the lungs themselves.

Spray through the nose and inhale—and the healing, soothing, smoke-like vapor will come through the mouth—you can see it—and you know it has reached the bottom of the lungs.

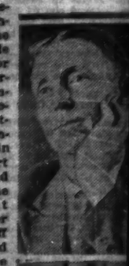
LABOR LEADER DENIES HE TOLD MINERS TO KIL

Defendant Takes Stand Kentucky Trial.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—W. B. Jones, United Mine Workers secretary and organizer in one of the national trouble spots of labor for the last year, Harlan county, Kentucky, sought tonight on the witness stand to convince the jury in Circuit court here that he had no part in the conspiracy that led to the murder of Deputy Sheriff Jim Daniels and three aids on the morning of May 11.



W. B. JONES

Jones began his story at the opening of the defense after 16 witnesses had testified the commonwealth, that he was a party to the fatal roadside clash near Evarts, linking him in the plot that led over this ground by his counsel, former U. S. Senator John Robsion, he denied everything flatly.

His Version of the Affair.

On the morning of the battle Jones said he was at home in Evarts dictating letters concerning aid to needy miners. His wife was washing dishes, his seven children playing in the yard. Nothing was further from his thought than murder.

As for Jim Daniels, leader of the Black Mountain Coal company forces, Jones said that shortly before this he had met him on the road and had given him a cigar. He had always advocated law and order, he said, and counseled the men against violence.

Any conspiracy that existed, he asserted, was one against him by coal operators who were seeking to crush the union forever in Harlan county.

The announcement that Jones would testify drew the biggest crowd that has ever come to the courtroom. His story was regarded as the key to the defense. It is to be followed by one hundred or more Harlan witnesses who have come here in his behalf.

A Fluent Witness.

Jones is a fluent, talker and his manner is quiet. The jurors paid very close attention to the first part of his story, but later seemed to tire and Judge Prewitt postponed the climax until tomorrow morning.

The defendant said he was 43 years old and had been a coal miner and a member of the United Mine Workers in Ohio for 29 years. In 1928 he moved to Harlan county and went to work for the Black Mountain company until last March 8, when he was discharged.

"What for?" asked Senator Robsion.

"Because I had attended a union meeting. This was what Supt. Childress told me. The mine bosses said there was no fault with my work."

After this he got an eviction notice and had to leave his company house. He went to Evarts, where he was elected financial secretary of a local union. He said he had made talks at several meetings, but never had advocated hurting any one or doing any violence.

"I told the men to help support the sheriff and keep law and order," he said.

Many Miners Jobless.

Union miners were being discharged all over the county at this time, he testified, and more than 3,000 of them gathered in Evarts. He told of his efforts to secure food and clothing for the families of the men out of work, of committees appointed, solicitation and distribution.

Asked about the beating of a fellow union miner, Charlie Carpenter, at a union meeting, he said there was much commotion and he heard some

Jones began his story at the opening of the defense after 78 witnesses had testified for the commonwealth, that he was a principal, linking him in the plot that led to the fatal roadside clash near Evarts.

Led over this ground by his chief counsel, former U. S. Senator John M. Robsion, he denied everything specifically.

His Version of the Affair.

On the morning of the battle Jones said he was at home in Evarts addressing letters concerning aid to needy miners. His wife was washing and his seven children playing in the yard. Nothing was further from his thought than murder.

As for Jim Daniels, leader of the Black Mountain Coal company police, Jones said that shortly before this he had met him on the road and had given him a cigar. He had always advocated law and order, he said, and admonished the men against violence.

Any conspiracy that existed, he asserted, was one against him by the coal operators who were seeking to crush the union forever in Harlan county.

The announcement that Jones was to testify drew the biggest crowd that has ever come to the courtroom. His story was regarded as the key to the defense. It is to be followed by the one hundred or more Harlan witnesses who have come here in his behalf.

A Fluent Witness.

Jones is a fluent talker and intelligent. The jurors paid very close attention to the first part of his story, but later seemed to tire and Judge Prewitt postponed the climax until tomorrow morning.

The defendant said he was 43 years old and had been a coal miner and a member of the United Mine Workers in Ohio for 29 years. In 1930 he moved to Harlan county and went to work for the Black Mountain corporation until last March 3, when he was discharged.

"What for?" asked Senator Robsion.

"Because I had attended a union meeting. This was what Supt. E. B. Childress told me. The mine boss said there was no fault with my work."

After this he got an eviction notice and had to leave his company house. He went to Evarts, where he was elected financial secretary of a local. He said he had made talks at several meetings, but never had advocated hurting any one or doing any violence.

"I told the men to help support the sheriff and keep law and order," he said.

Many Miners Jobless.

Union miners were being discharged all over the county at this time, he testified, and more than 3,000 of them gathered in Evarts. He told of his efforts to secure food and clothing for the families of the men out of work, of committees appointed, solicitation and distribution.

Asked about the beating of a non-union miner, Charlie Carpenter, at a union meeting, he said there was some commotion and he heard something about it, but was not near the crowd that did it.

He denied that he had ever owned any guns or pistols. In explanation of evidence that men with guns had been seen to congregate at his house, he said that gun carrying was common in the county and that often men brought guns to him to trade for food. He bought one for $15, he said, and had it in the house but never used it.

Instead of inciting riot and trouble, he said the union miners appointed a committee to guard the commissary store from robbery.

Heard Shooting, He Says.

On the day of the shooting, he said, he was at home all morning. He heard the shooting and thought it was the signal for a fire somewhere in town.

He said that the miners had been stirred up over the action of the deputy sheriffs in running miners off the road, beating them, etc., and that on the night before the killings a committee had been appointed to ask help from Sheriff Blair. He denied all incendiary speeches that state witnesses have attributed to him.

Jones took the stand at the evening session. The state had rested its case at the close of the afternoon session. The state's final witness was Carpenter, the miner who swore he had been beaten by a group of men headed by Jones.

There are 150 defense witnesses in town and some question has arisen as to how they will be fed and lodged during the duration of the trial. They are all poor miners. The expectation was that the state would pay for this, but the prosecution has objected on the ground that the defense did not furnish them a list of witnesses until the day the trial started.

In the meantime the hotel that is housing the men has demanded money, and there is no money.

MINNEAPOLIS POLICE NEWS DENIED PRESS BY CHIEF W. J. MEEHAN

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Chief William J. Meehan put a censorship on police news today. For the first time in seventeen years records of accidents, robberies, raids, and missing persons were denied to newspaper reporters.

The first inkling of the new order came when reporters asked William Butler, statistician of the police record bureau, for the records. He refused them, referring reporters to Chief Meehan.

"The grand jury seems to think there has been too much prying into police records," Chief Meehan declared. "I don't want to get into trouble, so I am not making them public."

Asked for the list of automobile accidents, Chief Meehan also refused it. He explained that if a reporter was interested in any special inquiry the information could be had by filling out a regular police form.

The "yellow sheet," having to do with crimes of the previous 24 hours, likewise was withheld.

Finally the bar was slapped on the list of stolen automobiles. This list for years has been published as a part of the newspapers daily statistics.

"You don't get anything," Chief Meehan explained to reporters who wanted to know what information they could expect from the police.

CAN RADIO BOARD CENSOR THE AIR? COURT TO DECIDE

Suppressed Station Sues to Settle Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Raising for the first time the practical issue of freedom of speech on the air, station KGEF of Los Angeles, with which the Rev. Dr. Robert P. [Fighting Bob] Shuler has been identified, today appealed from the decision of the federal radio commission summarily ordering the station silent for the purported transgressions of Dr. Shuler.

Through Attorney Louis G. Caldwell the station petitioned the court of appeals of the District of Columbia to restore the station to operating status pending the outcome of the litigation challenging the constitutionality of the commission's decision, rendered on Nov. 13, and began a legal proceeding that is destined for the Supreme court.

Minnesota Gag Issue Again.

Mr. Caldwell said the commission's decision is a "direct and unmistakable challenge to the right of free speech guaranteed by the constitution of the United States" as defined by the Supreme court in the Minnesota gag law case, decided only last June 1. This case was carried to the highest court for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE by the law firm in which Mr. Caldwell is a partner.

"In the said case the facts were virtually indentical with those in the instant case except that it involved a newspaper, whereas this case involves a broadcasting station," Mr. Caldwell informed the court, which sits as a sort of super radio commission under the law. "If the commission is upheld in its decision in this case, the supposed constitutional right of American citizens to free speech with respect to radio broadcasting will be worthless and nonexistent."

How Contest Arose.

KGEF, a 1,000 watt station, was licensed to the Trinity Methodist church, of which Dr. Shuler is pastor. Until its removal on Nov. 13, without advance notice and without the customary 30 day period of grace, it had been on the air continuously for about five years. Complaints had been received by the commission against the vigorous broadcasts of Dr. Shuler who was prominent in the civic and church affairs of Los Angeles. In ordering the station silent the commission reversed the recommendation of Ellis A. Yost, its chief examiner, who found that while some of Dr. Shuler's broadcasts were objectionable that they represented only a minimum of the station's program service, and that it was not within the commission's province to censor the broadcasts. The station represents an investment of $45,250, which Mr. Caldwell alleges is totally destroyed by the decision.

BRITAIN ANSWERS INDIA'S PLEA FOR LIBERTY TODAY

Government to Show Its Hand.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1 [Tuesday].—British politicians, working until the early hours of this morning, prepared to answer today India's insistent demands for freedom.

The cabinet, summoned to Prime Minister MacDonald's room in the house of commons for an extraordinary meeting, met three hours, not only to go over Mr. MacDonald's farewell speech to the round table conference at its conclusion later today, but also, it is said, to consider a last minute Labor demand by W. Wedgwood Benn, former secretary of state for India, that whatever is agreed upon so far be incorporated into a bill at once and rushed through parliament.

36 Indians Speak.

Meanwhile, the round table conference, under various chairmen acting in Mr. MacDonald's absence, listened to thirty-six speeches by Indian delegates who began talking yesterday afternoon and were still at it after midnight.

Shortly after Mr. MacDonald returned to the conference from the cabinet meeting Mahatma Gandhi, India's national leader, arose and delivered what the British believe was his swan song in England.

"I will strain every nerve to obtain an honorable settlement without exposing India's millions to the terrible ordeal of civil disobedience," he said. "But if it must be faced I will do it with joy. I am open to compromise as long as the settlement is honorable and the liberty real. As long as there is foreign rule in India there is no solution to India's problem."

Britain to Show Its Hand.

The plenary session concluded with speeches by Pandit Malaviya and V. S. Shastri, both Hindu leaders. Mr. MacDonald's speech today will be the first inkling of the government's policy in India.

That over, Mr. MacDonald will plunge into the debate on India which will open in the house of commons tomorrow.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE LISTS FOUR WAYS TO REVIVE TRADE

Wants Public Ownership of Necessities.

Gov. Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin spoke last night at Sinai Temple on "Can Democracy Function?" There is no overproduction in this country, either agriculturally or industrially, he asserted, but there is a mal-distribution of our products, inasmuch as we export only 7 per cent of what we produce.

After saying that our present trouble is due to the fact that our national income has not been properly divided in the past he suggested four remedies:

1. Direct public ownership and control of things of common necessity.
2. Continuous planning and studying of our problems.
3. Create machinery to enable business to govern itself.
4. Proper use of the tax power.

Political System a Success.

Our political government is a success, Gov. La Follette declared, regardless of what may be said of individual politicians. Our forefathers overthrew a tyranny and established a democracy and as to the form of government they did a good job, in the opinion of the young governor.

But at that time, over a hundred and fifty years ago, he said there were no agricultural or industrial problems because the great bulk of the people were self-sustaining. But in this age things are different because money is a medium of exchange and those who should and would be buying have not the money, the speaker stated.

Gov. La Follette talked of the thousands of farmers who have lost their homes and their lands because of the "unpurchasable surplus," while, he said, we have the economic machinery to produce all that is necessary for the use of 120,000,000 people, which "gets us down to the medium of distribution."

Wants Public Ownership.

In recommending a form of public ownership regarding necessities Gov. La Follette said there should be a sufficient amount of protection for the public against unreasonable rates. He cited instances in his own state as examples. On the remedy of studying and planning he said in past days any one who wanted to build could build anywhere, whether a building was needed or not.

"Is there any law and order in the business world and industrial world?" he asked. "Economically you have anarchy. Economically you haven't any government. Everybody is for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

The governor discussed labor saving machinery that causes unemployment. It should result in a lessening of hours of labor and not in lessening of employment, he declared.

"I disagree with President Hoover," the governor said. "There are three public treasuries, national, state, and local. He says a dollar taken from the national treasury for relief is a dole, from the state treasury a dole in small letters, but from the local treasury it is home relief."

ESTRANGED WIFE ACCUSES MOTHER IN $50,000 SUIT

Mrs. Stella Ahern, 25 years old, 1463 East 54th place, took the stand yesterday in the court of Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis to testify against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Ahern, 62 years old, 4419 Drexel avenue. The younger woman is suing the elder for $100,000 damages for the loss of the affection of her husband, Frank. The husband, manager of the Dulak hotel, 3714 Lake Park avenue, which is owned by his mother, has a divorce bill pending against his wife who has filed a cross bill also asking for divorce. Both charge adultery.

Mrs. Stella Ahern testified that her mother-in-law told her she would bring about the separation. Two other witnesses, Arthur Forster, 5532 South Troy street, and the Rev. Father F. D. Cannel, 5511 South Sawyer avenue, asserted that the elder Mrs. Ahern had expressed disapproval of her daughter-in-law.

Mrs. Anna Ahern will take the stand in her own defense today.

RIDE SOUTH FROM ILLINOIS SHOWS WHERE TAXES GO

Federal Road Aid Helps Build Party Fences.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—A tour through the south, such as is being made by THE TRIBUNE road car, shows where the government spends much of the $247,137,000 collected annually in federal taxes in Illinois. The administration at Washington gets most of its revenue from the wealthy and populous states of the north and east, but the appropriations are most generous where large federal expenditures are an aid to maintaining a Republican organization.

The day's drive here was from San Antonio, 440 miles, sixteen hours of fast wheeling. In that old Spanish city, explored in the early seventeenth century and settled in 1718, the army maintains the largest military post in America. The town, with a population today of 255,000, has been a military center for 200 years. In the business district is the Alamo, where 182 Texans in 1835, in the war for Texas independence, fought until the last man was killed in an unsuccessful defense against a Mexican army of 4,000.

Extensive Army Properties.

On the outskirts of the city are army properties valued at $34,000,000. The troops buy supplies at the rate of $12,000,000 a year, according to the chamber of commerce. For a new aviation training field, $5,000,000 has been spent, to finish the first unit of a $15,000,000 project.

Driving north from San Antonio on the old Spanish trail, the pavement follows the approximate route traveled by early French traders when Cadillac was governor of Louisiana, in about 1700. Extensive road construction work is noted. A telephone call to the Texas highway engineer, Gibb Gilchrist at Austin, gave the information that the Lone Star state spent $42,162,000 on its roads in the last fiscal year. This roughly equals the Illinois total. But in Texas $11,934,000 of the money was federal aid while Illinois received approximately $4,500,000 from the government. Illinois pays over six times as much taxes to the government as does Texas.

In addition to its federal aid for highways, Texas receives large appropriations for its harbors and canal, not to mention the millions sunk by the farm board in the state's cotton crop.

Sugar and the Tariff.

After leaving the miles of cotton fields on the rolling prairie between San Antonio and Houston, the route carried THE TRIBUNE car from the redolent pine forests in the swamp and bayou country of east Texas into the fields of sugar cane and moss hung forests of huge oaks in Louisiana.

It is cane cutting time in Louisiana. Louisiana's sugar and a Republican tariff have much in common.

Louisiana likewise is engaged in an extensive road building program and, like Texas, received bountiful aid from the government. Louisiana gets $14.10 in federal highway aid for every $100 federal taxes collected in the state as contrasted with the $1.70 received by Illinois for every $100 collected there.

The states east of here also receive federal road aid far above Illinois' $1.70 return per $100. Mississippi gets $74.70; Alabama, $32.60; Georgia, $14.90 and Florida $8.70.

Ship Is Scene for Chicagoan's Second Novel

Margaret Ayer Barnes' Book Out Today.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Edward Prestige," by Margaret Ayer Barnes. [Houghton-Mifflin.]

MARGARET AYER BARNES won the Pulitzer Prize last year with her novel "Years of Grace." That book is a long, convincing record of life in Chicago in the "years of grace," an excellent book. It fulfilled in full all the conditions of the difficult prize award. The fact that a first novel and that by one of our fellow townsfolk won the prize was all a special glow of pride. Everyone said the best of any prize is not the first, but the second book. The first may be carved from the very heart of a writer—many is. The second either may be a repetition of the first [if it has been a tremendous success] or an essay in new fields of fiction.

The hardest thing for any new writer to do is to duplicate his success. Margaret, and the most fatal. Mrs. Barnes has escaped any such a pose by choosing to do a second book that has no echo in it whatever to her first.

Another, in mood, style, material and plan is "Westward Passage." It's a story of depths of human emotion. It induces in the reader no mood of self stock taking. It is the thousands of readers of "Years of Grace" must have said to themselves on the usual "there, but for the grace of God, go I," but "There" the same readers of "Westward Passage" will look upon its characters with an amused detachment rather than a crippling sense of recognition. "plain."

"Westward Passage" takes seven years to run its course. Five of those years are so shortened, Mrs. Barnes has made the most dramatic moments of the seven days to come within the readers. Those moments bring the emotional harp strings of the characters in many different tones, but always the melody of a light one. Even when they are at extreme, the characters are seen by their author as gay and deftly amusing wearers of deep emotion.

The characters are Olivia, who is first married [the second time] to a Chicago millionaire who bores Olivia, her debutante daughter who embarrassingly sees through mother, but adores her stepfather, and—Olivia's first husband, Olivia's father. Just when it looks as though she was going to be shelved quite on the shelf by little Olivia's coming out, that she was going to become little Olivia's mother and have to be herself, fate tossed a plaything that gave back youth and romance to her. The plaything is the young man whom she had married with such childish adoration twenty years before, now with spectacular white hair, but startlingly unsuccessful in seeming middle-age otherwise.

When she had lived with him they had quarreled themselves into hatred. There was never enough money nor room, nor comfort, nor quiet for either of them. She left him for what she thought was a grand passion.

Olivia was being a little bitter about the grandness of that passion and about the horrors of being thirty-nine with a debutante daughter to proclaim her age. Then she saw her first mistake before her, the celebrity of the boat, a popular, internationally known novelist [the winner of the Nobel prize among other rewards from life].

Nature takes its course, that is, the natures of the two main characters, ex-husband and ex-wife, and the nature of the third of the triangle [child] take their courses. And therein lies the tale. Having the natures that the characters have those courses are inevitably amusing and jaunty.

WASHINGTON HUMAN, AND HE SWORE, TOO, PROF. HART INSISTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)—George Washington was described today as "a human being" by Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart in replying to charges that a pamphlet on Washington he prepared was erroneous and libelous.

F. Dumont Smith, Hutchinson, Kas., attorney and chairman of the Americanization committee of the American Ear association, had criticized the pamphlet, which was prepared by the George Washington bi-centennial commission.

He asserted a story, attributed to Jefferson in the pamphlet, about Washington using oaths at a cabinet meeting was unauthentic. He also criticized references to Washington's large salary and said every person "except the author of this pamphlet knows that Washington never received a cent of salary or compensation for public service."

Hart, professor emeritus of history at Harvard university, and now historian of the bi-centennial commission, replied:

"Washington, thank God, was a human being. A number of stories related by or about Jefferson referred to oaths being uttered by Gen. Washington. Documentary evidence supports both this portion of the pamphlet and the fact that President Washington received a salary."

Alien Language Press Unites for Washington

Editors to Help Celebrate Bicentennial.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

More than a hundred consuls from foreign countries, and editors and publishers of international newspapers, pledged their support yesterday to the celebration on Feb. 22, 1932, of the 200th birthday of George Washington. The group is to function as the international press committee of the George Washington Bi-centennial anniversary.

Tribute was paid to Washington by Peter S. Lambros, publisher of the Greek Star. He, as chairman of the committee, presided at the luncheon held in the Hamilton club.

"We wish to dedicate the international press to the true ideals of George Washington, so that the flags of all nations may march side by side next to the Stars and Stripes. As the years pass the fame of Washington grows greater. Many monuments have been built to Washington, but new ones will be built in our hearts with the preparation for this bi-centennial."

John R. Palandech presented resolutions adopted by the Foreign Language Press association supporting the bicentennial, describing Washington as "the guiding light and inspiration to our forefathers who came in search of liberty," and "who left us a heritage that will live forever."

Judge Henry Horner, representing Mayor Cermak, brought the news that the provision will be made today for a committee of Chicago citizens to represent the city in the bi-centennial plans. He said that 7,000 cities already had reported to the national commission which was created by an act of congress, and 56 cities in Illinois have responded.

Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, told the story of the "Great Stone Face" and then called upon the youth of the land "to look upon the great face of Washington in these times of struggle." He outlined the three nationwide contests open to students as a part of the bi-centennial program.

Among other speakers were James A. James of Northwestern university, who called Washington "the indispensable man in American history," and W. A. Patterson, publisher of the Western Newspaper Union who pledged codperation of country newspapers in the bi-centennial program.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Almost any one with a little intelligence can shine forth as a leader when times are good and all's right with the world. Many of them are but mirrors that reflect the brilliant light of prosperity, thus dazzling others into believing that they are radiating on their own. But it is the exceptional man who still stands forth and shines, be it ever so dimly, when the skies become clouded and everything is fearfully wrong.

Now, so long as cards follow their natural and average course, the fair bridge player has little trouble. When the cards become perverse and forget all laws of averages then the opportunity arises for the real bridge player.

Take yesterday's play-a-problem for instance:

NORTH
♠—A,K,J,8,5,3
♥—8
♣—A,4

WEST [Dealer]
♠—9
♥—A,K,J,5,3,2

EAST
♠—Q,10,7,6,4,2
♥—Q,10

SOUTH.
♠—None
♥—9,8,7,4
♦—K,J,10,2
♣—K,9,8,7,5

Everything was simply awful from the declarer's point of view.

West opened the bidding with a heart. North, holding a powerful hand with 4½ high card tricks made an attacking overcall of two spades. East passed in happy anticipation of a large set. South held 1¼ high card tricks and so took his partner out with three clubs. West bid three hearts. Now North, knowing his partner held 1½ high card tricks which, with his 4½ made 6, felt sure that he had a game. While his partner denied spades he had denied holding four spades. Since North held 6 he only needed to find two in South's hand. Since he knew the law of averages he felt sure of finding at least two and so bid four spades. East doubled. South passed since he feared that a return to clubs or a late showing of diamonds would only make matters worse.

East opened the ♥ Q, dummy played the 4, West the 5 and North the 6. East then led the ♥ 10 on which South played the 7, West the J, North trumping with the ♠ 2. North now led the ♠ K, playing the ♥ 8 from his dummy and getting his first sign of real danger from the fall of West's 9. North now led the ♣ A and followed by leading the ♣ 4 which he took in dummy with the K. Dummy then returned the ♣ 9 which North trumped with the ♠ 5. North next led the ♦ 2 which dummy took with the ♦ K and led back the ♦ J which was taken in the closed hand by the A. North then played the ♦ 5, East trumped with the ♠ 4, dummy playing the 3 and West the Q. Having nothing but spades in his hand East led the ♠ 6 which North took with the ♠ 8. North then led the ♦ 6 which East was forced to trump with the ♠ 7. East is now left with the Q and 10 of spades which he is forced to lead up to North's A and J, giving declarer the last two tricks and his game.

North should have found the outstanding spades divided 3-2-2 among the other three hands and instead he found them 6-1-0 with the 6 in his opponent's hand and over his own trump holding, but he was equal to the situation.

The day after tomorrow is the great Golden Card tournament. You can still enter. Drop in at any of The Tribune's public service stations and get your cards today. It is your last opportunity to do a lot for the needy and to participate in one of the greatest events in bridge history.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Number in the bidding squares. Are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

The play "solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S, 3, H, E, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the record and lead from that hand on the next round.

Good Morning!

If in doubt as to just what constitutes a gentleman, step over to the Loop-End, ladies . . . and what is with you . . . and find out.

"The Men in Her Life" is a most satisfactory picture. Interesting story, interestingly acted by interesting people! Who could be more charming and feminine for a heroine in distress than Lois Moran? Who more facile and lovable as a well bred rolling stone than Donald Dillaway? Who is better fitted to knock all the balls down the alley than the virile, fire eating Charles Bickford with his ready fists and the amazingly sweet smile that can so suddenly transform his pugnacious countenance into—if not a thing of beauty—a face any woman would spend a lot of time looking at? As for the villain—Victor Varconi's there! The perfect snake in count's clothing. A blackmailer, my dears! A blackmailer!

Well, there are the principals of "The Men in Her Life," all built to order. The chaps named are, of course, the men in the life of the romance seeking heroine, who meets with unexpected experiences on her quest and makes a discovery at the end of the trail that I think will delight you.

This engaging little programmer is smoothly directed, pleasingly filled, charmingly costumed and staged, and holds a full quota of suspense. It's the sort of movie both men and women like and that flappers go ga-ga over.

See you soon.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE Great Northern theater, which has a sturdy tradition of musical romance, now shelters another full-blown operetta, full of gallant soldiers and fair women whose honor is in dire danger from the horrors of war. "Marching By" is its title, and it is a swaggering military affair, dealing with minor tactics and major amours on the Austro-Russian front.

Should a first nighter, his emotions dreadfully torn by bugle calls, patriotic marches, and love songs, his sympathies still quivering over the spectacle of Lieut. Franz's betrothed in the arms of the rapacious Col. Petroff, endeavor to compare "Marching By" to its two somewhat famous predecessors—"Nina Rosa" and "Three Little Girls"? I think not. Operettas should be taken as they come, one at a time, and "Marching By," I believe, will satisfy the thirst of the Great Northern's following for this form of entertainment.

The piece contains memories of its forerunners, however, by reason of the presence in its leading rôles of Natalie Hall, who was the most serious and melodious sister in "Three Little Girls" and Guy Robertson and Leonard Ceeley, who were the deadly enemies in "Nina Rosa." This makes the show a reunion of the Great Northern alumni.

Miss Hall was gasped at in admiration, at her first entrance last night, because she has slenderized her figure and is an Austrian countess of any one's romantic dreams. Mr. Robertson, too, was neatly trained down to a weight that made him no match for the hefty Mr. Ceeley when he rushed forward to grapple with his mortal foe. Battling Robertson took a deadly jolt on the jaw from Socker Ceeley, and was knocked, if not for a goal, at least for a flight of stairs.

The show is full of the alarms and excursions of war in the comic opera sector, and the lusty maennerchor, for which these Great Northern productions are noted, is a busy gang, changing from Austrian to Russian equipment and back again every half hour, and singing battle hymns for both sides—"Marching By" for the Dandy 72d Austro-Hungarian Fusiliers and "Light Up" for the rough, carousing Cossacks of the lecherous Col. Petroff's command.

The 72d retreats from Lemberg for strategic purposes, leaving Guy Robertson, alias Lieutenant Franz, behind, asleep in the servants' quarters of the Hotel Imperial. This carelessness about Franz probably was an old Austrian military custom.

When the Russians arrive there is Franz, likely to get shot as a spy, and his fiancée, the countess, who pretends to be a maid in the hotel, has to be nice to Col. Petroff in order to save the life of her beloved. In fact, when the strutting colonel laughs, "ha-ha-ho-ho," and dresses the alleged maid up in a gorgeous new outfit, commandeered from Lemberg's best department store, the audience begins to think that operetta has gone sexy, like every other department of the drama.

But the countess does not have to make the great sacrifice, because at 10:45 the Austrians come up on the run and the Russians decide that it is time to get back to the good old Volga to practice their boat songs.

Feed Children, Bogan Urges, as Help to State

Health Affects Future, School Chief Says.

Cash contributions to the Hungry Sunset Children's fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1104 East 63d street, and 4152 West Madison street.

The feeding and care of the hundreds of hungry school children, presenting a tragic picture that Chicago cannot permit to continue, is the immediate and most urgent need for the coming winter, according to Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

"All charity is worthwhile, fulfilling a need and deserving of the efforts and financial assistance of all worthwhile citizens," Supt. Bogan said. "But the need of the child is vastly more important, far reaching and promising in after effects than any other need. It must not be forgotten that the child of today, going to school hungry and with a dimly defined feeling of rebellion, is the individual in whose hands the civilization of twenty years hence will be placed."

Supt. Bogan recalled the history of education in America, pointing out that what had at one time been considered a charity of the rich had evolved into a right of the poor. He made a strong plea for the rights of the poor child, both as to education and as to proper nourishment.

"We need not worry over the education or care of the children of the rich," he said. "They will be cared for in private schools and in their homes.

"Education and care of the children of the poor, starting as a charity, has become a right. Not only are we, as farseeing citizens, morally bound to care for the feeding of the mind of the child. If we consider the future of our own nation, whether we consider abstract humanity or not, we must see that the child of the poor has proper nourishment to develop a sound body in which a healthy mind may function."

In codperation with Supt. Bogan The Tribune started a system whereby small contributions from the general public may be used for the one purpose of feeding needy children. Contributions, totaling $20,000, sent in by the readers of The Tribune, have already been turned over to Miss Frances L. Swain of the home economics department of the public schools. The fund still contains a little over $5,700.

"Although a person feels a contribution to be small," Miss Swain said, "it brings large results. A nickel provides one warm lunch; a quarter will feed one child for five days. Such a small sum would not be missed by any one, and perhaps would mean the difference between a happy, well fed child and a neurotic, anti-social child, easily stepping into what might be a danger to society."

Every meal provided by the money is given out through the schools. A typical menu will include a warm drink, milk, or cocoa, bread and butter, some warm dish as spaghetti, and occasionally meat. Any person who would care to see where the money is used can make arrangements to visit a school in which free lunches are dispensed.

WARNER FILM STARS TOLD OF PLAN TO REDUCE THEIR PAY

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Indications that the stars of the cinematic firmament will be asked to take less money for their services came to a head today. Warner Bros.-First National notified their contract players they would be asked to agree to 20 to 30 per cent salary cuts.

This major studio has on its roster such high-salaried stars as Richard Barthelmess, George Arliss, Dorothy Mackaill, William Powell, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Bebe Daniels, Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Chatterton, Joe E. Brown, and Winnie Lightner.

In other studios, notably Fox and the recently merged RKO-Radio-Pathé, many artists, writers and directors have been asked to help alleviate their organizations' financial condition.

At Paramount, there were rumors today of anticipated slashes in most departments, but no reductions have yet been asked.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

It was Kit Lancaster's twenty-sixth birthday. She'd worked four years as receptionist in a London family hotel and she felt herself in a groove. When an East African guest offered her a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Sogoret, Kenya, she gladly accepts. Theo Sable was there and Kit wanted him more than anything in the world. They'd been in love, but their engagement was broken because of his mother. Kit tells us the "bride's boat" that Kenith is her name when Jane is going out to be married. Kit meets Lal Crowhurst, the second lead owner about Sogoret and a most attractive bachelor. He is attentive to Kit. Jane delights in telling Kit the scandal she hears about Lal Crowhurst and about "the widow who owns him." Kit hears that Theo Sable has taken up big game hunting in Africa. Just to startled the day after their arrival to Noel Graham, who manages Lal Crowhurst's rubber plantations. While Kit is having tea that afternoon in the hotel she overhears Theo Sable's name mentioned by two men at the next table.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

ALONE IN A STRANGE LAND.

Kit leaned forward. The tables were quite close.

"Excuse me," she said, "I could not help hearing what you were saying. You were speaking of a friend of mine, Mr. Theo Sable. Is he here?"

"Well, he was here this morning, madam," the first speaker answered in a different voice and with a jerky bow.

Kit's heart missed a beat. Theo was here. It was destiny, then. She had answered the call when it came; and she had been right.

"He did say he wasn't staying long, madam," put in the second speaker. "We haven't seen him since luncheon time." And then he added in what seemed to the girl a curious tone: "I suppose it is the same gentleman we're speaking of?"

"He is a well known white hunter."

"That's right, madam."

"Is he staying in the hotel?"

"Yes, he was here last night. I should inquire at the office if I were you, madam."

Kit walked quickly across the lounge.

Then came a fierce disappointment. Mr. Theo Sable had left immediately after luncheon by car with two other gentlemen. They had not said where they were going to and had left no address. They had come from the north, from the direction of Lake Rudolf. They had only light luggage with them.

The reception clerk, a polite young man, saw the look of deep chagrin on the charming young lady's face, and volunteered the information that he believed the gentlemen had come to bid farewell to a friend who sailed on the boat that left for Europe yesterday. No, he did not know Mr. Sable, and did not think he had ever stayed at the hotel before. His most probable destination would be Nairobi.

A blank feeling descended on Kit, as she walked back to her table. The two men had finished their drinks and gone. She could have cried. She felt all at once so terribly alone in this strange land.

It was too cruel a thing to happen. Theo had been here, under this very roof, at luncheon time. While they had been drinking the bride's health in the private room he had been down below. Her feet had been led here to the very spot where he was, and now a blind fate had stepped in and wafted him away. She had no means of finding out where he had gone. It depressed her to the point of fear. Their footsteps had just crossed each other, she coming, he going—on the very threshold of this great mysterious land of Africa. Perhaps this would always happen. Perhaps they would never meet—never.

But she had no time to lose. Punctuality and method were habits with her. She paid her bill, had her luggage brought down and a taxi called, and drove to the station. One thing she did do, although it cost her a pang of shame. She left her name and address with the nice clerk and asked him, in case Mr. Theo Sable returned to the hotel, to give it to him and ask him to communicate with her.

The effect of this strange accident of chance was more than even she knew. She had lost energy, vitality. When Crowhurst met her at the station, he exclaimed: "Why, what has happend to you, Miss Lenoure?"

"Nothing," she answered, forcing a smile. For a wild moment she longed to tell him; the story almost burst from her lips. But what was the good? He would not understand. It was her own secret. Once shared with anybody, it would be vulgarized, soiled, made ridiculous.

"Thank goodness, she had a sense of humor, thought Kit, as she looked into Crowhurst's ironical face. She was not going to make a laughing stock of herself. She would meet Theo in time. Anyhow, she knew that he was well and alive and in the same part of Africa.

"There is something the matter with you," the man persisted, and his eyes held hers so commandingly that a flush of resentment rose to her cheeks. "I hope you are not feeling lonely and strange. I wish I could come on with you."

His voice was so soft that it disarmed her and made her uncomfortable at the same time. She began to laugh and talk gayly, and in the excitement of departure her spirits rose.

She saw that everybody looked at him, passengers and officials, the latter one and all greeting him respectfully.

The train was made up of corridor carriages. There were no sleeping cars in the European sense, but she had been told that bedding was provided and one made oneself quite comfortable at night and must be careful to put something warm on, as the train reached the height of more than nine thousand feet.

Crowhurst piloted her to an empty compartment. There were about five minutes to spare, and he stood in the corridor with her. The porter brought her hand luggage and gave her the ticket for the registered trunks. Nobody came in to claim the other seats. Kit remarked on this, and he said carelessly: "O, the train isn't full." But afterwards she found that the train was very full indeed and that he must have reserved the compartment for her.

"You will wake up in the morning and think you are still dreaming," he told her. "You will pass through the great wild game reserve, the biggest natural zoo in the world. Look out on your left! You will most likely see herds of zebra, harte-beests, perhaps giraffe, though they are shy beasts, and possibly buffalo, grazing quite quietly close to the line. And if you are very lucky, and have sharp eyes, you may notice a stirring among the undergrowth a little way off, and catch a flash of yellow—and it will be a lion."

Her eyes gleamed. The man's personality made everything so real.

He held out his hand.

"I shall see you soon, Miss Lenoure. A very bon voyage! I am staying in Nairobi for a week or so, and then I shall cruise on to Soydoret. Mrs. Dunbar will look after you, I am sure. I know you'll be all right. Can you tell me now whether you think we shall be friends?"

His eyes met hers for a moment. They were neither cold nor impersonal; there was only the blaze of life in them.

"You have been so very kind to me, Mr. Crowhurst. I—I hope so."

His handclasp was firm, cool; like his glance, a challenge and a caress. He got down and stood on the platform, waving his topee.

As the train gathered speed, Kit sat, rather huddled up, lonely and forlorn. This was reality. She was on her way to the new life. She would have to work, to learn, to win through alone. The sea voyage, now it was over, was like a dream. This strangely interesting and forceful man who had suddenly sprung into her life receded and grew less real, as the train left him, too, behind. He also belonged to another world. He might really be, what they called him, the man in the moon.

Lack of Education Need Never Hold a Clever Girl Back

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is 23, sensible, attractive, and with a personality. Education she had little. She could not attend high school because she had to go out to work. Through the good job she now possesses she has met a young man of high intelligence, a college man.

He likes the girl a lot, apparently. But," she says, "I know I will lose out with him because of my lack of education opportunity. When I am out with his friends, they talk about their schooling. I feel inferior, sort of a back number. Is it really possible for him to love me? Is there some way of keeping him interested in me. —Miss B."

There isn't a chance in the world of holding the man's interest so long as you are burdened with that sense of inferiority. But you have every chance if you can forget it. Certainly, it is fine to have the advantages of an excellent schooling. It's nice, too, to be able to talk your good school when others are advancing theirs. But I don't think it makes much difference, these days—unless, as said, the one with fewer advantages projects those disadvantages in her manner or in her "back number" state of mind. Not if the girl has personality, looks, and sufficient charm to attract the man and hold his interest over a protracted period of time!

But the thing is not to raise the question in the man's mind by admitting by conversation or manner that there might be an intellectual disparity. The fact that the man is a college graduate does not necessarily imply that his intellectual attainments are superior. Indeed, so far as brains are concerned, he might be the inferior of the girl who had to get out early and rustle up success with only a grade school education.

Anyway, people are taken so largely today at their own personal estimation that it's better to give yourself "side" than exhibit a lack of confidence. And it's a large question in my mind whether the average man doesn't love a woman better when he is permitted that little bit of superiority.

This doesn't imply, however, that the girl take any inferior attitude about herself. Her attainments are merely different. Anyway that's the stand to take—and be not a little proud of what you've done with the opportunities you have had.

Hair-Dyeing Is Poor Experiment for the Fickle-Minded Gal

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A correspondent reports having her dark brown hair bleached to a platinum blond shade, not liking the shade and having it re-dyed in an attempt to recover her original hair tone. Instead, it turns out a shade with a purple-grape cast!

Now, about this business of dyeing hair, I would urge women who are given to changing their minds frequently and often to choose makeup changes or dress, to keep their interest up. You can't afford to change your mind often with hair dyeing experiments. And because, at the moment, there is more dyeing temptation about than I have known in many a long day, you want to be pretty sure before you begin the experiment.

There's no use telling women to be content with nature's girt, I don't know, either, if that is always wise. Certainly, in other directions women have proved nature can be improved upon. Nevertheless, in this thing of dyeing hair you're up against something with considerably more of the danger element than you are with any other beautifying feature.

There are times when nothing can convince a woman that dyeing her hair is the poorest way out. When the gray begins to show she is up against an employment argument there may be just as good cause for dyeing it. But dyeing hair for the fun of it, just to see how you'd like as a blond, or a red, or a golden head, that's something else again. Especially, if you are of the fickle-minded variety.

Any coloring that will change the shade of hair immediately, you may set down in your text book as a dye. And to make the color set, there are compounds in these dyes that have to be reckoned with. It's a long, slow process, getting that hair back again to its natural color. And sometimes, it must be stated, it is nigh impossible to restore the hair completely to its original shade because of the dye's chemical action on the hair.

Young hair, of course, responds fairly quickly, but not so with older hair. So, I say, if you must dye, be willing to ride along with the new shade. Be prepared to spend time and money on the retouching work and other necessary upkeep of the new tone.

Litany for Parents Obtainable Through This Daily Column

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Those who were readers of this department last year may remember that the special holiday greeting of this department went out in the form of "A Mothers' and Fathers' Litany," signed by the writer of these articles, to express personality to the recipient her good wishes for Christmas and the new year.

Part of the litany had previously appeared in the column, but requests had come for it to be reprinted, so that the readers might keep it. Instead of reprinting it in the column we turned it into a holiday greeting card or folder, specially printed on special paper.

Due to the fact that there have been demands for it throughout the year, we had to have a second printing made, in the same large size on rough paper. There are some of these now available for those who want the litany in this more permanent form and have not yet written in for it. It will not be printed again when the present supply is exhausted.

For the new readers who do not know the nature of this litany, it might be best described briefly in this way: It is the getting into words of those aims or ideals that mothers and fathers want to keep before them and put into practice, aided by the combined help of love and understanding. The litany is an attempt to sum up what we parents want to do and want to avoid doing. To you it may be used as a Christmas reminder or a New Year resolution.

The litany is sent out free, except for postage. To obtain it send your name and address and two cents in stamps for return postage. Please do not send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, as the folder will not go into it and has its own envelope.

Baums Revive Old Custom of Days at Home

Many friends of Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum of 1503 State parkway have received cards announcing that the home will be at home on Sundays in December from 4 to 7 o'clock. The Baums revived this nice old custom last winter, and it proved so pleasant, both to the hosts and the guests, that they decided to make it an annual affair.

The Baum house is one of the most delightful in town, anyway, and seldom does a noted person come to the city that he or she is not entertained in delightful fashion in the old mansion on State parkway, which was Mr. Baum's home when she was Merle Winston.

Few houses nowadays have ballrooms, and those that do are greatly in demand for charitable purposes, of course, and none on the gold coast is given more often for such purposes than Mrs. Baum's. Dr. and Mrs. Baum are among the old fashioned folk, too, who prefer to entertain in their own home, and almost never do they give luncheon or dinner parties away from home. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine is the only Chicagoan whose name comes to mind just now who has a regular "at home" day, and she is at home every Saturday afternoon during the winter in her apartment at 259 Lake Shore drive.

Alumnae Give Tea Today for College President.

Vassar graduates have a busy day today with a tea this afternoon at Mrs. Baum's house for the college president, Dr. Henry N. McCracken, and a dinner tonight at the Blackstone for her. Pouring at the tea will be Mrs. Percival Hart, president of the Chicago Vassar club; Mrs. Clayton Seaman, and Mrs. Frederick Merrifield, and ushering at the talk that Dr. McCracken will give after dinner will be Miss Betty Frey, Miss Catherine Reese, and Miss Elinor Durbin.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, Mr. and Mrs. Homer H. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Warfield III., Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Willett, Mr. Russell Tyson, and Dr. Hugh T. Patrick will be among those entertaining guests at the dinner and lecture to be given tonight at the University club. There will be about five hundred at the affair, which is one of the few given each year in Cathedral hall to which members may take their wives and feminine guests. Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews is to talk on "Explorations in Mongolia."

Society to Attend Lecture by Sir Denison Ross Dec. 9.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mr. and Mrs. William Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. John P. Denison, Mrs. Alfred C. Hamill, Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Frank O. Logan, Mrs. Henry H. Timme, Mrs. Howard Shaw, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, and Mrs. Ogden Breasted are among those who have made reservations for the dinner to be given Wednesday night, Dec. 9, by the New Orient society at the Palmer house for Sir Denison Ross, eminent British traveler and Persian scholar.

All these people, of course, are greatly interested in Persian art, especially Mrs. McCormick, who owns two of the world's rarest carpets, which are on exhibit now in Gallery M-4 at the Art Institute. One rug is known as the Emperor's carpet and is considered one of the greatest achievements in the early history of decorative arts. It was woven about the middle of the 16th century in the workshops of Shah Tahmasp. The other is known as the Grand Vase carpet.

The Association of Arts and Industries has issued invitations to a dinner for Eugen Gustav Steinhof on Thursday evening, Dec. 10, in the Bal Tabarin room of the Hotel Sherman at 7 o'clock. John Shapley of the University of Chicago will introduce Dr. Steinhof, who will talk on "The Relation of Modern Architecture to the Decorative and Industrial Arts."

Woman's Exchange Holds Its Annual Sale at Blackstone.

Do find time to drop in some time today at the Blackstone, where the Woman's exchange is holding its annual Christmas sale from 9 to 5 o'clock.

Miss Helen Gurley, president of the exchange, will be in charge today, assisted by a large corps of fashionable saleswomen. Mrs. Lester Armour, who counts the exchange one of her many philanthropic interests, sent us an interesting article about the work of the exchange and one of the most interesting facts about it was that it was started in 1877 by Mrs. J. B. Lyon in a small store window on the south side to help a few needy women who had appealed to Mrs. Lyon for assistance in marketing their jams, pickles, and jellies.

From that small beginning has grown the good sized shop at 942 North Michigan avenue which gives so many thousands of needy women the opportunity to be self-supporting. Mrs. Armour made a special point about women today who are saying "we are not buying anything"; she feels that for people who have moderate or large incomes to retrench so drastically does not help matters, for by so doing they are depriving many needy people of work.

Did you know that Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Noyes have rented their apartment at 1242 Lake Shore drive to the Henry Babsons of Riverside for December and January, and that the Noyes are at the Ambassador? They plan to go to Mexico to spend Christmas with their daughter, Florence, who went there the middle of last month for an extended stay.

Mrs. Ralph C. Otis and Miss Florence Otis of 2350 Lincoln Park West are expected to return home shortly before Christmas after a six months' visit in Los Angeles with Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Burns [Sarane Otis], who are the proud parents of a daughter born on Thanksgiving eve in the Good Samaritan hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Otis Jr., who have been with Mr. Otis Sr. since his wife and daughter's departure, will return to their own apartment at 2335 Commonwealth avenue when the travelers return.

Women Dry Law Foes Will Meet in Detroit.

Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Clifford Rodman, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William Sauer departed last night for Detroit to attend a meeting of the national executive committee of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Miss Carolyn Durand has returned from her summer place at Dorset, Vt., and is at the residence of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Trowbridge, in Lake Forest for the winter.

Miss Betty Rowe, who is attending the French school in New York, will spend the Christmas holidays with her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe of 1415 State parkway.

Mrs. Edward L. Hasler will return this week from the east, where she spent Thanksgiving with her son, Wyndham, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Prentiss L. Coonley of Great Barrington. Mrs. Hasler has closed her Lake Forest house and has an apartment at 1210 Astor street for the winter. Miss Constance Hasler has been staying with Miss Gwethalyn Jones of 1435 Astor street during her mother's absence. Mrs. Hasler and her daughter are planning to go west after Christmas.

Mrs. William S. Monroe is another traveler who is expected home by Christmas. She accompanied her sister-in-law, Mrs. William J. Calhoun, to China some time ago to visit Mrs. Calhoun and to attend the Institute of Pacific Relations meeting in Shanghai.

Mrs. Louis Slade of New York, who also attended the Shanghai meeting, spent several days last week with her brother and his wife, the Chauncey McCormicks, on her way home. She left Chicago Saturday.

Our London correspondent writes that the Claude Leighs [she was Miss Myrtle Johnson of Chicago] have moved into a new house at 25 Upper Brook street, in the heart of Mayfair, and that London society is awaiting their housewarming with interest, for Mrs. Leigh's flair for the unusual in decorating is well known. Mrs. Leigh and her small daughter are to appear shortly in the tableaux vivants at the new Phoenix theater for the benefit of the Mothers and Babies' hospital.

A former Winnetkan, Mrs. Maynie Gasque Robinson, wife of the young barrister, Roland Robinson, M. P., was one of the debaters in a recent debate held at the American Women's club, Mrs. Robinson talking in favor of protection for England. Mrs. William de Burgh Whyte, the former Caroline Vaux of Chicago, is chairman of the reception committee, and acted as hostess at the club that day.

Mr. Baker was financial editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE prior to his consular service. During the war he was commercial attaché in Russia, and lately he and his daughter have been living in Durham, although at present he and his wife and garde De S. Verdi passed the holiday and week-end in Atlantic City.

Would Bring Leading Women of World to Chicago's 1933 Fair

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Plans for the international women's meeting to be held in conjunction with the Chicago Fair next year were presented to 200 women club leaders tonight at a dinner at the Hotel Vanderbilt in honor of Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress Exposition. Fifty women's organizations affiliated with the national council of women were represented.

It was announced that the council and its affiliated organizations will occupy 2,400 square feet of floor space at the exposition and will bring women from all parts of the world to take part in the meetings. A permanent record of the achievements of women in the last hundred years, written by a leading American woman author, will be prepared for the occasion.

The project will be financed largely through a donation of $100,000 from the Postal Telegraph and Cable company, which also will handle in its offices petitions which the council will send to foreign governments urging that they send their most prominent women to Chicago for the exposition. The council hopes to get 1,000,000 signatures.

Germs of Cancers Reared and Studied in Own Glass Houses

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The world's strangest and newest job, feeding meals to living human cancer cells which are raised in glass tubes, are on exhibition before the Radiological Society of North America today.

The cancer cell chefs are three New Yorkers, two men and a woman. They are shown in a scientific movie film of the latest things in cancer study at Crocker cancer research institute of Columbia university and at Johns Hopkins university. The film is exhibited to the X-ray convention by the Chemical Foundation, Inc.

Perfection of this artificial growing of human cancer cells is a development of the last few months. Yet already the "impersonal" but living bits of real cancer have yielded to their caretakers considerable practical information.

Great care is taken to protect these cells for a single invisible mold or bacterium floating through the air into their glass homes while they are being fed ruins the whole works.

The cells come originally from cancer removed from patients by operation. There are all varieties. They are placed in a mixture made of the clear portion of cattle's blood and certain salts, and then sealed airtight. But they have to be fed regularly every forty-eight hours.

They are killed in various ways to learn how best to destroy cancer. Some are so sensitive to X-rays and radium that a small dose of radiation kills them although it would not injure healthy flesh. This kind of cancer can be treated by X-rays and radium. Other types of cells resist the radiation, showing that X-rays and radium would fail to cure.

Russian, Californian, Italian Notes for Opera This Evening

Tonight's audience at the Chicago Civic Opera will witness a double bill of one short tragedy and one brief comedy, balanced by a performance of the ballet from Borodin's "Prince Igor." The first half of the bill comprises a novelty, Franco Leoni's "L'Oracolo," which has its locale in Hatchet Row of San Francisco's Chinatown. The second, the comedy, is Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi," considered his greatest work, and which has not been shown here for four years. Vanni-Marcoux will have the leading character rôles in both pieces.

In "L'Oracolo," the tragedy, the leading soprano rôle will be taken by Serafina di Leo, who won generous plaudits when she made her debut recently as Leonora in "Il Trovatore." Vanni-Marcoux has the part of Chim Fen, keeper of an opium den, in the story, which concerns intrigue, love and death in the picturesque quarter of the coast city. Mary McCormic, also making her second Chicago appearance of the season, will be the heroine of the comedy, in which a tenor rôle will be sung by Charles Hackett. Antonio Cortis will have a tenor part in "L'Oracolo," and Virgilio Lazzari will sing in both productions.

The mixed pair auction events were the only other games today involving championships for the winners.

$750.00 Cash Offered for Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Every One Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $750.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of; it may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre, is the beautiful Helen Mann. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it $750.00 in cash is offered to any one who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Mann's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before December 6, 1931. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams, Studio A-154, 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Every one is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $750.00 even if submitted on a post card or scrap of paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once.—Adv.

Chicagoans Sailing.

New York, Nov. 30. — [Special.]—Two Chicagoans were among the passengers sailing from here on the White Star liner Baltic today—Mrs. R. L. Ibsen and John L. Logeman.

FASCINATING to men of every nation . . . is the American girl. For she has the grace of Spanish senoritas, the lure of the Oriental, the culture of the Italian and French chic.

Only one charm has she missed—the breath-taking loveliness of an English complexion. For fourteen decades Englishwomen have used Pears' Soap for complexion care.

Get a cake and watch Pears' rich lather bring the delicate natural color to your face. At all drug and department stores wherever toilet goods are sold. Pears' Soap, unscented, 10¢. Scented, a trifle more.

Waistlines Back Again, and So Are Buttons

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Coats are no longer to be left to their own devices. No guiding hand will be necessary to protect them from a passing breeze. The time has past when you could count on only one hand to carry your purse, etc., while the other wildly clutched a rebelliously flapping coat. Waistlines, too, are taking their cue from this tendency to have everything in its place and are definitely marked either by indentations or even gathers placed on either side.

In the sketch you will see how Maggy Rouff puts the waistline in its place and gives you the freedom of your hands, all in one gesture, simply by slightly indenting the waist and using two substantial buttons. The skirt section of this coat completely wraps the body and fastens on one button near the right hip. It then comes over and fastens on another button near the left hip.

This coat is in a black nubby woolen, and black astrakhan makes the large shawl collar. The wide flaring cuff has a band of the woolen at top and bottom, with astrakhan in between. The same buttons are on the two cuff bands. There are two square pockets with flap tops, but beware they are only meant for ornament. The coat section gets its fullness by gently flaring from the knees.

Embroidery is coming into its own this year, as you will see by the dress in the left hand corner, also designed by Maggy Rouff and meant to accompany the coat. It is in black satin, which also makes the belt and the edge of the round collar. The collar itself and the diagonal bands, in graduating sizes on the front of the blouse, are all in a bright red and beige Rumanian embroidery. The sleeves also have embroidered bands. The skirt has six bias bands set in on the hips.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

Food Talk.

Today's letter from Mrs. A. L. S. is indeed a timely letter. She writes: "Will you please tell me how to cook wild rice?"

You may cook wild rice just as you do plain rice, Mrs. A. L. S. Put one cup of wild rice into four cups of boiling water; then lower the heat beneath and cook more slowly for about thirty minutes, or until the grains are tender. Drain as usual and serve with butter, or as you wish. Have a good wild rice stuffing for fowl duck which you may have upon hand.

Many cooks who prepare other foods in attractive ways have not yet learned the simple rules for cooking rice so that each grain will be thoroughly cooked. It is the overcooking of rice that makes rice a pasty food that is to be avoided.

There is a noticeable difference in rice. The long and medium grains require a longer period of cooking than does the short grain. Old rice is drier than that which has been gathered from a late crop and consequently will absorb water for its cooking. Your own grocer can explain to you which variety you are buying, and how to cook it accordingly. Only be sure that you get the same variety instead of mixed varieties. The latter kind may be slightly cheaper to buy, but it is almost impossible for the beginner to cook this satisfactorily.

If you are boiling your rice, add it slowly to rapidly boiling water so as not to stop the boiling. Then cook until the grains are tender and drain in a colander. Should you be cooking more than one cup of rice, run cold water through it to remove any of the starch that may have formed. Then shake the colander well and dry the rice for serving. After this many people place the colander in a warm oven for a few minutes to dry out the rice.

Another method of cooking rice is to steam it. If you do this, blanch the rice first before putting it in your steamer. Use three or four cups of water [four for the older variety] for each cup of rice add one-half teaspoonful of salt. Don't stir during the cooking, but let the rice cook until the water is absorbed.

For tomorrow's menu we have a dessert which calls for rice . . . cook it carefully and you'll have a luscious dessert.

RICE WHIP.

Cook the rice in boiling salted water until tender and flaky. Cool. Whip the cream stiff and fold into the cooled rice. Place in a refrigerator and chill thoroughly. Serve in sherbet glasses with maple sirup.

MACARONI AND CHEESE.

Drop the macaroni into boiling salted water. Let it boil up well and then put into a double boiler and cook for two hours. Drain in a colander and run cold water through it. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, and milk. Add the cheese to it. Mix the macaroni with the sauce and put into a baking dish. Cover the top with additional cheese to suit individual taste. Heat through in a moderate oven and serve.

THE POWDER THAT IS SEEN AROUND THE WORLD IS PRIMROSE HOUSE BEIGE

WE have it on good authority . . . from smart women themselves . . . that this clever shade of powder goes everywhere . . . it is a regular globe-trotter because women who have used it won't stir without it.

Primrose Beige is that tremendously smart shade that fashion prefers this season. And then, it is a CHIFFON powder which means that it is as soft as velvet and as delicate as chiffon . . . yet it clings for hours without caking or clogging the pores. If you haven't seen this smart shade come in and let us show it to you.

SHAMROCKS WHIP TULSA, 3-1; INCREASE LEAD

PIRATES NAME GEORGE GIBSON 1932 MANAGER

Former Pilot Back in Old Job.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The managerial reins of the Pittsburgh Pirates today were taken over by George Gibson, Mount Bridges, Ont., former pilot of the Buccaneers.

Managed Cubs Formerly.

He formerly had managed the Pirates in the spring of 1920 in succession to Hugo Bezdek, now physical director at Penn State college. He lost out with the Bucs in 1926 after being purchased in 1924 from the Montreal club of the old Eastern league. Gibson starred as a catcher until the end of the 1915 race, leaving the club in 1916. The next two years saw him as coach of the New York Giants.

In 1919 he was manager of the Toronto club of the International league. He left the Pirates in the middle of the 1925 season and the next year was coach of the Washington baseball. He was out of baseball in 1924, but returned in 1926 as coach under Managers Bill Killifer and Rabbit Maranville of the Cubs. Gibson retired in 1928 when Joe McCarthy was named Cubs' manager.

Ens Seeks New Job.

Ens, who was ousted as the Bucs manager shortly after the close of the season, left tonight for West Baden, Ind., to attend the annual meeting of the minor leagues. He hopes to land a new "managerial" berth at the meeting.

Gibson retired from organized baseball in 1926, following the signing of Joe McCarthy as manager of the Chicago Cubs. Gibson had taken over the Cubs' managerial reins in the closing stages of the 1925 campaign, being promoted from coach in September to succeed Walter (Rabbit) Maranville for the remainder of the season. At the end of the season he went to his farm at Mount Bridges, Ont., where he has been in retirement since.

Entered Majors in 1905.

Gibson caught his first game for Pittsburgh, which was also his first in the National league, on July 3, 1905. The game was played at Cincinnati and the Reds won, 4 to 1. Deacon Phillippe pitched for the Pirates, while Jack Ewing did the twirling for the Reds, being caught by Eddie Phelps.

The other players on the Pittsburgh team were Del Howard, Claud Ritchey, George McBride [subbing for Tommy Leach] and Hans Wagner, infielders; Leach [subbing for Fred Clarke], Clarence Beaumont and Otis Clymer, outfielders.

Heinie Peitz and Fred Carisch were the catchers when Gibson joined the Pirates, but before the season was over Gibson was asked to do the bulk of the work, and he has been doing it right along. In 1907 he caught Rick Maddox in the game in which Rick did not allow the Brooklyns a single hit. In 1909, the year in which the Pirates won the National league and the world's championship, Gibson made the record of catching 134 games in succession.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks decisively outplayed the short handed Tulsa oilers of the American Hockey league in the second game of the two game series here tonight, winning 3 to 1.

The Shamrocks made a point per period by expert skating and excellent teamwork. O'Neill shoved the Puck past McCusker twice, once with the assistance of McFadyen, and McKenzie took a pass from McFayden in the third period to count Chicago's last marker.

Tulsa Short of Spares.

Tulsa, with only four spares working, was pressed at all times, but managed to make a battle of it.

In stops McCusker and Karakas were all even. Each made several spectacular saves.

Hanson and Williams again starred defensively for Tulsa, but showed the strain of the game Saturday when both literally were played off their skates.

Four Chicago Stars.

Prelesnik, Brydson, and McFadyen were the stalwarts behind O'Neill in the Chicago group.

The victory increased the lead of the Shamrocks to four points. They have won four games, lost two, and tied one for a total of eight points. Duluth is in second place.

SANSEN NAMED MOST VALUABLE HAWKEYE PLAYER

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—For the second successive year Capt. Oliver M. Sansen, senior full back, has been named by his team mates as the most valuable player on the University of Iowa football team. When the ballot was taken there was only one dissenting vote, and that was cast by Capt. Sansen himself.

The vote was taken to pick Iowa's candidate for the most valuable player award given annually by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the most valuable player in the Big Ten.

Although never a dazzling or sensational player, the Hawkeye leader has been more generally recognized for his services during the last season than in 1930.

Few persons except the Hawkeye players themselves appreciated the work of the full back during his junior year. Last season he served as a blocking full back and seldom carried the ball. The players recognized his worth, however, by naming him the squad's most valuable man in 1930 and making him captain of the 1931 team.

Even Better This Season.

The performance of the Iowa leader in competition this season has been more versatile and spectacular than that of a year ago. Not only was he the mainstay of Iowa's defense but the leading threat in the running attack. Sansen was credited with nearly half the tackles in several games and was continually called upon to back up the shaky Hawkeye line on defense.

As a ball carrier he made total gains of 299 yards, for an average of three yards on each attempt. While his offensive showing is not outstanding compared with that of other leading Western conference ground gainers, most of his yardage was picked up through the line when the going was difficult. In most instances the two or three yards represents a Hawkeye first down.

Capt. Sansen, whose home is at Alta, Iowa, is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 184 pounds. He is 23 years old and has been married since his sophomore year at the university.

Practices Alone During Summer.

Football has always been a serious matter with him. Last summer after working ten hours a day as a painter, he spent most of his remaining time before dark alone on the university practice gridiron, drilling on punts, charging and run. As the result, he reported to Coach Burton A. Ingwersen in perfect condition. He has never had a minute of time out during three years as a regular, and last season played all except three minutes of the entire season when Ingwersen replaced his entire first string.

Sansen is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. Upon graduation he intends to take up the coaching profession.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Two separate and distinct hurricanes, starting from widely scattered regions, converged on the football dope last week end and blew it into a shapeless mass. They seem to have left the fans in a dazed, baffled and highly bewildered state.

The first whirl of the big blow struck Yankee Stadium about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon as the Army eleven, beaten by Pittsburgh and Harvard, daubed Notre Dame, considered among the nation's elite, with a 12 to 0 coat of whitewash. The next merry whirl hit Soldiers' field, leaving Northwestern's previously undefeated record as debris in its wake.

West Point and Purdue were regarded as underdogs by 99 per cent of the gridiron intelligentsia. But both games helped to prove again that it isn't the size of the dog in the fight; it's the size of the fight in the dog.

Northwestern and Notre Dame in particular paid the penalty of terrific schedules. It is almost impossible in present day football, with its mounting standards and widespread competition to survive a schedule like these teams faced, undefeated. Both had the stamp of physical, mental and psychological exhaustion.

I see no occasion for panic in the ranks of the Wildcats or Irish. Both had remarkably successful seasons. Notre Dame proved again that it can hold its own with the strongest teams in the land. That's all they try to do down at South Bend. Nobody officially connected with the Notre Dame eleven feels it must parade up and down the nation's gridirons, bowling over every opponent in its path. Northwestern wound up its schedule in a tie with Purdue and Michigan for the Big Ten championship. That is glory enough for anybody.

Purdue has reason to feel proud of the fine showing its team made against the Wildcats. On that particular afternoon it was the smoothest running eleven I have seen this season. It had poise and strength and a certain obvious assurance. There were no stage waits nor blind stabs. It was truly thrilling to watch Pardonner, Purdue's French quarter back, outgeneral a Purple team that was supposed to be Phi Beta Kappa mentally. Pardonner, Horstman, Purvis and Hecker comprise the best backfield that has worked on a Chicago gridiron this fall.

Michigan, after getting away to a disappointing start, came through with a record good enough for equal rating with Purdue and Northwestern. The Wolverines, as usual, developed more slowly that their rivals and in the closing weeks probably were the strongest all around aggregation in the conference.

The following letter was submitted by Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Chicago American league hockey club:

"I noticed in last Friday's TRIBUNE that Mr. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the Blackhawks, is reported as having said that his team would be forbidden to play a charity game with the Shamrocks because of a league rule prohibiting competition against an outlaw team.

"The word 'outlaw' as applied to the American Hockey league has been very freely used in National league propaganda, but inasmuch as the use of this term in connection with our league is very unfair and misleading, I thought that you might be interested in knowing what the facts are as regards the relationship between the National Hockey league and the American league.

"The American league is a development of the old American association, which in turn grew out of the Central league, which was a name adopted by the clubs composing the old United States Amateur Hockey association when that body turned professional. The American league, therefore, is a development of the first professional hockey league in the United States.

"In 1926 both the National league and the American association had teams in Chicago. A suit is now pending against Mr. McLaughlin in behalf of the owners of the Chicago American association team of 1926 for damages caused by American association players being induced to jump to the Blackhawks, even though the two leagues had an ironclad agreement to protect against this sort of thing. Many of the players involved are still with the Blackhawks.

"As a result of this trouble the American association in 1927 incorporated in its agreement with the National league, signed that year, a provision that during the life of the agreement, which was three years, no American association team would be placed in Chicago or any other city where the National league had a club. It was understood at that time that the American association was not giving up its territorial rights in Chicago, but was only waiving such rights for a period of three years in order to place hockey in Chicago on a sounder basis. It is regrettable that the American association did not at that time give fuller support to the owners of their Chicago club, but the desire for harmony in the interests of hockey controlled.

"The agreement that I speak of expired in September, 1930, and the National league was notified that the American league, as the league was then called, would expect certain things with regard to a new agreement, one of them being a restoration of the suspended territorial rights in Chicago and the other, the abolishment of the draft. The National league, through its president, Frank Calder, notified our league that such an agreement was not satisfactory and that his league would not agree to restore these territorial rights and would insist on a draft even in modified form.

"At the same conference, Mr. Calder stated that even though an agreement could not be reached, the National league would respect American league contracts and expected the American league to respect the contracts of his league, which our presi-

IT'S MINORS' ACT, BUT MAJORS HOG THE FOOTLIGHTS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Baden, Ind., Nov. 30.—This baseball show down here, the annual meeting of the minors, really shouldn't have any major league magnates in the cast. But what's the poor stage manager going to do when the big boys are the first before the footlights and the first to bellow out their dramatic lines?

While the early arrivals from the minor leagues were still out on the front porches of the big hotels here and in French Lick, a mile distant, shedding large tears of red ink, President William Veeck, Manager Rogers Hornsby, and the rest of the Cub entourage were holding court in their hotel, while just across the golf course President Lou Comiskey, Manager Lew Fonseca, and the rest of the White Sox entourage were lolling about in sumptuous quarters.

John O. Seys, vice president of the Cubs, and Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, were installed as keepers of the copying machines that stamp of special announcements, but before they could get the contraptions working, Manager Fonseca had drawn first blood with announcement of a new system of spring training to be followed by the Sox.

Hornsby Has Opposing Idea.

Within the hour Manager Hornsby countered with an announcement of the Cubs' training plans, which are exactly opposite in theory to the plan of Manager Fonseca.

Before telling you about the respective training trip plans, we want to edge in here with the comment that we, whose turn it is to go with the White Sox next spring, broke down and had a good cry after hearing the two announcements.

The Sox pitchers and catchers are going to Mineral Wells, Tex., for a week of boiling before proceeding to Breckenridge park, San Antonio. Then the second squad will arrive at Mineral Wells for a series of baths, to remain a week, before going on to San Antonio.

No games have been booked with major league teams and few will be booked with minor league opposition. Instead, the Sox are to spend the time romping about in innocent exercises which will offer no strain to Mr. Comiskey's troupe. No reasons for this radical step were offered, but the Sox probably recall that Ted Lyons' season was wrecked last year by overexertion in one of the exhibition games against the New York Giants and that Tommy Thomas also developed in the spring series the tired feeling which pursued him all season.

Giants Move to California.

Another reason may be found in the fact that the Giants have moved to California, leaving all the vast state of Texas to the Sox, as far as major league teams are concerned.

The Cubs are going to leave for

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WILDCATS AND IRISH.

NORTHWESTERN and Notre Dame engaged in a desperately played scoreless tie on Oct. 10, the second Saturday of their schedule. This game was not of itself the most important on their respective charts, but it was one which players and coaches alike desired greatly to win. In preparation, Northwestern had vanquished Nebraska and Notre Dame had beaten Indiana the preceding week.

Probably on that particular Saturday Northwestern would have beaten any eleven in the conference on a dry field. Similarly, Notre Dame probably would have taken any eleven on its 1931 schedule. Both teams necessarily were keyed for an early game in violation of the orthodox theory that football elevens reach their best form by a schedule on which opponents of increasing strength are met on successive Saturdays.

What happened? Northwestern was called upon and met the menace of Ohio State. The Wildcats then found another title aspirant in Minnesota. Perhaps they already had started to fade. At any rate, they had enough left to make a comeback effort which was a thrill of the gridiron season.

Thereafter the Purple was not the same outfit. It was a tired, worn eleven. It was extremely lucky to win against Indiana. It showed none of its early power against Iowa. Then, by unprecedented conference action, Northwestern in the cause of charity risked an undisputed title, already won on its regular schedule, to an oncoming Purdue eleven which had lost only one game, an early affair against Wisconsin. Northwestern dropped into a tie with the valiant Boilermakers and Michigan for the championship it thought it had clinched.

Now look at Notre Dame. Like the Wildcats, the Irish, under the stimulus of early conditioning, recorded greater scores than a year ago against the same opponents. Talk arose that possibly it was one of the greatest of Notre Dame elevens.

Then came Southern California. The Irish clicked off fourteen points. But they had nothing left when the Trojans made one of the greatest rallies seen on any gridiron and won 16 to 14 in the last fifteen minutes. Then came Army, on which the Irish were expected to make amends for what they didn't do to the Trojans. A fighting, determined cadet eleven won, 12 to 0. Previously Notre Dame had downed Pittsburgh, 25 to 12, and Pitt had taken Army, 26 to 0.

Now this discussion is not intended to take anything from Purdue, Southern California, or Army. It is not possible to determine which elevens would have won if all had been at their best when they played. It does seem to prove the truth of the old theory that young boys, merely human, cannot be kept at peak form, mentally and physically, through a hard schedule of eight weeks and still triumph over stirdy, determined opposition without a letdown somewhere along the line.

Wake: Why all this ballyhoo about what team shall play Southern California in the Tournament of Roses? There is only one logical choice. That is Tulane, unbeaten and untied. Tennessee, her only rival, barely beat North Carolina, 7 to 0, and was tied by Kentucky. Georgia showed intersectional strength against New York U. and Yale only to return and lose to Tulane, 20 to 7. Northwestern scored one touchdown against Ohio State. Vanderbilt scored four. Tulane beat Vanderbilt, 19 to 0. Here's a toast to the green of Tulane.

HAWKS RECALL HOLMES

The Chicago Blackhawks exercised their one hour recall privilege yesterday on Louis Holmes, center player, whom they loaned to the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets for seasoning. Earl Miller was sent to the Pittsburgh team to replace Holmes, who was ordered to report to the Blackhawks in time for their practice at the Stadium this morning.

Holmes' excellent showing with Pittsburgh in the half dozen games in which he participated this season and Miller's slow return to form are the reasons assigned for the sudden player switch. Holmes, who hails from Edmonton, Alberta, is playing his first season in pro company.

The world's champion Canadiens, who battle the Blackhawks tomorrow, will practice on the Stadium ice today. They will follow the Hawks, who will occupy the rink from 10:30 to 12.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—The athletic council of the University of Wisconsin emerged from a three hour session tonight without having considered the case of Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite.

Thistlethwaite wasn't even mentioned "one of the council members said. "There was other work at hand." The other work at hand, or a portion of it, turned out to be Badger athletic finances. The council and the university regents are to discuss this again at a meeting within the next day or two. It was reported a deficit of $30,000 existed in the Wisconsin athletic department.

BUCKEYES HONOR HINCHMAN WITH 1932 CAPTAINCY

Columbus, O., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Lewis G. Hinchman, a half back, yesterday was elected captain of the Ohio State university football team for 1932.

Two other juniors were named by the nominating committee of two sophomores and a senior for the captaincy. They were Martin Varner, a guard, and Dick Smith, a center.

Hinchman was elected on the first ballot. He will be a senior in the College of Commerce and Administration next year and besides playing half back on the football team is a regular on the basketball and baseball teams.

HONOR PURDUE TONIGHT

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Purdue's football squad, which finished the season with the best record of any eleven in the middle west when it toppled Northwestern Saturday to earn a share of the Big Ten title, will be the guest of honor tomorrow night at the annual Kiwanis club football banquet.

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker. Election of the 1932 captain and selection of the most valuable player to the team during the season just closed also are scheduled.

In the minds of many Boilermaker supporters, the 1931 eleven ranks as the greatest in Purdue history. The work of the light line, which held Indiana without a first down during the time it was in the game, and Northwestern to two first downs on running plays, comes in for particular praise.

Purdue finished the season with nine victories and one defeat, counting the opening double header with Coe and Western Reserve as a double victory. Every other team in the middle west has at least one defeat and one tie against its record.

Harrison, Unbeaten, Faces Worthy Foe in Mt. Carmel

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Harrison Technical High school football team, champion of the Chicago Public High School league, will be guests of alumni and students at a victory banquet at the Auditorium hotel Dec. 9. Preliminary plans for the dinner were discussed last night.

Although the squad still is celebrating its victory in the title battle with Schurz a week ago, Coach Bob Daugherty of Tech is more concerned with preparation for the interleague game with Mount Carmel, champion of the Catholic league, at Soldiers' field Saturday. Receipts, after expenses have been deducted, will be used for unemployment relief.

Tech Has Clean Slate.

Harrison Tech is undefeated. In addition to a sweep of all its league games Harrison also won from Mooseheart and several of the stronger suburban and city teams.

Saturday's game, which starts at 1:15, will be the second for Mount Carmel in interleague competition. It defeated Schurz in 1927. The series was discontinued after the next year.

While Harrison is favored to win, Mount Carmel is a worthy foe. The south side eleven is rated the faster. However, it averages several pounds less per player. The Tech backs are by no means slow themselves.

Both Squads Are Ready.

Both teams are in excellent physical condition and the coaches announced yesterday they planned to start the men who had won the respective league titles.

Tickets for the charity game are 50 cents if obtained at either of the schools. One dollar will be the charge at Soldiers' field on the day of the game, while the box seats will be priced at $1.50.

Pleurisy May End Athletic Career of Albie Booth

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Albert James [Albie] Booth Jr., Yale football and basketball captain, has been ordered to the Gaylord Farm sanatorium in Wallingford for a period of rest, and it is certain that he will not take part in the basketball season which begins next week.

While no statement was made by any physician connected with the case relative to the possibility of his playing baseball next spring, it is felt unlikely that he will be allowed to do so. In that case, his career as a Yale athlete is closed.

The Yale Athletic association issued a statement which said that Booth's lungs are not effected in any way, but that pleurisy, with effusions, has developed following the cold which he suffered last week, and which compelled his transfer from the Yale infirmary to the New Haven hospital. Incident to the cold, he was threatened with pneumonia.

PURPLE ELEVEN ELECTS 1932 CAPTAIN TODAY

The squad will assemble at the gym at noon today for its first official meeting since Saturday's game, at which time next year's captain will be elected. The players also will nominate the most valuable player to the squad during the last year for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE award. Announcement of the captaincy election will be withheld until the annual football dinner at the Stevens hotel Saturday night.

Sad Campus Greets Team.

It was a saddened campus that greeted the students on their return from the Thanksgiving vacation. Throughout the halls undergraduates gathered in groups lamenting the turn of affairs which snatched away the Big Ten football championship.

Many of the players made plans to go out for other sports after taking a brief rest. Pug Rentner, Ollie Olson, Art Jens, and Tiny Engebretsen will join the track squad. Jack Riley, holder of the national collegiate heavyweight wrestling championship, will start training for the defense of his title, while Ed Manske will make a bid for a position on the basketball team.

Hanley Prepares for Coast.

Coach Dick Hanley started preparations yesterday to select an all star eastern team to take to San Francisco to meet a similar aggregation from the west coast in the Shriners' benefit game on New Year's day. Eleven players from the Big Ten, together with eleven from the east, will comprise the squad.

30 Light Heavies Enter Series for Crown on Dec. 11

BY FRENCH LANE.

A field of 20 light heavyweights will fight it out for the world's 175 pound championship in the tournament which will open at the Chicago Stadium on the night of Dec. 11.

The entries close at midnight tonight and fighters from all over the world are entered.

"Maybe the times have something to do with it, but I am surprised at the large number of entries," Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, said last night. "We will have every topnotch light heavyweight in the world in the tournament and, from the enthusiasm they have shown in entering the meet, I am sure they all will be prepared to throw their best fights into the competition. I think it is a great thing for boxing and I don't believe a professional tournament ever has been held that will bring out better fighting."

The tournament has been sanctioned by the National Boxing association, which Gen. Clinnin heads, and eight of the 175 pound gladiators will go into action in four 10 round bouts on the opening night.

Entries yesterday put Umberto Curri from the Argentine; Tait Littman, the hard puncher from Milwaukee; Abe Bain from New York, and Willie Oster of Chicago into the struggle. Drawings for the first round matches will be made soon after the entries close.

Bud Saltis, Chicago middleweight, is to have his big moment out at Mique Malloy's White City arena on next Monday night. He has been matched with Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg, the toughest foe he ever has faced.

Hank Kastman and Don Messina, strong contestants in last year's Golden Gloves tourney, headline the weekly card at the Northwest Lions arena, 4300 West North avenue, Friday.

Coming and Going.—Old King Tut, the famous Minneapolis welterweight, skipped through the loop and grabbed a train for Hot Springs, Ark., yesterday. Going down there to rest and not to fight. . . . Prince Saunders, the south side lightweight, is going to help Jack Dempsey entertain the folks at Duluth, Minn., on the night of Dec. 7. His opponent will be Charley Crooker. . . . Roy Williams, one of Chicago's hopes in the light heavyweight tournament, left last night for Cincinnati, where he battles Ted Graham tomorrow night. . . . Buck Everett, the former Golden Gloves champion, is at Janesville, Wis., for a combat with Tait Littman of Milwaukee tonight. . . . Ralph Lubansky and Eddie Chinski mix in the amateur headliner at Midway arena tonight. . . . Kid Howard says his Golden Gloves team this year will be more powerful than ever.

YOU CAN'T DEPORT ALIEN SPARROW, SO GET OUT GUN

BY BOB BECKER.

This is a good time of year for bird fans to initiate sparrow control measures if this common little street gamin is too numerous around one's home, farm or estate. Although the ultra-conservationist winces when anything is said about reducing the numbers of the pestiferous English or house sparrow, the fact remains that this bird is considered by most bird lovers as nothing less than a nuisance and a pest.

It is a curious thing that just about the only bird that is detested should be the only one who insists on sharing our homes with us. As a matter of fact, the English sparrow truly is a product of the times; a remarkably shrewd and keen witted fellow, who thrives where a less hardy species could not exist. Because of these characteristics it is not surprising that he threatens to overrun the land, especially in view of the fact that he is extremely productive and raises many broods a year.

Came Over in 1851.

The English sparrow was introduced into this country in 1851. In 1870 it was known only along the Atlantic coast. Now this foreigner has spread all over the country, just as another introduced bird, the starling, threatens to increase its range.

If the English sparrow would stay in the cities where his constantly annoying chatter can always be heard, it wouldn't be so bad. But this pest had adapted himself to a rural background just as effectively as he has captured towns and cities. Now you'll find flocks in grain fields, orchards and around barns where they are keeping desirable bird tenants from making their nests. The trouble that the English sparrow makes for purple martins is common knowledge.

Survey Recommends Shooting.

No one effective method for exterminating sparrows has been devised, although United States Biological Survey scientists have given their time to the problem. The survey recommends shooting as one method and many bird fans bombard the sparrows with small bore guns. The .44 gauge is an excellent gun for this business. It shoots a cartridge with small size shot, doesn't make much noise and has a shorter range than a .22 rifle bullet.

CHOCOLATE WINS BY K. O. IN FIRST, THEN GOES TO JAIL

New York, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Following his first round knockout victory over Maxie Leiner in the St. Nicholas arena tonight, Kid Chocolate, Cuban lightweight, was arrested and taken to the federal detention house on West street to await extradition to Havana on an assault charge pending against him there.

The arrest was made by a United States marshal. All efforts to have the fighter released on bail failed and he was forced to spend the night in the detention house awaiting a hearing tomorrow.

Regulate in Public Interest

People are asking how regulation can be equalized between the railroads and other forms of transportation.

One way would be to impose upon other forms of transportation all the regulation which now applies to the railroads.

Another would be to remove from the railroads all the regulation which does not now apply to other forms of transportation.

Still another way would be to consider each item of regulation separately and to determine whether or not that item serves the public interest. If it does, apply such regulation to all forms of transportation; if it does not, remove such regulation from all forms of transportation.

The latter method is earnestly recommended. After all, the only sound reason for regulating any form of transportation is to serve the public interest.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The eastern racing season closed here today with a program of races for the benefit of the unemployed, featured by the victory of E. F. Cooney's Pilate, 3 year old son of Friar Rock and Hepodius, which now has won seven out of his ten starts.

In the mile and seventy yards of the Hotel Belvedere handicap, Pilate was making his first start since last October, when he was beaten a nose in the Maryland handicap and suffered a leg cut.

Blind Luna Second.

This injury doubtless was favored by the deep track, made heavy by many hours of rain, for Pilate never looked better as he tow roped his field for the whole way and won by a good margin, with Jockey Eddie Ambrose looking back at his rivals. The Goodestone stables' Blind Luna was second, four lengths before the Fox Catchers' farm's Frigate Bird, which just saved third by a head from Pilate's mate, Bonnie Prince. Sand Wreck, Suneros, and Captain Ed followed in that order.

Rough approximations placed the sum realized for charity at as much as $20,000. This was based on the admissions from between six and seven thousand, and the percentage derived from about $300,000 wagered through the mutuel machines. In addition the state tax of $6,000 was waived, and contributions were made by employes, horsemen and others.

Bowie Gives Charity $20,000.

The mutuel percentage was increased for the day from 5 to 4 per cent, as had been done at the other major tracks this year. Pimlico, Laurel, Havre De Grace, and Bowie each have had a similar day's racing for the unemployed, so that the second such program staged at the course is expected to put the grand total realized well above the $100,000 mark.

Pilate's race was impressive, for he never had to be completely let down and always had speed in reserve even though fast enough to have the best of the others at all stages. His time was 1:46 3-5 under 117 pounds, which was top weight. Frigate Bird also had 117 up and in the early betting was strongly backed to beat Pilate, which closed an even money favorite.

Bear Cripples to Return for Packer Game

Link Lyman and Jesse Hibbs, stalwarts of the Bears' line, were released from the hospital yesterday and, barring accidents during this week, will be in shape to play against the Green Bay Packers Sunday afternoon at Wrigley field. They were not taken on the trip to Portsmouth.

The Packers must beat the Bears to clinch the title. Should the Green Bay eleven lose Sunday it will have to defeat the Spartans a week from Sunday to win the championship. Should the Bears and Portsmouth turn back the Bays, the latter and the Spartans will finish the race in a tie with 13 won and 3 lost.

With Josuting and Tackwell the Bears will be stronger than they have been this season against the northerners, who won the first two games this season by scores of 7 to 0 at Green Bay and 6 to 2 at Wrigley field. In both contests it was the breaks that decided the issue. In the 6-3 game it was a pass intercepted by Nicolaisko that was converted into a 73 yard run for touchdown.

The Bears will be after a stronger hold on third place but that will be considered a minor point if they can be of any assistance in bumping the Packers off their perch. With the exception of the Cardinals the Bears would rather beat Green Bay than any club in the circuit, and the feeling is mutual.

RUDOLPH AND LAURI CAPTURE 1ST CUE MATCHES

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, defending champion, and Onofrio Lauri of Brooklyn, won the opening matches of the world pocket billiard championship tonight. Rudolph defeated George Kelly of East Falls, 125 to 33 while Lauri disposed of Spencer Livsey, of Los Angeles, 125 to 32 in 16 innings.

Kelly got away to a good start and held an 8 to 4 lead in the second inning and a 23 to 7 lead in the seventh. Rudolph then began to click and soon was ahead. A run of 36 in the 13th inning, a high run of 43 in the 15th and an unfinished run of 16 in the last brought victory. Kelly's high run was 11.

Residents Whip Seniors in Internes' Cage Loop

The Residents defeated the Seniors, 13 to 10, last night in the Cook County Hospital Internes' Basketball league. In a second game the Juniors beat the Middlers, 22 to 16. The victors will play Monday night for the title.

CARDS INVADE GRAND RAPIDS IN FINAL SATURDAY

The Chicago Cardinals will play their final game of the 1931 professional season in Grand Rapids, Mich., Saturday. If inclement weather prevails Saturday the game will be played Sunday. The Redbirds will face the Grand Rapids Maroons, a semi-pro club undefeated previous to the Cards' first appearance in Grand Rapids.

The Chicago pros will disband after this battle and return to their homes in the various states. Duke Slater, star lineman, will join a group of colored all-stars and barnstorm throughout the western states.

STADIUM SIGNS KAROL ZBYSZKO FOR DEC. 15 BOUT

Karol Zbyszko, Polish wrestler who pinned Gus Sonnenberg for a single fall, only to lose the match when hurled out of the ring, has been signed by the Chicago Stadium for a match on Dec. 15.

An offer was made to Sonnenberg for a return match, but Gus pleaded a previous engagement and refused to meet Karol again. The Stadium then sent out offers to Nick Lutze, Don Georgs, Count Zarynoff, and several others.

I. W. A. C. OLYMPIC SWIM PROGRAMS OPEN JANUARY 8

Commencing Jan. 8 and continuing throughout the winter at two week intervals the Olympic swimming program will be held by the Illinois Women's Athletic club. This meet is being held in an effort to discover Olympic material for the 1932 games.

The meet is open to all girls in the Chicago metropolitan territory, and the scheduled events will be the 100 meter and 400 meter free style, 300 meter breast stroke, 100 meter back stroke and Olympic low board diving. Swimmers wishing to compete may obtain entries from Mrs. Lillian Reilly, swimming instructor of the club.

The show is being held under the auspices of the Maywood Relief committee for the benefit of the unemployed of the west suburban territory. All proceeds will go to charity.

Majors Steal Minor League Baseball Show

Catalina on Feb. 14. According to Manager Hornsby's announcement they will shun all minor league competition except two games with Portland of the Pacific league. The schedule will involve series in Los Angeles and San Francisco with the Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National league and the Detroit Tigers of the American league.

It is apparent from the foregoing that while Chicago fans will have a good line on the strength of the Cubs before the opening of the season, the character of the Sox will be practically a complete secret on opening day, April 15.

Sox Have Long Way to Go.

It is pointed out, however, that the Cubs can afford to be a little tired because all they have to do to win the pennant is move up two notches, whereas the Sox will have to be pretty fresh to pass the A's, Yankees, Senators, Indians, Browns, Red Sox, and Tigers, all of whom finished ahead of them in 1931.

Returning to the minor leaguers, whose convention it is after all, it may be said that the real business will get under way when all three or four hundred delegates get on the ground and get their sobs out of their systems.

Minors Gun for Broadcasters.

One of the first things that the financially distressed minors will get off their chests, 'tis said, is a beef about the practice of broadcasting major league games.

While willing to admit that broadcasting stimulates business in some major league cities, the minors feel that the practice is driving them to ruin on the theory that a sport from a small city would rather listen to a big league game over the radio than take all of the relatives to the home town ball park, even if the fee were only five cents a head.

There are two plans of action suggested by some of the minors. One is to stop broadcasting entirely and the other is to charge the broadcasters, the sums so derived to be placed in a pool to be drawn on by indigent minor league clubs.

ILLINOIS HORSEMAN DIES.

Collinsville, Ill., Nov. 30.—(AP)—John H. Edwards, 60 years old, of Collinsville, race horse owner and former East St. Louis mule dealer, died at Chula Vista, Cal., Saturday, friends were informed.

dent assured him we would do. There has never been the slightest dispute between the two leagues over a player and most amicable and friendly relations exist between our club owners and most of those of the National league.

"There are now in existence only four professional hockey leagues, the National, American, International, and Canadian-American. The last two are minor leagues and they, together with the National league, constitute what they are pleased to call 'organized hockey.' It is easily seen, therefore, that the two powerful factors in professional hockey are the American and National leagues.

"The reason that certain National league propagandists apply the word 'outlaw' to the American league seems to be that the American league, after the expiration of an agreement, chose to operate without an agreement with the National league unless a satisfactory one could be arrived at. It would be just as logical for your landlord to call you an outlaw because you refused to renew a lease.

"We believe that the use of this word 'outlaw' as applied to our league gives the public a wrong idea as to the real facts regarding our status. We are willing to match the quality of hockey played by our league with that of any other professional league and are willing to let the public make its own decision as to the strength or weakness of our league and we feel that it is about time that we made some answer to this continual, at least on the part of some National league owners, cry of 'outlaw.'

"The American league has a rule against its team competing with teams of other leagues outside of competition such as the Stanley cup matches, but this rule is merely for the prevention of unsanctioned exhibition contests and will certainly not be invoked to prevent a charity game. In fact, I have the assurance of our league president that no technicality will be permitted to prevent a game for this worthy cause."

Geneva and Glen Ellyn Elevens Meet for Charity

The Geneva Lavenders and Glen Ellyn Bears, suburban football rivals for several years, will meet for the second time today at the Glenbard High school field in Glen Ellyn. The game, which starts at 2:30 p. m., is for the benefit of destitute service men who are being assisted by the Lombard and Glen Ellyn American Legion posts. In their first game early in the season, the Lavenders defeated the Bears.

KRONE TO HOLD MAT SHOW DEC. 11 IN COLISEUM RING

Promoter Doc Krone will hold a heavyweight wrestling card at the Coliseum Dec. 11. Krone has secured the services of Rudy Dusek and Jim McMillen. However, they will not meet each other and Krone now is seeking suitable opponents for them.

McMillen, after two comparatively easy matches here following a broken collar bone injury, now feels confident that he is ready to mingle with the leaders again and has asked the promoter to get a tough opponent for him.

Dusek, who has beaten Kola Kwariani and George Zaharias in his last two appearances here, signed a blank contract to meet anyone, according to Krone.

"Y" DIRECTORS PICK CHIEF.

Canton, Ill., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Z. A. Campbell of Rollos was elected chairman of the district Y. M. C. A. physical education directors today. The basketball tournament was awarded to Canton, the swimming meet to Galesburg, handball and volleyball to Moline, and boxing and wrestling to Rock Island.

TOLEDO PLANS BOUTS.

Toledo, O., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Negotiations were completed this afternoon for the fourth annual Toledo Christmas boxing show Dec. 21, in cooperation with the Toledo police department. K. O. Christner, Akron heavyweight, will fight Jack Demeter of the United States navy.

Sponsor 14 Ice Skating Meets for Chicagoans

Fourteen speed skating derbies will be held in Chicago this winter. Sanctions for these were granted last night to member clubs of the Illinois Western Skating association at a meeting held in the clubrooms of the Norwegian American A. A., 2435 Wabansia avenue. Public park lagoons found the most favor as sites for the racing meets, but two are to be held in Mills stadium and a third, an indoor championship, is to be staged in the Chicago Stadium.

With a number of Chicago stars going east to participate in the Olympic speed skating events, for which a training period of more than six weeks is required, new city and state champions are likely to be crowned. As in other years, a number of youngsters now on the fringe of stardom are expected to be developed into champions.

President Theodore A. Groos of the Illinois Western Skating association remarked on the number of applications for derbies received, which was only four less than last season, and predicted another great skating year for Chicago fans.

Sanctions for meets approved were as follows:

Dec. 27—Franklin A. A., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 1—Sleipner A. C., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 3—City championships, auspices of Norwegian American A. A., at Mills stadium.
Jan. 9—Walton Arrow A. C., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 16—Illinois State championships, auspices of Northwest S. C., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 20—Henry A. A., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 23-24—Chicago Tribune Silver Skates Derby, at Garfield park.
Jan. 27—Wyandotte A. C., at Humboldt park.
Jan. 30—Austin Post No. 32, American Legion, at Columbus park.
Feb. 7—Amphion A. C., Mills stadium.
Feb. 12—Lincoln Day Derby, auspices of Illinois Western Skating association, at Humboldt park.

SKATERS LEAVE SATURDAY FOR OLYMPIC TRIALS

Chicago Will Send 5 of 18 Summoned.

Eddie Schroeder, one of Chicago's speed skaters on the United States Olympic team and winner of last year's TRIBUNE Silver Skates, will be given a farewell reception and dance Friday evening at the Walton Athletic club.

Five other of Chicago's United States color bearers—Eddie Murphy, O'Neil Farrell, Bill Minster, Al Kucera, and Wallace Mitchell—with Schroeder will leave for Bear Mountain, N. Y., Saturday morning, where they will report to Bill Taylor, official coach of the team. According to a notification each received from Taylor last week, they must be at Bear Mountain to join the balance of the United States team Sunday.

Get Training Indoors.

The Chicagoans have been handicapped by unseasonal weather and were unable to work out except at the Chicago Stadium once a week. They have been keeping fit by indoor training at local gyms every day for the last month.

A committee to send the boys away is composed of Carl Stockholm, Frank Kalteux, Frank Harmon, Theodore Gross, new president of the Illinois Western Skating association; Ted Rullman, and Dan Canaday, chairman.

Final Trials Jan. 16.

Uncle Sam's chosen 18 will remain at Bear Mountain until about the first of the year, when they will journey to Newburgh, N. Y., where the final trials are to be held Jan. 16 to determine the select speedsters.

HAIR HEALTHY

This town is full of men whose appearance is almost perfect. And the "almost" is because they're careless with their hair.

They don't realize it. They don't know that the care of the hair begins where the hair begins—in the scalp.

The scalp gets dry. Parched. Tight. It can't keep healthy without a workout any more than your muscles can! It needs exercise. It needs massage. It needs a 60-second workout twice a week!

Take that much time—just two minutes a week, a tenth of the time you spend shaving—to rub Vitalis into your dried-out scalp.

Instead of being parched and "lazy," your scalp will be fed anew by the oils that keep hair healthy. Instead of itching with dandruff, it will be healthy and clean. And your hair will remain thick, naturally lustrous, always in place—without a trace of the "patent-leather" look!

Give your head the 60-second workout today. Repeat it every three or four days. All druggists and barbers have Vitalis. It's pure. It's what your hair needs. Get it today!

Ask your Barber

Your barber gets a close-up of your hair every time you go to him. He sees what it looks like—and he knows what it needs. When he suggests Vitalis, listen to him! He's giving you sane, sound advice—and you'd better take it!

SCAN BUSINESS FUTURE AS YEAR NEARS ITS END

Several Lines Show Signs of Upturn.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The approach of a new year is always a time for stock taking and prediction. This month there is probably more uncertainty concerning the future than usual. However, it may be said that the year is ending with a generally hopeful feeling, which eventually may result in shifting factors that now are regarded as uncertain into the favorable column.

A survey of various divisions of industry and trade made by the Standard Statistics company reveals that the different lines summarized are almost equally apportioned among the favorable, uncertain, and unfavorable categories. Twelve lines appear to have definitely improved prospects, while all in the class of uncertain and unfavorable seem to face unfavorable developments.

Indications of Trend.

It should be considered, however, that lines of business falling in the latter categories may have a changed status if any general improvement should develop. The current indications of the trend of the various divisions, based on current conditions, follow:

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY—The financial status of farm equipment manufacturers is believed sounder now than for several months past, although definite earnings progress is not indicated for the initial months of 1932.

AIRCRAFT—Military takings will show further gradual diminution because of reduced governmental appropriations.

APPAREL—Present unsatisfactory conditions in this trade will probably carry over into the early months of 1932.

AUTOMOBILES—Earnings of manufacturers should advance rapidly with a sustained upturn in volume in those units where substantial operating economies have been effected.

AUTOMOBILE PARTS — Certain units should register prompt and substantial earnings improvement during a period of more active automobile demand.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES — Excessive capacity and the severe price competition might readily continue to limit profit margins for an indefinite period.

BUILDING—The near term outlook is definitely unsatisfactory.

CHEMICALS—Prices of industrial alcohol for 1932 business are expected to be at least moderately above those of this year, but in most other chemical divisions it seems unlikely that materially higher quotations will be obtained on the 1932 contracts.

COAL—Near term improvement in either division of the industry will be insufficient to allow earnings during early 1932 to exceed the unsatisfactory results currently prevailing.

FOOD PRODUCTS [other than meat]—Recent strength in commodity prices is especially favorable for food company profits, and continuation of the rising trend should act to stimulate sales which otherwise might be further deferred.

LEAD AND ZINC—Profits for producers of both metals are expected to demonstrate only gradual recovery.

MACHINERY—Further curtailment of operations of manufacturers probably will be necessary.

MEAT PACKING—Profit prospects for early 1932 are unfavorable but should improve as the year progresses.

METAL CONTAINERS—Prospects are favorable for a resumption of the past upward trend of profits for manufacturers over the longer term.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT — Domestic consumers have stocks on hand sufficient to satisfy their requirements for some time to come. Foreign demand is being adversely affected by economic conditions and devaluation of certain currencies.

PAPER — Production as a whole, within recent months, has been advancing somewhat more than seasonally, and with the advent of general business improvement the industry should reflect gradual further betterment.

Farm Dairy Products Are Worth Most

BY SCRUTATOR.

Those who regard the shock of wheat as the symbol of American agriculture and the price of wheat as an index of farm prosperity should reflect that during the last five years wheat has contributed annually only about six to eight per cent of the total gross farm income.

It would be much fairer to accept the milk cow as the symbol of farming, for milk and milk products in good times or bad add more to the farmer's bank roll than wheat.

The following figures, taken from the department of agriculture's 1931 yearbook show the gross income from the total wheat crop and comparative figures for gross income from dairy products for the last six years:

Dec. 1—	Farm Value of Wheat.	Farm Value of Dairy Products.
1926	$938,884,000	$1,550,000,000
1928	900,526,000	1,595,000,000
1927	879,843,000	1,611,000,000
1928	887,184,000	1,634,000,000
1929	843,038,000	2,645,000,000
1930	517,401,000	1,619,000,000

Poultry and Egg Revenue.

Income from dairy products, as given above, does not include income from poultry and eggs, which in 1930 alone grossed $1,024,000,000, against $1,202,000,000 in 1928.

This year with grain prices away down the importance of dairy products has been emphasized. The demand for butter has exceeded all expectations. Dealers were amazed and for months feared that it couldn't last.

That prices for butter have held up better than prices of other farm products is attributed chiefly to this enlarged demand. The drouth in the northwest prevented much feared overproduction from materializing.

J. M. Harding of Omaha, president of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers which will hold its annual session today at the Palmer house, yesterday described butter as a "great income stabilizing factor for the average American farmer."

Tells of Price Recovery.

"On Oct. 4," Mr. Harding says, "a farmer delivered a five gallon can of cream to our plant in Omaha. We figured that it was worth a half acre of old corn or an acre of new corn, which was at that time selling near Omaha for ten cents a bushel. Then I called the Omaha Grain exchange and found that a pound of butterfat on that particular day was worth three times as much, in terms of wheat and corn, as it had been worth on May 28.

"In other words, butterfat had recovered very materially from its low and the grain had gone down. There has been a sharp change since October in the price of grain, and butter on the other hand has gone down, but even today it holds a favored position."

Mr. Harding explains that in his production of butterfat the farmer adjusts himself to economic conditions much more readily than he does with his other commodities, which are long term propositions.

"In the deflation of 1921," he continues, "the farmer turned the corner with his butterfat prices before there was an upturn in his other prices, and now history has repeated itself.

To Lose Is Easiest.

"The manufacturer has had some severe experiences, for it is always easier to lose money on the down market than to make money on the up market.

"For two years the dairy industry took a tremendous loss on storage butter, which means that the farmer was paid more for his fresh product than it turned out the manufacturer could get for it. The farm value of milk for 1930, for instance, reached a total of $1,853,785,000, which was $800,000 more than the total farm value of either corn or hogs."

Mr. Harding warns the farmer that if he responds to better prices by increasing his production he will defeat his own purpose in no time at all and that he should let his production follow consumption demands instead of anticipating them.

Closes Greatest Year.

Creamery owners from thirty-eight states and Canada will attend the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers' convention today. The industry is just closing its greatest year, both in production and consumer demand, and is preparing for greater records in the coming year.

Speakers include B. W. Snow, director of the Federation of American Business and noted crop statistician, who will discuss the extent of governmental intrusion into private business in an address, "America at the Crossroads"; E. S. Bayard, editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer, who will talk on "Common Sense in Relation to Business," and O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry of the department of agriculture.

JOINT TELEGRAPH SERVICE GOES IN EFFECT TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 30.—The joint telegraph-printer service of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, to be known as the timed wire service, will be inaugurated tomorrow, it was announced tonight. The 9,059 telegraph-printer customers of the two companies, with about 11,000 telegraph writers in their offices, will be interconnected at the opening of business.

The rival service arranged by the Bell system was opened to the public more than a week ago.

The telegraph companies distributed to customers a joint directory listing by states and cities all offices having the telegraph printers of either or both companies. The major telegraph offices of each system have been connected by trunk lines in all locations where such lines will be necessary in the exchange of communications.

Officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph company said that their new teletype writer service would make possible the reemployment of about 1,500 former employes. It had created an increased demand for printers manufactured by the Teletype corporation and for teletypewriter exchange switchboards manufactured by the Western Electric company. In addition there were installation, operating sales, and commercial jobs involved in the new service.

WORLD'S PLIGHT CAME BY WILL OF GOD: POPE PIUS

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 30. — (AP)— The world's present economic difficulties came by the will of God, Pope Pius said yesterday in an address which was published today by the Vatican City newspaper, Osservatore Romano. Speaking on the occasion of the reading of the decree recognizing the virtues of Sister Gemma Galgani, a candidate for beatification, the pontiff said:

"It was God who gave the years of abundance, years which now we scarcely can believe existed. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away.

"This crisis is too widespread to have been caused by men. It is evident that the hand of God is being felt and that the things of the world are obeying the hand of God."

The "terrible danger" of the present situation, said he, is that in the conferences and discussions of plans for relief "no one has spoken of God and no one has recognized the divine hand which events obey." The pontiff said he did not want to be pessimistic but asserted that he was always optimistic. He asked charity for the suffering of today "not only from the rich survivors of the general shipwreck but also from the poor."

BRITISH POUND OFF 13 CENTS MORE BEFORE RALLY LIFTS PRICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 30.—The British pound sterling, swinging erratically and continuing a swift decline which began last week, toppled 13 cents today to $3.39½ for cable transfers, the lowest rate touched by sterling since the early postwar days.

From that level it rallied and by midafternoon was quoted in New York around $3.42, but the market was nervous and fluctuations were rapid.

Today's break, exceeding an extreme decline of 10 cents recorded Friday, was the widest since the downward plunge of sterling immediately following England's suspension of the gold standard last Sept. 21. On that slump it dropped below $3.50, later recovering to around $4 on the defeat of the British Labor party in the late October election. Parity is approximately $4.86.

While weakness of a currency so important in international trade was disturbing to business sentiment, it had little effect upon domestic security and commodity markets. The recent steady decline of stocks and commodities was halted by a moderate rally. British markets also paid little attention to the gyrations of sterling, as far as the day's quotations were concerned.

Various reasons were propounded by exchange dealers and bankers for the slump in sterling, which unsettled the whole foreign exchange market, particularly Scandinavian exchanges.

For one thing, it was pointed out, this normally is the season when England increases its imports of raw materials and when pressure on sterling usually is heavy.

Around $3.40, sterling was quoted at the lowest level since Feb. 2, 1920. The lowest postwar quotation was $3.19.

Hoover Ideas About Reserve Credit Vetoed

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—(AP)— Disapproval of proposals to liberalize rediscount requirements as suggested by President Hoover, came today from the federal reserve system in answer to a questionnaire from the senate subcommittee on banking.

The banking subcommittee, headed by Senator Glass [Dem., Va.], buckled down to the task of revising a rough draft of a measure to tighten federal reserve credit against stock speculation. In addition it made public the replies of the reserve banks to the questionnaire.

When President Hoover launched his national credit pool plan he told assembled party leaders he favored changes in the federal reserve act under which certain types of paper not now eligible for rediscount would be accepted.

The banks, in answer to the subcommittee's questionnaire, also gave their opinions on methods of restricting credit policies to offset speculative use of the money. Only two said acceptability requirements were raised during speculative periods. They were Atlanta and Boston.

Radical Changes Opposed.

The first question in the subcommittee's list of fourteen queries was: "State the changes, if any, that you would suggest be made [1] in the provisions of the federal reserve act relative to the type of paper eligible for rediscount, [2] in the rulings and regulations of the federal reserve board relative to the interpretation of these provisions."

The replies, as set forth in a digest by the subcommittee: "With a few exceptions, the Federal Reserve banks did not favor changing the provisions of the federal reserve act relative to paper eligible for discount or the rulings or the regulations of the federal reserve board interpretative of these provisions."

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank offered as a suggestion for temporary action in extreme emergencies that the maturity date on otherwise eligible paper be extended from ninety days to six months; also that the Federal Reserve banks be permitted to make loans to member banks not exceeding ninety days on notes secured by bonds which are now acceptable by the treasury department as security for war loan deposits.

Some Offer Suggestions.

The Dallas bank suggested that landlords' obligations, such as loans to tenant farmers, be made eligible for rediscount and that the statutory maturity limit on advances to member banks secured by notes, drafts, bills of exchange or bankers' acceptances eligible for discount and purchase be increased from fifteen to ninety days.

The Philadelphia bank suggested that at times it might be advisable to advance funds to individual member banks in distress against any of their assets.

New York, Nov. 30.—An unconfirmed report that the New York Stock exchange was preparing to put the screws down in earnest on the short traders was responsible for a spectacular little price rally in the late dealings today.

Values were marked up anywhere from 2 to 5 points over a wide range as "the panicky" "uncontrollables" scrambled to get their any commitments covered before the lid was clamped down. Some of the most imposing gains in the final tables replaced the considerable losses that had been recorded earlier in the day.

According to the report the exchange's new plan in its drive to minimize short selling is to ban the lending of stocks for short selling purposes. This, of course, could mean the elimination of the shorts entirely.

Governors Hold Meeting.

The board of governors of the exchange was in session this afternoon and it was widely believed that the proposition referred to was one of the subjects under discussion. Just what decision was reached—if any—however, was not immediately disclosed, and the market closed with both sides wondering just how much basis there had been for the flurry.

Direct inquiries at the offices of the exchange brought little light to

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES REVERSE RECENT TREND

Deny Petition to Enjoin Insull Pfd. Dividend.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks won a release from the depressing influence of liquidation on the Chicago exchanges yesterday as traders moved to even up their commitments in anticipation of further regulation of short selling which is expected in the near future. Reversing the declining trend which has held away for more than a week stocks of all classes pushed ahead for appreciable gains.

While the short interest on the Chicago exchange has continued small during the month, although the short operations on the big board have expanded considerably, buying yesterday in New York inspired the advance here. It is feet that the motor shares which escaped heavy selling last week lagged behind in the advance yesterday suggested the belief that short covering accounted for the improvement.

Shows Recovery.

Middle West Utilities 6 per cent preferred recovered 3½ points and other Insull securities shared in the improvement. Gains generally among the active shares were moderate.

Insull Utility preferred second series fluctuated erratically as the hearing on the petition to restrain directors from paying the current dividend on the stock was being held in the Superior court. The issue closed only a fraction lower on light trade. The request for the injunction was denied and arguments on the receivership petition were postponed until today.

The suit was brought by a minority stockholder who held 12 shares of the firm's common stock. All the allegations made in the suit were promptly denied by Samuel Insull Jr., a director of the corporation. The dividend which will be distributed to the preferred stockholders today amounts to $735,000. Charles L. Brown, attorney for the company, declared during the hearing yesterday that the payment will be made out of surplus. The company's assets, he told the court, exceed liabilities by $30,000,000.

Strength in Bendix.

Although the utility stocks were unusually active it was the motor accessory shares in which held most of the speculative interest. Recent strength in Bendix continued and the issue crossed 15 on heavy trade as friends of the stock whispered that the firm is acquiring important new business.

Corn was also in fair demand, closing higher at 3c. In a statement issued yesterday L. J. Manning, vice president of the Cord corporation, said that every unit of the holding company has had its best year in 1931.

Unit sales of Auburn Automobile company for the present fiscal year will be 150 per cent ahead of the preceding year with gross volume of business approaching $24,000,000, he stated. Duesenberg, Inc., becoming Manufacturing company and Stinson Aircraft have all made particularly satisfactory showings, he added.

BUYING ACTIVE IN WHEAT PIT; PRICES UP 3C

Liverpool Advance Offsets Drop in Sterling.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A much less pessimistic sentiment was in evidence among grain traders yesterday and there was a material lessening to the pressure on the markets as the result of strong cables from Liverpool; high temperatures in Argentina, and a sharp upturn in stocks in New York.

Wheat prices advanced as much as 3¼c over Saturday's finish with a good class of buying in evidence on the way up and the close was at net gains of 2@2¾c, July showing the most strength. December finished at 54⅝c; March, 58¼c; May, 58⅛ to 58c and July, 57⅛ to 57c.

A break of 12 points in sterling exchange was more than offset by an advance of 2¾@3½c in Liverpool wheat, the actual gain being 1⅝@2c per bu, with the December finishing at 13⅞c. Small world's shipments, a decrease of 3,109,000 bu in supplies on ocean passage, rains in northern Argentina, where harvest is on, and a better cash demand were the basis for the upturn aboard. There was also a betterment in the demand for North American cash wheat with sales of 800,000 by estimated in all positions, including some hard winter.

More Interest in Wheat.

Taken as a whole the days developments were generally in favor of holders of wheat, and while part of the upturn was attributed to buying by several leading local operators, the trade was generally less bearish than of late. Temperatures of 95 to 105 were reported in Argentina, and with part of the crop in that country at the critical period of growth some damage was feared. Sweden is expected to increase the amount of imported wheat that can be used by mills by 10 per cent and rye 20 per cent, both crops apparently having been overestimated.

Sloppy with seaboard connections were on the buying side of wheat futures at Winnipeg which closed 1⅞@1¾c higher with December at 59¼c at the last in Canadian currency which was around 13% per cent discount. Shipments at Buenos Aires was ¼c to ⅝c higher, the former on December which was quoted at 41¾c at the last.

Selling against offers was a factor in checking the advance in wheat futures yesterday, and while many of the pit element were on the selling side early they were forced to cover as the way up. At the present time the outlook for the new winter wheat crop is having little effect on the market.

Corn Rallies with Wheat.

Corn was dull but slightly firmer early due to a lack of pressure and later advanced easily in sympathy with wheat, closing at net gains of 1⅛@1¾c with December 39¼c; March, 43⅜ to 43¼c; May, 44 to 44⅛c, and July, 46⅝c. There was little in the general run of the news that attracted attention. Scattered longs went out of their holdings in the December during the day, and there was spreading and hedge spreading between corn and other grains.

An increase of 474,000 bu was shown in the domestic visible supply for the week and the total stock of corn is now 3,686,000 bu against 6,964,600 bu last year. Shipping sales aggregated 75,000 bu while there were no purchases to arrive. The basis in the sample market was unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Oats closed ⅝@1c higher, with the December showing the least gain due to liquidation by belated longs. The nearby future finished at 24⅝c; May, 27⅛c, and July, 28⅝c. Rye was 1⅛@1½c higher with export sales of 60,000 bu reported at the seaboard. December closed at 41¾c; March, 46⅝c; May, 48⅝c, and July, 48c.

LARD PRICES LOWER

Largest receipts of hogs in many months, with prospects of another big run at Chicago, making about 156,000 in two days, had a depressing influence on the hog and provision markets yesterday. Lard closed 5@15c on the nearest futures and 15¼c off by December. There was clearing from December to January and May, with December over the latter end of the month and November contracts for the day, making 2,500,000 lbs for the month. Cash trade was rather quiet. Rumors of lard for the year's requirements of the navy, 4,458,000 lbs, last year. Of bacon they were 2,896,000 lbs, against 3,979,560 the last year. Liverpool lard was 6d higher on spot and November and 3d higher on January and March and 6d higher on May.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Office offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by law. The small loan low. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928 and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

FOR EXAMPLE:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.
